CAPITAL FACES TAXI STRIKE IN TRANSIT TIEUP

Cab Drivers May Join Walkout

Washington, D. C., Nov. 6 [Special]—A transit strike bogged down all of Washington today, angering congress, inconveniencing the labor-management conference called by President Truman, and forcing hundreds of thousands of persons to walk, hitch-hike, or stay at home.

As the walkout of AFL workers of the Capital Transit company left the District of Columbia without bus or street car service, a taxi drivers' strike was talked of tonight. During the day the city's 5,000 taxis had been busier than ever before.

A special meeting of the AFL taxicab operators' local has been called for 8 a. m. tomorrow to discuss support of the transit workers. Another group, the United Taxicab Operators, has been talking of strike action, too, but has not called a meeting. About half of the city's cabmen are unionized.

Charges "Nose Thumbing"

Referring to the labor-management conference now in its second day, Sen. Wiley [R., Wis.] told the senate the strikers "had thumbed their nose at the conference." He advocated a law forbidding walkouts and forcing arbitration of disputes involving public utilities.

The government offered the services of a conciliator, Richard W. Goodrick, but E. D. Merrill, president of the transit company, whose street cars and buses carry 1½ million fares a day, said he would not deal with the union until the men returned to work.

The drivers voted tonight to send a three man committee to sit in with government conciliators tomorrow, but made it plain they had no intention of returning to work immediately. Shortly before 7 p. m. they called an "intermission" to go home and get some sleep, and arranged to continue their meeting tomorrow.

"Disappointing Spectacle"

In the house, Rep. Rankin [D., Miss.] said the walkout "must be a disappointing spectacle to service men who thought they were fighting the war to avoid such things."

Rep. Cox [D., Ga.] called it "an assault of organized outlaws."

Suburbanites Fortunate

The luckiest residents were those who live in suburban developments in Virginia and Maryland. Many of them are served by separate bus lines not affected by the walkout.

The Capital Transit company serves all of the District of Columbia—and its estimated 800,000 residents.

Two thousand members of local 689 of the AFL Amalgamated Electric Railway and Motor Coach Employes met at midnight in a burlesque theater. They voted to go into continuous session until their wage demands are met.

The workers want a 30 cents an hour increase in the driver-operator top rate of 95 cents an hour. The company countered with an offer of 7 cents during the life of a contract which runs until June 7.

Detroit, Mich., Nov. 6 (AP)—Mayor Edward J. Jeffries tonight swept into a 28,373 vote lead to win Detroit's bitterly contested mayoralty election after wiping out the early margin piled up by Richard T. Frankensteen, United Auto Workers [CIO] vice president.

Jeffries, making a bid for his fourth consecutive term, had 223,971 to Frankensteen's 195,598 in returns from 1,000 of the city's 1,136 precincts.

Frankensteen conceded his defeat in a radio talk to voters.

In the early count the lead changed hands several times and indications were that the outcome would remain in doubt for several hours.

Labor Issue Foremost

The election was on a nonpartisan basis. Frankensteen ran with the support of the CIO Political Action committee and Jeffries based his campaign on charges that "outsiders" were trying to take over the city government. He appealed to "the great unorganized majority of voters" to save the city from labor dominance.

Voters turned out in unprecedented numbers, casting 242,000 votes by 2 p. m. to compare with 162,000 at the same hour in 1937 when a record for a municipal election was set with 418,598.

Women Set Record

In announcing that a new record had been set with 510,000 votes recorded today, election officials said that women had gone to the polls in greater numbers than ever before.

Two years ago Mayor Jeffries turned back a UAW-CIO challenge by running up a 32,560 vote majority over Frank Fitzgerald.

VOTE TO INDICT HEAD OF SCHOOL

Berwyn Principal Denies Charges of Girls

John Kay White, 47, principal of Pershing Elementary school in Berwyn, was reported named by the grand jury yesterday in three true bills on charges of contributing to the delinquency of three 13 year old girls. The grand jury acted after White was seized in his home at 3707 East avenue, Berwyn, on a complaint signed by the mother of one girl.

John Kay White

The principal refused to answer questions in the state's attorney's office, but after being returned to the Berwyn police station last night he discussed the case. He charged the enmity of a small group of parents and the imaginations of the girls caused his difficulty.

Charges of Girls

The three girls were reported to have told Berwyn police, the state's attorney's office, and the grand jury that White during the last several weeks has been guilty of misconduct toward them. He kissed and fondled them and discussed matters of sex, they were said to have related. Two girls still are pupils in the school. The third was graduated last June.

The girls' charges were denied by White while he was being held in the Berwyn police station in lieu of $5,000 bond. He asserted the accusations were the outgrowth of four years of persecution by the group of parents, who are members of the Pershing Parent-Teacher association.

Petition Asked Removal

"The Parent-Teacher association has disregarded its own policies and frequently has tried to interfere with my administration because of the enmity of the one small group," White said. "Last July a meeting was held by 10 or 12 families who disagreed with the way I taught arithmetic. A petition asking my removal was passed around, but never presented.

"The girls are allowing themselves to be influenced by their parents and by a motion picture, which at least two of them saw recently. A high school teacher in the movie is discharged because she introduces sex hygiene into her classwork. The girls are acting out this movie situation in real life.

"This is the first time in my 24 years of teaching that such an accusation has been made against me. The charges are entirely untrue. I may have put my arm around a girl's shoulders or waist while walking in the hall, but I thought of the pupils only as children. I never kissed them or took indecent liberties."

The girls' stories came to official attention in a roundabout way after three 12 and 13 year old boys, pupils in Pershing school, stoned White's garage, breaking 14 windows. Two of the boys were caught and admitted the vandalism, but refused to name the third.

The boys told Berwyn police they were retaliating against White for his alleged conduct toward girl pupils. They named the three girls, the police said, as having been victims.

Refuses to Quit Post

White was arrested by Police Sgt. Charles Rudderman of Berwyn and Charles Prybl, an investigator for the state's attorney's office. His bond was set by police Magistrate Frank Pavek. He was taken before Assistant State's Atty. Samuel Papanek prior to the grand jury's reported action, but refused to talk without an attorney.

The Berwyn school board, which obtained information regarding the developments, called White before it Monday night and asked for his resignation, but he refused to resign. The board took no action.

White formerly was principal of a Des Plaines grade school. His wife, Helen, has been a teacher in the Pershing school, but is not on active duty now. They have one son, John Keith, 4.

NAVY PLANE OVERDUE ON WAY FROM GUAM TO MANILA; 20 ABOARD

HONOLULU, T. H., Nov. 6 (AP)—The naval air transport service reported today that one of its four engined, land type transport planes with 13 passengers and seven crew men aboard was many hours overdue at Manila—after it last was heard from only 100 miles from its destination. A search is under way for the plane. It was en route from Guam.

The army transport command announced meanwhile that sea and air search had been abandoned for 11 persons missing from an army Liberator type transport which crash landed at sea last Saturday, 460 miles northeast of Honolulu. Eight injured survivors and seven bodies were found at the scene by rescue craft. Among those killed, the ATC confirmed, were Mrs. Pollyana Smith Onnen, a WAC; Pfc. Lester J. Schmidt of Chicago, and S/Sgt. T. Cyrus Lindsey, Carbondale, Ill. Sgt. B. O. Opasik, Chicago, was among the missing. Mrs. Onnen had recently been married to John Onnen of Fort Dodge, Ia., a sailor.

PRAISE TRIBUNE ARMY EDITION

GIs from All States Read It in Germany

BY LARRY RUE
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

PARIS, Nov. 6—The weekly Chicago Overseas TRIBUNE now is appearing in all parts of the American zone of occupation in Germany and Austria. It appears from four days to a week after the plastic plates are stamped out in Chicago and air mailed to the printing plant in Bremerhaven.

So enthusiastic has been the response, not only from Chicagoans and middle westerners, but from soldiers from every state, that the 25,000 copies being distributed thru the Red Cross fall by far to meet the demand.

Carl Holgren of Long Island, N. Y., director of purchase and procurement for the Red Cross in the European theater, said today, "The paper is being distributed regularly, and every place they are yelling for more."

This was confirmed by Clifford Johnson of Boston, deputy director at Frankfurt, and supply officers at Berlin, Mannheim, Munich, Nuernberg, and Bebra-Cassel ARC supply depots.

"Look Forward to It"

Harry R. Ratliff, of San Antonio, Tex., said, "We are trying to make economical distribution in Berlin."

Curt Stern, of Cincinnati, O., who parcels out 6,000 copies in the Bebra-Cassel area, said, "Everybody likes to read it. The soldiers look forward to every issue."

In the Bremen enclave, where the Overseas Tribune has been circulating since the first run of the May 16 number, it has become a habit among the officers and men of all units—the Bremen port command, 17th port, 29th division, naval personnel, and others.

Maj. Charles V. E. Lambe, of Chicago, of the 17th port, said:

"It's the greatest service any newspaper in America has given to readers in the army, but it's getting so popular with every one else that a lot of Chicagoans don't get their copy."

"Good as Furlough Home"

Sgt. A. R. Marcotte, 5511 Maryland av., Chicago, said, "When I first saw the Overseas TRIBUNE, it was almost as good as a furlough home. Soon I'll be reading the real Chicago edition hot off the press."

Sgt. Edward Barry, who hopes to be home to hang up his Christmas stocking, said, "It's a treat we didn't expect."

Finns Will Try 8 Leaders for War on Russia

HELSINKI, Finland, Nov. 6 (AP)—Eight Finnish war time leaders, including former President Risto Ryti, were arrested today and charged with responsibility for Finland's war with Russia at the side of Germany, it was announced today.

Risto Ryti

Others arrested and charged were former Prime Minister J. V. Rangell and Edvin Linkomies; Vaino Tanner, former minister of finance and head of the Social Democratic party; former Foreign Minister Henrik Ramsay; T. M. Kivimaeki, former Finnish minister to Berlin; Antti Kukkonen, former minister of education, and Tycko Reinikka, former minister of finance.

Expect Trials Next Week

Trials probably will be conducted next week before a peoples court composed mostly of laymen. Parliament recently passed a law creating the court.

Two other prominent Finns, Gen. Rudolf Wallden and former Foreign Minister Rolf Witting, also were named as responsible. Wallden is critically ill and was not placed under arrest. Witting is dead.

Tanner, as the dominant political leader of the time, was accused of failing to take advantage of an offer by Britain and the United States to mediate in the fall of 1941.

'Ignored United States Offer'

In another section of the indictment Tanner, along with Ramsay, Ryti, Linkomies, Wallden, and Reinikka, was charged with ignoring a similar United States offer in March, 1943. The same six also were held responsible for failing to carry thru "obvious peace inclinations in Finland" in the spring of 1944.

Concerning Finland's agreement with Germany, in 1944, to permit Nazi troops to enter all of southern Finland, the indictment said Ramsay, Ryti, Linkomies, Wallden, and Reinikka all were responsible.

Red Menu in Berlin Today: Caviar, Vodka

BY HENRY WALES
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

BERLIN, Germany, Nov. 6—Tomorrow, 28th anniversary of the "October revolution," the Red army celebrates the victory over Germany in World War II., as exemplified by the capture of Berlin. Marshal Zhukov is tossing a gigantic party for the highest American, British, and French officers. German carpenters, commandeered from repairing shattered houses, tonight are putting the finishing touches on a mahogany buffet 150 feet long, where the hors d'oeuvres will be served.

There will be fresh lobsters and oysters flown in from Holland, caviar from Astrakhan, and sturgeon from the Caspian sea, while a squad of pastry cooks, working night and day, is baking almond cakes, cream puffs, and chocolate eclairs.

Vodka and Wine Galore

The bar will serve Bordeaux, Burgundy, Rhine, and Moselle wines, also Tokay and Isti Spumante, and 13 different brands of French champagne. The vodka will be flanked by 18 varieties of liqueurs.

On Monday the Red army will stage a mammoth victory parade along Unter den Linden and thru the Tiergarten past a war memorial which German stone masons are working around the clock to finish.

Change in Calendar

The Russians explain why the October revolution anniversary is celebrated in November—the Czarist regime used the Julian calendar, and the revolt occurred on Oct. 25 by that reckoning. Lenin introduced the Gregorian calendar, which is 13 days later, making Oct. 25 fall on Nov. 7.

[Reds will have atomic energy, too, says Foreign Commissar Molotov. Story on page 11.]

PEARL HARBOR'S CHIEFS NOT TOLD, HOUSE LEARNS

Records Are Gone; Senators Fight Over Gag

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

Washington, D. C., Nov. 6—Destruction of radio monitoring station records which showed the interception on Dec. 5, 1941, of a Japanese code message declaring a state of war with the United States, was revealed to the senate today by Sen. Brewster [R., Me.], a member of the joint congressional Pearl Harbor investigating committee.

Brewster said he had been balked by the committee's gag tactics in an attempt to solve the mystery of why these records, revealing that Washington knew of the contemplated Japanese attack two days in advance, were missing.

"Proof" Is Offered

In refutation of the claim of Chairman Barkley [D., Ky.] that there was no proof that official records were missing or destroyed, Brewster produced a memorandum from Committee Counsel William D. Mitchell, former attorney general.

"This memorandum contains testimony of a witness, whose name I shall withhold, but which is available to the senate," said Brewster, "respecting the absence of records of monitoring stations which had been alerted to catch the 'winds execute' message [Jap code for declaration of war against the United States].

"Logs All Destroyed"

"It is testified that the logs of all four navy monitoring stations in the United States have been destroyed. The Cheltenham's logs were destroyed when that station was moved to Chatham. The Winter Harbor log was destroyed to make filing room. The witness could not say why the other two logs were destroyed, but that a search for the logs had been made in November or December, 1943, and again in the spring of 1944, and the logs were then gone.

"I want to know whether only these records were destroyed or whether it was the general practice. Under the committee rules, I cannot find out."

Brooks Is Aroused

Aroused by this disclosure, Sen. Brooks [R., Ill.] called upon the four Republican members of the 10 man investigating group to resign if the Democratic majority did not alter its gag rules which prevent individual committee members from examining government records.

Another stirring development in the congressional tempest over the Pearl Harbor inquiry was a charge

Translated Enemy Notes Read to Legislators

BY WILLARD EDWARDS
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

Washington, D. C., Nov. 6—The "top secret" contents of a score of decoded Japanese messages prior to the Pearl Harbor attack were divulged to congress today by Rep. Gearhart (R., Cal.).

The code-cracking skill of American intelligence, Gearhart said, revealed to high Washington authorities that Japan had declared a state of war with the United States on Dec. 5, two days before the bombs dropped on our fleet at dawn, Dec. 7, 1941.

Month of Messages

For more than a month, beginning Nov. 5, before the attack, the translations of the coded communications between Tokyo and the Japanese emissaries in Washington, Berlin, and Honolulu made the same high Washington authorities aware of the unmistakably hostile intentions of Japan within a short period, the Californian, a member of the joint congressional Pearl Harbor investigating committee noted.

On Nov. 30 a code message from Tokyo to Berlin, translated on Dec. 1 in Washington, stated that negotiations with Washington stood "ruptured and broken" and that "there was extreme danger that war may come sooner than any one dreams." Berlin was advised to inform Rome but to maintain "the most absolute secrecy."

"Purposefully Withheld"

None of this information was transmitted by Washington to the commanding officers at Pearl Harbor, Gearhart noted, and the conclusion was inevitable that it was purposefully withheld from them so that the Japanese attack might not be prevented.

"If Adm. Kimmel and Gen. Short had been advised of the contents of these messages, even up to two hours before the attack, they would have had sufficient time to have thrown the Japanese planes back into the sea," he told the house. "Three thousand American lives would have been saved and our fleet rescued from the most tragic disaster in American history."

Final Jap Message

The final Japanese message decoded by American intelligence was sent on Dec. 6, Gearhart said.

"It was the answer to Secretary Hull's ultimatum," he told the house. "It was an insulting message to the United States. It came in 14 installments. As fast as it arrived we decoded it. We decoded it faster than the Japanese did.

"Everybody in Washington in a position of authority knew that Japan was breaking off peace negotiations with the

BRITAIN MAY CUT OFF LORD NELSON'S HEIRS; $2,800,000 PAID OUT

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

LONDON, Nov. 6—Hugh Dalton, chancellor of the exchequer, said in commons today he has been looking into annuity payments to descendants of the brother of Lord Nelson. The British treasury has paid $2,800,000 to the family and brother of the hero of the Battle of Trafalgar since 1806.

"I think it's high time the present arrangement is reconsidered," said Dalton.

H. Wilson Harris, Independent commons member, hinted that Nelson in his dying breath commended his country's generosity to some one other than his brother, the Rt. Rev. William Nelson, to whom the title and annuity passed. The Dictionary of National Biography says Nelson was said to have left Lady Hamilton, a friend, and their daughter, as a "legacy to my country."

The present Lord Nelson, a descendant of the admiral's brother, succeeded to the title in 1913 and has drawn $640,000 so far. He lives a secluded life at Trafalgar House in Salisbury. It was urged in commons that this drain on the treasury be stopped since the present Nelson is childless.

United States by the time the 13th instalment arrived. The 14th instalment came in the early hours of Sunday, Dec. 7. There were still many, many hours before the first bomb was to fall. It contained the 'give-away' message from Japan, instructing Nomura and Kurusu to present it at the White House at 1 p. m. in Washington, which was dawn at Pearl Harbor, the time for a surprise air attack, as every military authority knows.

"Every Strategist" Agrees

"Every strategist interpreted that only one way—that the first bombs would fall on Hawaii about 7 a. m. This information was on the desks of many high authorities, but Gen. Marshall waited until noon Sunday to write a message about it to Adm. Kimmel and Gen. Short at Pearl Harbor. Then he sent it, not by telephone, not by short-wave radio, but by commercial telegram.

"It was received 22 minutes before the attack started, but was not decoded and delivered until two hours later, when most of our fleet was lying in the mud in the harbor."

Gearhart said he obtained the texts of the decoded messages from "the top secret report made by the war department to the secretary of war." The contents of the messages have been suppressed for four years and President Truman, in an order later modified, attempted to ban the investigating committee from access to them.

Beginning of Messages

The series of decoded Japanese messages revealed by Gearhart to the house began on Nov. 5, 1941, a month and two days before the Pearl Harbor attack. Decoding by American intelligence took several days in some instances, but the information contained in them was all available to the highest authorities in Washington, he noted, in ample time to have taken preparations to guard the fleet.

On Nov. 5, he said, the Japanese sent out a notice to their diplomatic corps to listen attentively to the news broadcasts that came from Japan. They were advised that there would some day be revealed what Japanese intentions were in reference to war or peace in the Pacific.

"Wind" Code Message

Then came a "wind code message," Gearhart continued, explaining that war declarations against various nations would be conveyed in wind and weather terms. On Dec. 4, repeated on Dec. 5, came the "winds activate" or "winds execute" message. It was "east wind rain," meaning war with the United States. "East wind, cloudy" would have meant war with Russia. There were similar phrases for war with England and the Dutch which were sent but which Gearhart did not give to the house. The "east wind, cloudy" code referring to Russia was not sent.

"That told the story to Washington, as well as it told the Japanese, that there would be war with the United States, with England, with the Dutch East Indies, and peace with Russia," Gearhart declared. "That is the one that there has been a studied effort to destroy altho it had been received all over the world, in Budapest, Australia, New Zealand, and everywhere else."

List of Messages

Gearhart then recited the following list of Japanese code messages, with the dates they were sent to Japanese agents in the various capitals and the dates on which United States cryptographers completed translations.

Nov. 5, translated Nov. 5—Tokyo to Washington. Setting in "utmost secrecy" Nov. 25 as the deadline for signing the agreement [with the United States] and urging renewed effort upon Japanese envoys, Nomura and Kurusu.

[On this date, Gearhart noted, the army board report stated that the chief of naval operations and the army chief of staff wrote President Roosevelt, pleading that no ultimatum be sent to Japan because the United States was "not ready."]

Nov. 14, translated Nov. 26—Tokyo to Hong Kong. Stating that should United States-Japanese negotiations collapse, Japan would destroy British and American power in China.

Tokyo to Washington

Nov. 16, translated Nov. 17—Tokyo to Washington. Referring to the impossibility of changing the deadline of Nov. 25 and instructing envoys to press negotiations with the United States.

Nov. 18, translated Dec. 6—Kita, Honolulu, to Tokyo. Bringing Tokyo up to date on warships in Pearl Harbor and giving the course of eight destroyers leaving the harbor.

Nov. 19, translated Nov. 20—Tokyo to Washington. Advises Jap envoys to present "the proposals" and that "if the United States' consent to this cannot be secured, negotiations will have to be broken off."

An "Absolute Deadline"

Nov. 22, translated Nov. 22. Tokyo to Washington. Extends the time for signing the agreement from Nov. 25 to Nov. 29. "Latter is absolute deadline. After that things are automatically going to happen."

Nov. 26, translated Nov. 28. Nomura and Kurusu to Tokyo. Advising that hardly any possibility of United States consideration of "proposal in toto" is possible. "If the situation remains tense, as it is, negotiations will inevitably be ruptured, if indeed they may not already be called so. Our failure and humiliation is complete."

Nov. 26, translated Nov. 26. Tokyo to Washington. "Situation is momentarily becoming more tense and telegrams take too long." Contains code for future telephone conversations.

Reports No Progress

Nov. 26, translated Nov. 26. Conversation between Kurusu and Yamamoto, Kurusu stating United States will not yield; that he could make no progress.

Nov. 26, translated Nov. 29. Nomura to Tokyo. "There is great danger that responsibility for rupture of negotiations will be cast upon Japan" and suggesting plan to avoid this.

Nov. 28, translated Nov. 28. Tokyo to Washington. Stating that in spite of ambassadors' super-human efforts, United States has "presented a humiliating proposal and Japan cannot use it as a basic for negotiations;" therefore answer will be sent ambassadors in two or three days, after which negotiations will be de facto ruptured. Ambassadors are told not to give impression negotiations are broken off.

On Ship Movements

Nov. 29, translated Dec. 5. Tokyo to Honolulu. "We have been receiving reports from you on ship movements, but in the future will you also report even when there are no movements."

Nov. 29, translated Nov. 30, Tokyo to Washington. Instructing ambassadors to make one more attempt and giving line of approach.

Nov. 30, translated Dec. 1. Tokyo to Berlin. Advising Japan's adherence to tri-partite alliance and that United States on 26th made insulting proposal, in effect demanding Japan not give assistance to Germany and Italy in accordance with alliance. "This clause alone, let alone others, makes it impossible to find any basis in the American proposal for negotiations" and that United States in collusion with the allied nations "has decided to regard Japan, along with Germany and Italy, as an enemy."

"Ruptured and Broken"

Nov. 30, translated Dec. 1. Tokyo to Berlin. Stating negotiations with Washington "now stand ruptured and broken" and to give Hitler and Ribbentrop a summary of the developments: That England and the United States have taken a provocative attitude, were planning to move forces into East Asia, which would require counter measures by Japan; that there was extreme danger that war might suddenly break out, and that "the time of the breaking out of this war may come sooner than any one dreams."

This message was to be sent to Rome and to be held "in the most absolute secrecy."

REP. GEARHART

RECORDS OF JAP MESSAGES GONE, SENATE HEARS

in the house by Rep. Keefe [R., Wis.], a committee member, that a Capt. Kramer of the navy was confined to a psychopathic ward in a Bethesda, Md., hospital, presumably because he had been "browbeaten" into mental ill health by officers seeking to make him change his testimony concerning pre-Pearl Harbor events.

Old Warning Recalled

Kramer is said to be the Lt. Comdr. Kramer who gave a warning memorandum to the late Navy Secretary Knox in the early hours of Dec. 7. Washington was then in possession of the intercepted Japanese message instructing envoys Nomura and Kurusu to present the Jap answer to the United States ultimatum at the White House at 1 p. m. Washington time.

Kramer pointed out that this was sunrise over Honolulu and night at Manila. Sunrise would be the moment for air attack. The hour of presenting the dispatch indicated an air attack at Pearl Harbor. Knox got this warning a little over two hours before the bombs fell. This was adequate time, in the opinion of witnesses, before the army board of inquiry, to have prepared for the Jap attack.

Note Is Too Late

Gen. Short and Adm. Kimmel at Pearl Harbor, however, received no word of this development until it was too late, Keefe noted.

"The testimony of Capt. Kramer was very vital and important," Keefe told the house. "He was badgered and beset by a subsequent effort to break down his testimony, which he had given under oath, and which was clear as a bell at a time when his mind was as clear as any man's could possibly be."

Keefe said he and Rep. Gearhart [R., Cal.], another committee member, had sought to interview Capt. Kramer but had been denied permission.

Tyler Kent Case

Rep. Short [R., Mo.] expressed wonder that Kramer had "only been locked up, not liquidated" and asked if he was "gettting the same sort of treatment Tyler Kent is getting in England. Kent, former attache of the American embassy in London, and wanted by the committee as a witness, is being detained beyond the expiration of his sentence for violation of the British war secrets act. He is sought for questioning about voluminous prewar correspondence between Prime Minister Churchill and the late Mr. Roosevelt.

Rep. Church [R., Ill.] assured the house that "at the proper time when Kramer's relationship with the navy has terminated he will be available to tell the committee that he was pressed into the psychopathic hospital because he insisted on telling the truth rather than sign a letter or affidavit."

Described as Floridan

The navy identified Kramer as Capt. Alwin D. Kramer of Miami, Fla. It denied that Kramer is suffering from a mental ailment or is under restraint. Kramer is ill, navy spokesmen said, but declined to specify further. No requests have been made by the committee to question him, but he will be available "if his health permits," it was stated.

Brewster and Sen. Lucas [D., Ill.], also a committee member, engaged in an altercation over examination of Mr. Roosevelt's private papers, which are in the possession of Miss Grace Tully, a personal secretary to the late President. The papers are supposed to be in Washington.

210 Bales of Them

Lucas said there were 210 bales of these papers and that they were not indexed. It would take six years to examine them for matters pertinent to Pearl Harbor, he said.

"Six years would not be too long if the American people were eventually to get the truth," remarked Sen. Ferguson [R., Mich.].

"I say to the minority members," interjected Sen. Brooks, "that if you are refused authority to go into the safes and vaults and thru the doors where the evidence is hidden, or to interview witnesses, my recommendation is that you resign from the committee and tell it to run itself in its own way. Do not waste any more time on Pearl Harbor. Let the majority bring out a report and, if it is not satisfactory, perhaps it will get some one to change his testimony again.

Stimson Action Discussed

In both houses, reference was made to the action of War Secretary Stimson in sending Maj. [now Col.] Henry C. Claussen around the world to interview witnesses who had given their stories under oath before the army board of inquiry. Brewster charged that Claussen's mission was to get officers to change their testimony.

Keefe said that Col. Bratton, "a key witness," had been "browbeaten" by Claussen into signing an affidavit in which he changed his testimony. Brewster last week submitted to the senate an affidavit in which Maj. Gen. Sherman Miles, chief of army intelligence at the time of Pearl Harbor, admitted instructions to suppress essential details.

Navy Also Accused

Keefe charged that the navy also sent Adm. H. K. Hewitt on a similar mission to induce a change in the testimony of navy officers.

"The evidence is abundant," agreed Gearhart, "that these two officers, Claussen and Hewitt, did what they could to get people to change their stories. And now they slam the door in our faces when we ask the privilege of inspecting the files.

"There is a missing file, No. 7003, which was the repository of documents concerning the 'wind activate' and 'wind execute' messages. It is strange, this effort to destroy all evidence about 'wind activate' having arrived in Washington on Dec. 5, 1941! A tremendous effort has been made to break down the testimony of all who knew about it."

WINTER SNOWS FORCE HALT IN HUNT FOR BOY, 3

Downieville, Cal., Nov. 7 [Wednesday]—(AP)—As the first snows of winter fell over the rocky terrain of this high Sierra mining community search for 3 year old Dickie tum Suden, missing since last Thursday, was called off last night.

Joseph tum Suden, gold mine operator and father of the boy, in a statement, announced that army troops are being withdrawn.

"It was agreed that further use of troops and forest service men would be futile due to the fact that the entire area within which the boy could have reasonably been expected to be found has been thoroly covered," the statement read.

EVIDENCE POINTS TO TOJO'S HAND IN PEARL HARBOR

TOKYO, Nov. 6 (AP)—Allied headquarters announced today it had obtained proof that Japanese Pearl Harbor premier, Hideki Tojo, had failed to keep the Nipponese diplomatic staff in Washington, D. C., advised of all developments. The information was obtained in the huge volume of evidence which headquarters is preparing for Tojo's war criminal trial.

Trials of Tojo and other prominent Japanese have been delayed pending further instructions from Washington on important details of the cases.

Special Envoy Called 'Plant'

The full evidence against Tojo was not disclosed, but a well informed source said it corroborated the recent statement of Kichisaburo Nomura, Japanese ambassador to the United States at the time of Pearl Harbor, that he had not been informed of plans for the Pearl Harbor attack. Nomura has not been jailed.

One source termed Saburo Kurusu, special Japanese envoy to the United States at that time, "nothing but a plant" to talk peace while Tojo planned war. Whether Kurusu accepted the role willingly or unwillingly was not explained.

Free 507 Political Prisoners

The Japanese government has released 507 political prisoners and dismissed more than 5,800 Japanese police and surveillance personnel in compliance with a directive from Gen. MacArthur, Brig. Gen. Elliot R. Thorpe, his chief of civil intelligence, said.

The government also has taken a wide variety of other measures to remove restrictions on political, civil, and religious liberties. Thorpe listed 33 specific laws, ordinances, and regulations abrogated under the directive.

"We have started off well but we must not expect to accomplish our aims overnight," Thorpe said. "It will take considerable time."

BRITONS STILL SUPPRESS NEWS AS WAR SECRET

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

LONDON, Nov. 6—Altho censorship of the press has ended here, some government departments still cling to war time regulations in the suppression of news, it was revealed today.

Fuels Minister Emmanuel Shinwell refused, in the house of commons, to disclose the total stocks of gasoline in Britain. To do so, he said, would be to give particulars of military requirements.

In a similar instance an official of the London passenger transport board declined to tell how many buses are operating in the London streets. He explained the transport board is still responsible to the ministry of war transport, which has not lifted the war time ban on the release of such information.

BRITISH SAY KENT TO BE DEPORTED WITHIN FEW DAYS

Code Clerk's Protest Sent to U.S.

BY WILLIAM FULTON

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

LONDON, Nov. 6—The state department in Washington, D. C. has been officially notified of the unprecedented lengthy detention of Tyler Kent, the American citizen who was secretly convicted and imprisoned by the British in 1940, before American entry into the war.

Kent wrote to officials of the United States embassy here, where he was employed as code clerk, from his cell in musty old Brixton prison, claiming he is being held illegally since his sentence, with time off for good behavior, was up a month ago, and he is still behind bars.

In a Few Days, British Say

The embassy relayed his complaint to Washington. Today the British authorities sent word to the American embassy that Kent would be deported in a few days. According to the British, the prisoner has been kept here because the dock strike held up loading of the ship on which his passage was booked. The authorities have never revealed the name of that ship, and now say they may put him on another.

Kent was brought here from the Isle of Wight, where he served most of his sentence.

Was Spirited Away

The Kent case is shrouded in mystery. It has been claimed in congress that he was about to reveal that the late President Roosevelt had pledged to former Prime Minister Churchill that the United States would enter the war against Germany, when he was spirited away.

The British court testimony has never been revealed, but it has been charged that Kent decoded messages which found their way into diplomatic channels here before Italy jumped into the war, and from there were transmitted to Germany.

HOLD MEMORIAL SERVICES FOR DEWEY IN SAIGON

BY ALFRED WAGG

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

SAIGON, Indo-China, Nov. 5 [Delayed]—Memorial services for Lt. Col. A. Peter Dewey, who was killed by Annamites on Sept. 26, were held here today in a Protestant church by Maj. Stanley Mair of Aberdeen, Scotland, chaplain of 20th Indian division.

The son of Charles S. Dewey, former Republican congressman from Chicago, Col. Dewey, 28, was senior American officer for the office of strategic services [OSS] in Saigon. His body has not been recovered altho a reward has been offered.

British and American flags in Saigon were at half staff but not the French. A spokesman said this was because the French do not consider that Col. Dewey had diplomatic status.

The church was filled to overflowing with military and civilian representatives of the United States, Britain, France, and China. Among the Americans was Capt. Frank White of Rockford, Ill., United States army observer here.

BRITISH PUBLIC FINDS CLOTHES HARDER TO GET

Coupons Extended Over Longer Period

BY E. R. NODERER
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

LONDON, Nov. 6—Things will be better by and by, the British Labor government promises, and everybody hopes they will.

Meanwhile, one thing which definitely is not better is the clothing situation. During the war it usually was possible to buy the clothing to which coupons entitled the public, but the shelves of most shops nowadays are bare.

One member of The Tribune's London staff went to 18 stores before being able to buy a pair of gray flannel trousers. Another member's wife had a similar experience trying to buy a suit for her small son. Still another found only three dress lengths of silk material in one of Britain's largest department stores.

Stretch Period of Coupons

Soon after the Laborites assumed power, Stafford Cripps, president of the board of trade, broke the grim news that 24 clothing coupons issued for a six month period would have to be stretched over eight months. The number required for individual items remains the same.

One pair of full fashioned women's hose takes three coupons, which means if a woman bought eight pairs of hose in eight months she couldn't buy anything else—not even a handkerchief. This isn't much of a problem, however, because full fashioned hose is as rare as atomic bombs.

A woman's woolen dress requires 11 coupons, a slip 6, panties 2, corset 3, shoes 7, gloves 2, coat 18. Thus, these articles and stockings, which more or less form a complete outfit, require 52 coupons or four more than the ration for 16 months.

This is only one outfit, with no allowance for replacements for wear and tear. Some items, such as a coat, aren't needed frequently, but most of those named are.

Household Linen Rationed

Towels, sheets, and household linen of all types must come from the clothing ration and many mothers are obliged to sacrifice coupons for growing children.

Men don't fare any better. Ready made garments are almost nonexistent, and tailors want four to six months to make a suit. The government ordered ready made garment manufacturers to cancel civilian orders and for the next six months produce only suits for demobilized service men.

A man's suit requires 26 coupons and since the allowance is 24 for eight months, it's necessary to wait until the second period to have enough even to start looking for a suit. Men's shoes require nine coupons and a shirt five, or seven with two collars. This enables men to buy three with detachable collars every eight months, leaving three coupons which could be used for three neckties and that would be the end of that for another eight months. That is what keeps housewives so busy turning collars and cuffs in this country.

Hats Are Unrationed

Undershirts and shorts require four coupons each, woolen socks two, and an overcoat 18, all out of the 24 coupons in eight months. There's one ray of sunshine. Men can buy all the hats they want—they're unrationed.

There are reported to be thousands of yards of unused parachute silk in Britain, which manufacturers would like to make into women's underwear and other clothing, but so far the Textile Surplus corporation has been hanging on to it. Blankets and all sorts of needed materials also are said to be choking government warehouses, still apparently earmarked for the military. A few leather jerkins and a small quantity of green battledress cloth dyed for civilian wear is all that's been released so far, wholesalers say.

The government has three answers for the shortages: Lack of man power, needs of occupation troops, and requirements for the relief of liberated countries. But none of these means much to mothers tramping from shop to shop, trying to get clothes for their children.

"Peace," the British are beginning to say, "is a terrible thing."

GERMAN TELLS OF 3 ATTEMPTS TO KILL HITLER

COPENHAGEN, Denmark, Nov. 6 (AP)—The bomb that injured Adolf Hitler on July 20, 1944, represented the third attempt on his life by a large group of Germany army officers, said a German lieutenant, who described himself as one of the few surviving conspirators.

Ewald Heinrich von Kleinst, son of a Pomeranian estate owner, told this story at Munich, Germany, to a correspondent of the Danish newspaper Velingike Tidende:

Outraged by Hitler's bungling strategy, some of the highest ranking German generals planned first to depose him, but decided on assassination when the military situation at Stalingrad became hopeless in 1943. They planned to seize control of the German home army. Sealed orders were issued for the transfer of command to the conspirators as soon as Hitler was out of the way.

First Attempt in 1943

The first attempt on Hitler's life was made in the spring of 1943, Von Kleinst said, when Hitler was flown from East Prussia to the center army group on the eastern front for a conference with Maj. Gen. Von Treschow, who subsequently was slated for trial for the third attempt on the fuehrer's life.

A Lt. Von Schlaberndorff, who was assigned to protect Hitler on the eastern front visit, planted in Hitler's plane a bomb timed to explode on the return trip, Von Kleinst continued. Something went wrong with the mechanism, and Hitler landed safely at his headquarters.

The conspirators tried again on Feb. 11, 1944. Von Kleinst said that he and Maj. Gen. Helmut Stieff from the organization section of the general staff were the principals. Stieff was one of the group of German officers convicted by a people's court in Berlin and hanged in August, 1944.

Aimed at Himmler, Too

This time the plan was to kill Hitler and Heinrich Himmler, Gestapo chief, at the same time to prevent Himmler, after Hitler's death, from throwing his SS [elite guard] forces against the German home army. The occasion was a demonstration of new uniforms that both of the intended victims were to attend.

Stieff was to be present in an official capacity and Von Kleinst said he was to be there as an officer who had had experience with the new uniforms. Each was to carry a brief case containing a bomb timed to explode four and a half seconds after a string attached to the fuse was pulled.

Von Kleinst said he and Stieff had agreed to sacrifice their lives to carry out the assassinations. However, Himmler failed to appear at the last moment and the attempt was put off until the following July, when a bomb in a brief case was exploded in Hitler's headquarters.

YANK PRISONERS MOCK JAPS AND KEEP HOPES HIGH

Forced to Work in Mine Christmas Day

(Another stirring instalment of "Men Who Wouldn't Die." The author, a Chicago army officer who was captured on Bataan, served as the American spokesman for 500 Yank prisoners who worked in a coal mine at Omuta, Japan. His story is based on the diary he kept during 40 months as a prisoner of war.)

BY MAJ. A. C. TISDELLE
as told to Carl Wiegman

[Copyright: 1945: By The Chicago Tribune]

The Japs succeeded in making our men slave in a coal mine, but they failed to break their spirit. We evaded their regulations in a hundred ways, mocked them behind their backs, and never for an instant let them think we had given up hope of victory.

As the camp's commanding officer I felt responsible for the welfare of all the prisoners, and sometimes believed the men carried their defiance to extremes. When disobedience or misbehavior caused the whole camp to suffer, I was opposed to it, and told the men so.

Communicate thru Orders

I was never permitted to talk to the whole camp except in the presence of Japanese officers, but managed to get in a few words at the morning rollcall and also was able to talk privately to small groups. We had a way of communicating thru written orders posted on the bulletin boards in each barracks. If my name was signed to an order, it meant that I would enforce it. If a Japanese name was on an order it meant I was not in sympathy with it but was warning the men not to get caught disobeying it. However, the Japs thought I placed a Jap name on an order to give it greater emphasis.

We also worked out a complete plan for disarming the Jap guards and seizing the camp to prevent a possible massacre of prisoners prior to the arrival of invading American troops. Only a few of the most level headed men were admitted to this plot, which, fortunately, we did not have to carry out. Among the carefully chosen plotters were Corp. John S. Kliss and Sgt. Philip Albert, both of Chicago.

Allowed to Send Cards

My diary mentions that on Oct. 26, 1943, 36 prisoners were permitted to send 25 word radio messages to the United States. We knew the Japs were simply using us to induce Americans to listen to their radio propaganda, but seized the opportunity nevertheless, hoping the messages would be heard. Three weeks later all of us were permitted to send home a 40 word postcard.

The Jap censors cut out such remarks as "I hope Uncle Samuel is improving." They also eliminated expressions like "Tell it to Sweeney" at the end of a sentence praising the Japs.

Instead of a personal radiogram, I drew up a message to Col. Robert R. McCormick, editor and publisher of THE TRIBUNE, listing the names of 13 Chicagoans in the camp and asking THE TRIBUNE to notify their families. The message was never received by THE TRIBUNE.

Work on Christmas Day

Christmas of 1943 fell on a Saturday, when the men had to work in the mine, but we celebrated the next day and got one of the rare good meals of our two years in Japan. Each man received a can of meat obtained by the Japs from Red Cross packages. Men with good work records were given an extra can. Lt. Uri, the Jap commander, gave us about $20 worth of phonograph records and the coal mine sent over 2,500 oranges, which helped to cure many cases of scurvy.

For our Christmas dinner each man got three buns instead of the customary rice. Each of us also received a spoonful of butter, one small fish, and soup containing a piece of meat about the size of a walnut. On the same day the Japs issued to our commissary 28 pounds of cocoa from Red Cross packages and a quarter of a pound of sugar per man.

Religious services, including carol singing, were conducted by Pvt. Denny, an ordained Baptist minister who was one of the prisoners.

Stage Holiday Show

In the evening of our Christmas we made a theater out of the mess hall by stringing blankets on a wire at one end to create a stage. There we put on a variety show and a dramatic production of Dickens' "Christmas Carol." The drama was written from memory and was rather garbled, but the men seemed to enjoy it.

Late in January a prisoner died of starvation in the Jap guardhouse. This man had been in trouble many times, both with the Japs and the American camp authorities, and to spare the feelings of his family his name is withheld. His hardships must have driven him out of his mind, for he committed the unforgiveable act of carrying tales to the Japs.

The next important entry in my diary is on Feb. 3, 1944, when Pvt. Joseph A. Garrison died of spinal meningitis. We feared an epidemic of the dread disease, but only one other man was stricken. Dr. Harold P. Proff loaded the second victim with sulfa drugs and nursed him back to health or what passed for health in our camp.

Receive 400 Letters from U. S.

On Feb. 9 the camp received 400 letters from the United States. Some men received 20 or 30 letters; others got none. I was among those who got none, so was in a position to sympathize with men who came to me, asking for an explanation of the uneven distribution. Trying to comfort them, I invented a story of how the Japs, with their usual inefficiency, probably arranged the letters in some peculiar order, and therefore the forgotten men would get letters in the next distribution. The story seemed to satisfy them.

Four days later the Japs provided excitement in camp by having us pose for a propaganda sound movie intended for consumption in the United States. This was one of the first hints that they were no longer cocksure of victory.

The Japs handed me a script in which I was supposed to say:

"We prisoners think the United States ought to make peace, because the United States had no reason to fight the war." Such a statement would have been treasonable in the first place and in the second place I didn't believe it, but for a little while I was nervous over the problem of what to say.

Fortunately, the Japs told me to speak without a script in my hand, and when the time came, I said: "All prisoners hope the United States will bring the war to a close. We are all anxious to come home. We want to see our families and friends and to enjoy American cooking again. We also want to hear American music again, such as the music of Jerome Kern, Vincent Youmans, George M. Cohan, and Francis Scott Key."

I put a little emphasis on Francis Scott Key, but the Japs did not catch the implication of the name and made no objection to my speech.

Every few weeks the Japs informed us gloatingly that the entire American fleet had been sunk We got used to it and had a stock answer.

"Did you hear that the entire American fleet has been sunk?" a Jap guard would inquire.

"O, is that so?" we would reply.

FULL JOB BILL DENOUNCED AS EMPTY PROMISE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

Washington, D. C., Nov. 6—The administration's so-called full employment bill was denounced in the house today as a measure that will increase unemployment and labor disputes by holding out false hopes of easy federal jobs.

The attack was made by Rep. Hoffman [R., Mich.] during a debate with Rep. Outland [D., Cal.] on the bill, which is still being considered by the house committee on expenditures.

The employment bill, which President Truman is seeking to force thru a reluctant congress, would authorize the President to estimate prospective and actual unemployment every year and recommend federal spending to create enough jobs to take up any slack.

Outland asserted full employment is a paramount objective in future prosperity and declared the government has an "obligation" to provide jobs if private enterprise cannot or will not provide them.

"Certainly every able man should be entitled to a job," retorted Hoffman, "but there is no lack of jobs at present."

The true purpose of the bill, Hoffman continued, is to "give the federal government increased opportunity for the exercise of arbitrary power."

MARCH SURVIVOR ATTRIBUTES LIFE TO 'BLIND LUCK'

Col. Curtis Beecher of the marine corps, who commanded the eastern defenses of Corregidor under Gen. Wainwright before the Japs took the island fortress, said yesterday that "blind luck" permitted him to live thru the Bataan death march and four years in Jap prison camps with only an almost cured case of beri-beri.

Col. Beecher visited his father, Bryant L. Beecher, 5302 Thomas st., between trains to Washington, D. C. His wife will remain in Chicago until he rejoins her.

Two prison ships in which he and 1,600 other marines were being transferred to Japan were sunk and the survivors machine gunned.

LABOR-INDUSTRY PARLEY GIVES IN ON LEWIS FIGHT

Gets Committee Post Despite Murray

BY THOMAS FURLONG

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

Washington, D. C., Nov. 6—After a heated argument between John L. Lewis, head of the United Mine Workers, and CIO President Philip Murray, the national labor-management conference on devising a method of preventing industrial strife today reached an agreement on its organizational setup that gave Lewis a position on the powerful executive committee.

Lewis forced a change in the original plan of the rules committee, which limited labor membership on the committee to four delegates. Lewis served notice he wanted one of the four positions on the original committee for his union. Murray and other CIO delegates opposed giving membership on the committee to both Lewis and T. C. Cashen, who represents the independent railroad brotherhoods. As a result, the rules committee decided to double the membership of the executive body, making room for both Lewis and Cashen and increasing the representation of the CIO and AFL.

Victory for Lewis

The compromise plan, which was accepted by the CIO, was regarded as a signal victory for Lewis, who is rated as probably the most influential labor delegate participating in the conference. The CIO delegates opposed giving Lewis and Cashen membership in the original committee on the grounds it would give the rival American Federation of Labor disproportionate representation. Altho representing independent unions at the conference, Cashen is an officer of the switchmen's union which is an AFL affiliate. Lewis' union is expected soon to rejoin the AFL fold.

As completed, the executive committee consists of three AFL members, three CIO members, Lewis, Cashen, and eight management delegates. Murray and William Green, president of the AFL, are both members. The committee will sift all conference business and have power to include new subject matter in the agenda.

In the skirmishing that preceded the final agreement, Lewis traded acrimonious words with Murray, his former close associate who is now chief of the CIO.

Murray Charges "Blitz"

When Lewis first raised the question of the make-up of the executive committee Murray took the floor to say he had been informed that there was underway "a veritable blitz to put John Lewis on the committee." He also disclosed that A. F. Whitney, president of the brotherhood of railroad trainmen, had written to President Truman demanding representation at the conference. Murray questioned the eligibility of Cashen to represent the railroad unions in view of Whitney's stand.

Green immediately arose to defend Cashen, asserting that Whitney had declined earlier to be represented at the conference. He also supported Lewis' right to representation.

Lewis then took the floor to reply to Murray. Referring to himself in the third person, he said:

"Mr. Lewis doesn't give a tinker's malediction whether he is on any committee. But it does make a difference whether the mine workers are represented."

Comments Called "Absurd"

Turning to face Murray, Lewis added: "I represent as many human beings that work for a living as any man in this room and I believe they have the right to representation. We were invited to participate in this conference. Certainly we are not to be denied the privileges that are accorded to other labor organizations that are here. Mr. Murray's comments are absurd in the extreme. Why he raises such questions I do not know. Furthermore, I do not like the despicable German terminology that Mr. Murray uses, in which he implies that Hitler-like methods are being used here."

To this outburst, Murray turned a soft answer. "I did not mean to imply that Hitler-like methods were being used," he said. "Nor would I do anything to injure the United Mine Workers for which I have high regard. I don't think Mr. Lewis is justified in the construction he puts on my remarks. Furthermore, I am prepared to agree to sending back the report to committee with instructions that Mr. Lewis objections be given due consideration."

Fear AFL Dominance

Later, Murray explained to reporters he didn't object to Lewis' appointment to the executive committee but he didn't want the CIO's rivals to pack the group which is the real working unit of the conference.

Murray said he had been asked by Whitney to bring the question of Cashen's eligibility up on the floor. This request was made in a telegram received today by Murray.

The agreement on an enlarged executive committee removed the last stumbling block to the organization of the conference. Naming of members for other committees today was completed without serious disagreements.

The CIO representatives left no doubt that they will press for the conference to take up direct discussion of prices and wages. Altho the agenda unanimously approved today by the conference declares its primary purpose to be the development of methods to minimize industrial strife, the question of wages and prices was not excluded.

End of Windsor Strike Seen; Weary Pickets Losing Zeal

Tension Lessens

WINDSOR, Ont., Nov. 6 [Special]—Hopes for a settlement within 24 hours of the 8 week old strike at the Ford Motor company of Canada plant here were expressed tonight by Humphrey Mitchell, Canada's minister of labor, after a conference with leaders of the striking union, the CIO United Automobile Workers.

Mitchell, who flew here yesterday from Ottawa after 15,000 pickets had commandeered hundreds of automobiles for a barricade in front of the struck plant, said he will meet tomorrow morning with Ford representatives. He will discuss, he said, "the proposal worked out this afternoon," but he declined to reveal details of the proposal. He will try to bring union and company representatives together tomorrow afternoon, he added.

20,000 Workers Idle

Tension on the picket line lessened today. More than 20,000 workers are idle in the city, 12,000 of them Ford employes, and other employes of 23 industrial plants where sympathy strikes were voted Sunday.

No effective steps were taken to rescue seized private automobiles and city buses from the strikers' barricade. Leslie Blackwell, Ontario's attorney general, threatened to use troops to free the commandeered cars and referred to the action of the strikers as "insurrection," but took no action.

George Burt, regional director of the UAW-CIO, said tonight that a union policy committee will discuss removal of the barricade.

Police Stay in Barracks

Detachments of royal Canadian mounted and provincial police, whose arrival here Sunday touched off the wave of sympathy strikes leading to the present crisis, remained in barracks thruout the day.

They were sent to Windsor after city police were repelled Friday in an effort to escort 35 plant protection workers into the plant. The union had refused to permit more than five such workers to enter the plant daily.

Union demands for recognition, and a guaranteed annual minimum wage are among the issues of the strike.

3,000 Stick to Line

BY CARL WIEGMAN

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

WINDSOR, Ont., Nov. 6—Three thousand CIO strikers, sobered by realization that they were flouting the laws of their country, plodded in weary circles today at the huge plant of the Ford Motor Company of Canada here.

There was none of the carnival spirit which marked the strikers' behavior yesterday, when they gleefully confiscated hundreds of passing motor cars and trucks, and jammed them into an eight block barricade at the plant.

Leaders Keep Discipline

Union leaders maintained discipline today while cooler heads among the strikers expressed disapproval of the car confiscation tactics.

More than 150 automobile owners have filed formal complaints with the city police that their cars were stolen by the strikers. Police said the air was let out of the tires on many cars and the radiators drained to make them unusable.

The largest group of pickets, nearly 1,000, paraded today in a square in front of the plant's main office, where a soiled Union Jack fluttered from a tall staff. In the center of the square was an automobile equipped with a loud speaker, thru which union leaders harangued the crowd.

The pep talks left the strikers glum. They disregarded pleas to join in a song, "Solidarity forever, the union makes us strong," to the tune of "Glory, Glory, Halleluah," which a union chief sang as a solo.

The leaders then shouted warnings that violence was likely to occur at any minute.

Warns of Tear Gas

Another lectured on what to do if the police attempted to use tear gas in breaking up the blockade.

At a corner of the square, the strikers took over the building of the Air Cadet League of Canada, where they established an office and first aid station. Tacked on a union of bulletin board side outside the office was a picture of Joseph Stalin.

Strikers insisted that only a minority of the union was composed of Communists, and that the strike was called in desperation after four efforts at conciliation failed.

UNIONS REJECT RAILROAD PLAN TO END STRIKE

Springfield, Ill., Nov. 6 (AP)—Efforts of the Illinois Commerce Commission to settle a strike that has paralyzed operations of the Toledo, Peoria, and Western railroad failed today when the unions rejected an arbitration plan.

At a conference called by the commission, representatives of the railroad and 13 railroad brotherhoods remained at odds on steps to settle the dispute, which began after the federal government relinquished control of the railroad Oct. 1.

Union spokesmen refused to agree to a proposal of George P. McNear, railroad president, that a three man arbitration board be named. Instead, the unions submitted a plan providing among other things all employes working during the period of federal operation be retained.

McNear's proposal had excepted from arbitration the rehiring of 24 former employes of the road whom McNear accused of acts of violence.

MINERS RESUME WORK

Murphysboro, Ill., Nov. 6 (AP)—Two hundred fifty strip miners at the Pyramid Coal company, north of here, who struck over objections to reemployment of two returning veterans, returned to work today with the ex-service men.

Charles Martin, district official of the United Mine Workers of America, said the "trouble resulted principally from the failure of a selective official at Herrin to explain clearly the law regarding the placing of veterans on the jobs they left to enter service." The veterans are Guy Lintrip, wounded overseas, and John Sprague, who fought in the Italian campaign. Both live in Cambria.

AWAIT HIGGINS DECISION

New Orleans, La., Nov. 6 (AP)—Andrew J. Higgins today said he will have "an important announcement to make about Friday" on the future of his three closed boat building plants here.

Higgins closed the plants Thursday while 2,000 AFL union employes were striking in protest against his failure to negotiate a new contract. His statement led to speculation over whether he might reconsider his announced intention of liquidating the company, Higgins Industries, Inc.

CIO PICKETING ENDS

Detroit, Mich., Nov. 6 [Special]—Picketing at the Willow Run bomber plant, under lease to the new Kaiser-Frazer corporation for the manufacture of automobiles, ended tonight following a seniority agreement between the management and representatives of three locals of the CIO United Automobile Workers.

The dispute, under way since Saturday, involved conflicting demands by local 50, representing former Willow Run workers; local 142, representing Graham-Paige employes; and local 114, composed of Graham-Paige maintenance workers. The agreement provide preferential hiring of Graham-Paige employes on basis of seniority, followed by the former Willow Run workers.

An official of the CIO-UAW said today that the Ford Motor company had set up a new hiring rate policy, but John S. Bugas, director of industrial relations for the company, said the policy "remains unchanged" and that the company was putting back into practice a policy that was operative before the war.

Richard T. Leonard, the UAW-CIO's Ford director, said the company's hiring rate for new employes would average $1.06 an hour compared with a war time 85 cents.

Clyde Park Area Says No to New Playground Tax

Voters in Cicero's Clyde Park district yesterday voted down a proposal for new recreational programs and new playgrounds in the district. The unofficial count was 1,180 to 1,046. The proposal would have authorized a 1 mill tax for financing the program.

A Vote in Time Saves Nine—Stitches in Head

Salt Lake City, Utah, Nov. 6 (AP)—City Treasurer Milton E. Lipman is mighty glad he voted today. While he was in a voting booth, a chandelier came loose from the ceiling and crashed on his desk.

Motoring Fashions

Otto Kozeny and Claranne Frank wearing early 20th century costumes for imaginary ride in a 1907 Cadillac at Museum of Science and Industry.

The influence of auto engineering on women's fashions was demonstrated yesterday at a teen-age fashion show in the Museum of Science and Industry. From the days of horse-drawn carriages when milady wore bustles, hoops and plumes, thru the era of the first crude, unintentionally air-conditioned automobile when an adventurous miss dressed in a long, practical coat and auto veil, the show was climaxed with the present day bobby-soxer in carefree clothes. Carol Lee, teen-age club director of a loop store, was in charge of the skit.

PAY HIKE OFFER FAILS TO SETTLE FIGHT AT WARD'S

A 5½ hour meeting between officials of Montgomery Ward & Co. and spokesmen for local 20 of the United Mail Order, Warehouse, and Retail Employes' union [CIO] broke up this morning with a pay hike offer by Ward, but continued rejection of what the company said was the union's closed shop demands.

The conference, attended by 35 persons, was held in the company offices.

Offer to Raise Pay of 2,500

Following the meeting, John A. Barr, company labor relations officer, said that increases of 2½ to 20 cents per hour had been offered about 2,500 employes—in addition to a previous raise—raising the scale from a minimum of 52½ cents to a maximum of $3 per hour.

Ward's further agreed, Barr said, to certain conditions affecting seniority, overtime, vacations, and grievances.

Offer Spurned, Company Says

"The union," Barr continued, "has refused our offer. Ward has refused to accept the closed shop."

Ward employes, he said, must be free to join or not to join a union.

Leonard Levy, international vice president of the union, denied the wage offer had been rejected, saying that it would be considered. Other union officials termed it inadequate. Further meetings are expected to be held.

12 YEAR REIGN OF DEMOCRATS ENDS IN BUFFALO

Curley Carries Boston; Lawrence Pittsburgh

Buffalo, N. Y., Nov. 6 [Special]—Resurgent Republicans tonight ended a 12 year Democratic reign in Buffalo by the election of Bernard J. Dowd as mayor in a five cornered race.

The G. O. P. victor was given 80,383 votes as compared with 53,893 for his nearest opponent, Thomas L. Holling, a former mayor, who campaigned as a Democratic and American Labor Party candidate.

Other contestants, in the order they finished, were Frank X. Schwab, also a former mayor, of the People's Party; Robert L. Hoffman, Liberal, and Herman J. Hahn, Socialist.

Promises Open Door

Dowd campaigned on the promise of an "open door" policy in the city hall, declaring any one could come in an see him. The retiring mayor, Democrat Joseph J. Kelly, who is barred from succeeding himself, had been criticized for often being away from the city hall and not available when his constituents needed him.

Republicans also triumphed in Syracuse, another upstate battleground, and in other mayoralty elections in a number of other cities thruout the state.

Syracuse, Republican stronghold for the last 20 years, remained in the G. O. P. column as Frank J. Costello defeated George M. Haight, Democrat carrying ALP indorsement. Costello was given 42,129 votes and Haight 36,033.

Wins Elsewhere, Too

Virtually all other contests in Syracuse also were won by Republicans, who promised to continue retiring Mayor Thomas Kennedy's debt reduction program and to do everything possible in obtaining jobs, housing facilities, and other necessities for returning veterans.

G. O. P. candidates also were victorious in Rome, Johnstown, Tonawanda, and Fulton. Democratic choices won in North Tonawanda, Hornell, Oneonta, Ithaca, Amsterdam, Little Falls, and Albany.

CLEVELAND

Cleveland, O., Nov. 6 (AP) — Complete returns from the city's 989 voting places tonight gave Mayor Thomas A. Burke [D.] 125,654 votes to 59,791 for Councilman Ray C. Miller [R.] in the Cleveland mayoralty race. Gov. Lausche telephoned his congratulations to Burke from Columbus.

BOSTON

Boston, Mass., Nov. 6 (AP)—United States Rep. James M. Curley, veteran political campaigner, tonight was elected mayor of Boston for the fourth time. Mayor John E. Kerrigan conceded the election of the 71 year old congressman on the basis of complete unofficial returns from the city's 395 precincts.

Four times a United States representative and once governor of Massachusetts, Curley built up a commanding lead in the nonpartisan election in which six Democrats sought the mayoralty.

The voters gave Curley 111,799 votes and Kerrigan 60,312. The remaining candidates weren't in the running.

PITTSBURGH

Pittsburgh, Pa., Nov. 6 (AP)—Returns from 405 precincts out of 425 in Pittsburgh tonight gave David L. Lawrence, the Democratic candidate, 106,673 votes, and his Republican opponent, Robert N. Waddell, 95,961 in the race for mayor of Pittsburgh.

LOUISVILLE

Louisville, Ky., Nov. 6 (AP)—E. Leland Taylor [D.] took a lead of 1,545 votes over his Republican opponent, Roy W. Easley, in the race for mayor as returns were counted from 81 of the city's 495 precincts. Taylor polled 9,312 and Easley 7,767.

CONNECTICUT

New Haven, Conn., Nov. 6 (AP)—Republicans captured Hartford and New Haven, Connecticut's two biggest cities, in municipal elections today, while Socialists and Democrats divided honors in two other cities.

The elections brought to an end the 14 year Democratic reign of Mayor John W. Murphy, New Haven's seven term mayor, who was defeated by City Alderman William C. Celentano [R.], 32,655 to 26,911.

Hartford, which went Republican two years ago for the first time in a decade, remained in that column as Cornelius A. Moylan, city police judge, defeated former Mayor Thomas J. Spellacy [D.], 28,956 to 19,751. Moylan succeeds Mayor William H. Mortensen [R.], who declined to run again.

In Bridgeport, Socialist Jasper McLevy won his seventh successive two year term, getting 10,000 more votes than his Republican and Democratic rivals combined, while Waterbury reelected its Democratic incumbent, Mayor John S. Monagan, for a third term.

Mayoral Elections

William O'Dwyer [left], elected mayor of New York, and Rep. James M. Curley, elected Boston mayor for fourth time.

David L. Lawrence, elected mayor of Pittsburgh, and Mrs. Mary C. Dondero, reelected mayor of Portsmouth, N. H.

Navy Cites Staff Chiefs in Drive Against Merger

Washington, D. C., Nov. 6 (AP)—The navy, campaigning against a proposed merger of the war and navy departments, said tonight that two weeks ago the United States joint chiefs of staff unanimously recommended deferment of a decision on the subject. H. Struve Hensel, assistant navy secretary, said at a news conference that the joint chiefs had recommended that the decision be put off until a suggested commission to study national security had made its report.

Grandmother Re-elected as Mayor of Portsmouth

Portsmouth, N. H., Nov. 6 (AP)—Mrs. Mary Dondero, 51, widow and grandmother, who in earlier years won at least two beauty contests and a popularity contest, tonight was reelected to her second term as mayor of this historic city. With three of the city's five wards counted, unofficial returns gave Mrs. Dondero, a Democrat, 1,648 votes to 605 for Ira A. Brown, her Republican opponent.

O'DWYER COASTS TO EASY VICTORY IN N. Y. VOTING

New York, Nov. 6 [Special]—William V. O'Dwyer, Democratic and American Labor party nominee, tonight was swept into office by the greatest plurality ever obtained by a mayoralty candidate in this city. The landslide carried into office with O'Dwyer almost the entire Democratic city ticket.

Complete unofficial returns from the 4,033 election districts gave O'Dwyer 1,119,225 votes to 434,050 for Judge Jonah Goldstein and 399,437 for Newbold Morris.

Goldstein, the Republican-Liberal party candidate, and Morris, standard bearer of the No Deal party, conceded defeat within a short time after the polls closed.

Goldstein, a former Tammanyite, had the active support in his campaign of Gov. Dewey. Morris, president of the city council, was backed by Mayor La Guardia.

The new city combination of the Democrats and the communist dominated American Labor party brushed aside the 12 year rule of the Republican-Fusion party which three times carried La Guardia into office. La Guardia chose not to run this year.

O'Dwyer's election was never in doubt once the count began when the polls closed at 7 p. m. The returns indicated his plurality would be in the neighborhood of 800,000 votes.

APPEALS COURT CHARGES FRAUD IN DIVORCE SUIT

Arthur Meyer, 48, of 1018 N. State st., an investment broker, obtained a divorce from Mrs. Hester S. Meyer, 42, by "deliberate perjury," the Appellate court asserted yesterday in ordering the decree expunged. The case reached the Appellate court on an appeal by Mrs. Meyer from a decision of Judge Michael Feinberg in Circuit court refusing to void the decree.

Mrs. Meyer, now registrar at a girls' school in Orange, N. J., alleged in her petition to set aside the decree that neither she nor Meyer was a resident of Cook county when the original suit, charging her with desertion, was filed. She said their home was in Geneva, Kane county.

The Appellate court ordered the Circuit court to enter an order to conform with the higher court's decision. This action, attorneys said, will invalidate the second marriage of Meyer, who rewed after the divorce was granted.

DISGUISE PRETTY GIRL AS CRONE TO OUTWIT JAPS

Nightly Search by Troops Is Told by Nun

BY ROBERT CROMIE
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

MANILA, P. I., Nov. 7 [Wednesday]—The story of a pretty Filipino girl being disguised as an old woman to protect her from Japanese soldiers during the battle for the Intramuros [walled city] last February was told today by Sister Candida Ocompo, a Filipino nun, at the trial of Gen. Tomoyuki Yamashita, former high Japanese commander in the Philippines.

Sister Candida said the Japanese—mostly navy personnel—brought many thousands of persons to St. Augustine's church where she and other nuns had taken refuge.

She told of Japs making a nightly search thru the church with flashlights for girls and how on one occasion she and other nuns managed to prevent one Jap from taking a certain girl, who was with them in the sacristy, altho the Jap slapped one of the nuns during the argument.

"When he had gone," Sister Candida said, "we disguised her as an old woman. We put a black dress on her, a towel around her head, and from that time she was protected by the sisters."

Sleep on Top of Lockers

The witness said girls slept on top of lockers, under benches, and under the beds of the nuns in an effort to hide from the night prowling Japanese.

The next witness, Renee Pena, whose father and brother were killed in the walled city, on cross examination admitted the Japs had told her family that St. Augustine's was safer than their home. She was not harmed by the Japs whom she said she thought were marines.

"They wore uniforms like that skunk there," she said, indicating Yamashita.

A Spaniard, Laurentino de Pablos, then testified regarding the murder of civilians in an Intramuros air raid shelter.

De Pablos and 16 others were herded inside a small shelter and then a Jap officer handed him a little bag saying he would return for it. De Pablos, however, discovered a wire leading from the bag to the outside, so borrowed a knife and cut the wire. When the Japs returned one officer inquired why "that bag didn't explode," and when told, "probably because we cut the wire," drew a pistol and shot two men dead.

Grenades Dropped Inside

Then the entrance was blocked up and hand grenades dropped inside. After the explosions died down silence came and De Pablos and six others, who had survived, managed to clear the entrance, crawl out, and make their way to safety.

On cross-examination the witness fared badly when Capt. Adolf Reel of Boston, Mass., obtained the admission he does not understand Japanese, and that when he quoted what the Japanese had said he actually was giving his own version of what he thought they were saying.

Henry Keys, London Daily Express war correspondent, called by the prosecution, told what he saw when he first entered the Intramuros—of dazed refugees, dead, dying, and mutilated men, women, and children. Cross examined, he described the shelling of the Intramuros for two weeks by American guns.

Take Up Santo Tomas Case

On conclusion of the Intramuros case, the prosecution called the first witness regarding treatment of civilian internees in Santo Tomas concentration camp. He was A. V. Hartendorp, an American living in Manila many years, and editor of the Philippine Magazine.

Hartendorp was in Santo Tomas for more than three years. He testified the Japs refused to give them a copy of the Geneva convention but internees later smuggled one in. But the Japs refused to recognize agents elected by the internees under stipulations of the Geneva pact, repudiated it and ignored all protests on the poor diet, forced labor, and the prohibition against cooking in various places.

The witness said that between Oct. 9, 1944, and the camp's liberation in February the Japs permitted them to buy inadequate supplies of medicine, gave them no Red Cross packages, and kept them on an insufficient diet. He said they were permitted to buy food outside.

ARMY RESCUES SAILOR BLACKIE, WHO GOES AWOL

Blackie, who regards himself as the official dog of Great Lakes naval training center, was back home again last night after a series of misadventures that shouldn't happen to a dog, but were all strictly Blackie's fault.

In the first place he shouldn't have stowed away aboard a Chicago bound liberty special at Great Lakes. In the second, he should have picked a sailor who had his mind less on seeing the bright lights and more on taking care of dogs when he followed one out of Union station.

The third technical error committed by Blackie was in failing to tuck his tail between his legs and scamper off when an army M. P. hove into view. He should have looked for an S. P. [navy shore patrol], who would have recognized him and known what to do.

As it was it took the army several hours to learn of Blackie's self-imposed official status at Great Lakes, telephone the naval center, and have a navy car dispatched for him. Whether he'll be court-martialed is still a military secret.

UFEW IS VICTOR IN HARVESTER PLANT VOTING

The United Farm Equipment and Metal Workers' union [CIO] won a national labor relations board election yesterday and retained its status as collective bargaining agent for employes in the International Harvester company's McCormick works at Blue Island and Oakley avs.

The outcome represented a setback for the United Automobile, Aircraft and Agricultural Workers' union [CIO], which has a powerful hold in the automobile industry, in its endeavor to expand its membership by taking over the UFEW.

The UFEW received 3,103 votes against 1,763 for the UAW, with 132 votes being cast for no union, 49 ballots being declared void, and 30 challenged. The NLRB polls were open from 6:30 a. m. to 6 p. m. and the voting was without incident. The result was announced by Robert Rissman, the NLRB's chief field examiner.

INDONESIANS GET DUTCH OFFER OF 'PARTNERSHIP'

BY ARTHUR VEYSEY
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

BATAVIA, Java, Nov. 7 [Wednesday]—Leaders of the Indonesian Republic today weighed the latest proposals of the Dutch—full partnership in the Netherlands empire—to end the strife in the East Indies.

The plan was disclosed yesterday by Hubertus J. Van Mook, acting governor general, amid indications that the Indonesians would not accept any policy admitting the Dutch back to the islands.

President Soekarno, in a statement issued soon after publication of the Dutch plan, made no reference to the proposals but said that "up until now there is no sign of the Dutch having other intentions than restoring the old colonial system."

Urges Coöperation

His statement added that "so long as the world sees no way out of the present impasse except supporting the Dutch claim to Indonesia, that long will Indonesia be unable to contribute its material wealth to the enrichment of the world."

Van Mook's promises included broadened education—literacy is now 5 per cent—government by an elected assembly plus a governor and council, end of racial discrimination, increased participation by Indonesians in business, and agrarian reforms. He appealed for immediate coöperation "as otherwise the general impoverishment and lawlessness will grow to such an extent that recovery may hardly be possible."

But no matter what the Dutch offer and no matter how much cooperation Soekarno, Vice President Mohammed Hatta and other Indonesian leaders offer, it appears certain that a long time will be needed to quiet the spirit now flourishing in Java.

Probable Developments Outlined

It also appears that the full wealth of the island—its oil and rubber, quinine and tapioca, tin, salt, coffee, tea, and spices—may be lost to the world for many months, probably years.

Developments in Java probably will come in one of these four ways:

1. Dutch and Indonesians could reach an amicable agreement, first placating the leaders and then the people. However, such a peaceful ending to the present hatreds seems highly improbable. Even if Indonesian leaders agreed to a policy such as Van Mook outlined, force undoubtedly would have to be used to disband the armed groups.

2. The Dutch and British could quit Java. This is highly improbable.

3. British troops now in the Indies could leave, turning over the problem to the Dutch, who could then proceed to restore their government by force. This appears now to mean a full scale war which, because the Indonesians have no way of replenishing their arms, probably would fold up in a few months. But resistance would then go underground and continue for years.

Allies Could Intervene

4. The British or others could intervene. A month ago it appeared likely that the Indonesians would coöperate with the British or others, but not the Dutch. Now, at least in mid and eastern Java, antagonism is developing on racial war lines. Indications are that the British will have a fight on their hands before they can carry out their original job of evacuating former internees and disarming and repatriating the Japs.

JURY CALLS WOMAN'S DEATH MURDER; ASKS HOLDING OF EX-MATE

Rudolph Motzko

A coroner's jury returned a verdict of murder yesterday in the death of Mrs. Eleanor Wrona, 23, of 2459 Augusta blvd., and recommended that her ex-husband, Rudolph Motzko, 28, of 1829 Huron st., be held to the grand jury.

Motzko refused to testify concerning the shooting of his former wife July 4. His attorney, Robert Romano, arriving at the county morgue while the jury was deliberating, demanded that Coroner Brodie repeat the inquest.

Mrs. Wrona died Monday in County hospital of a bullet wound in the chest and advanced pulmonary tuberculosis. Her mother, Mrs. Alice Lofton, 45, of 314 S. Hermitage av., collapsed after testifying Mrs. Wrona suffered a great deal from the bullet wound.

U. S. TO ASK 2D TREASON WRIT AGAINST POUND

Washington, D. C., Nov. 6 (AP)—Atty. Gen. Clark said today the justice department will ask a District of Columbia federal grand jury to re-indict Ezra Pound, poet, for treason. Pound is being held by United States army authorities in Italy.

Pound was indicted in 1943 on charges of broadcasting for the axis. The re-indictment is sought on the basis of new evidence.

Clark told a news conference that six Italians who said they saw Pound broadcast from Rome will arrive here soon in army planes. They will appear before the grand jury.

REPORT MARINES WILL QUIT NORTH CHINA IN MONTH

Gen. Wedemeyer Confers with Commanders

CHUNGKING, China, Nov. 6 (AP)—American marines sitting precariously on the lid of seething North China will go home, probably by Dec. 5, unofficial Tientsin reports said today—leaving China's scrapping communist and government forces to make their own peace or fight their own war.

Pessimists expect the lid to blow at any moment, and there was evidence today that American military leaders also are increasingly concerned about the possibility of all-out civil war. Lt. Gen. Wedemeyer, returning from Washington, D. C., to his China command, flew to Peiping first to confer with his field commanders in the trouble zones.

He reportedly was informing them of official war department policy: That American forces will take no active role in China's internal strife.

Doubt Story of Clash

Dispatches from Peiping said there still was no confirmation or denial of communist claims that American marines had driven the Reds from the summer resort town of Peitaiho, near Chinwangtao, with machine guns. Peiping sources doubted the story, and Maj. Gen. Keller Rockey, commander of the 3d marine amphibious corps, reiterated his earlier statement that marines would not fire on any one except in self-defense.

Wedemeyer's arrival at the trouble scene highlighted these other developments:

1. Communists are besieging the city of Yencheng, only 160 miles northwest of Shanghai, the headquarters of Nationalist Gen. Tang En-po reported.

2. Reports from the Yenan headquarters of the Chinese Reds said that they were proceeding "full steam ahead" with plans for all-out civil war—in the evident fear that current peace talks in Chungking would fail.

Reds Fight into Town

3. Clouds of conflicting rumors cloaked sporadic battling thru central and northern China, but an official dispatch acknowledged that Communists had fought their way inside Kweisui, capital of the inner Mongolian province of Suiyuan. There were indications the Reds were attempting to consolidate there.

4. Other Red forces reportedly were continuing their strong assaults on two of the major north-south railways, the Peiping-Hankow and Tientsin-Pukow [Tientsin-Hankow] lines, by which any overland movement of government forces to inner Mongolia or Manchuria would be routed. One government spokesman said the Reds had destroyed 800 miles of North China railroads.

Consider Peace Proposal

5. There still was no confirmation here of any Chinese government troop landings from United States transports at Hulutao or Yingkow, in southern Manchuria, and pessimistic observers here said the complete lack of information may mean there has been a breakdown in reported Russian-Chinese arrangements for the landings. Russian occupation forces are scheduled to leave Manchuria this month. There is no up to date estimate of Chinese communist strength in the area.

6. Communist headquarters at Yenan reportedly was considering the government's recent four point peace proposal, but the only publicized Red comments have been skeptical in tone. The plan included a provision that Reds withdraw from railroads now in their grasp, and added that the government would talk things over before moving troops on the lines.

Moderate Charges

Chinese Communists moderated their charges that American marines had clashed aggressively with the North China Reds. Both Chungking and Washington had flatly denied such reports, and a Yenan [Chinese Red] spokesman said today that:

"I don't believe the American attacks [on Communists] were part of a deliberate plan, but since the Americans are 'in the middle' of the government and Communist troops it is quite possible the incidents were provoked."

He reiterated the Chinese Red contention that the mere presence of United States marines in the disputed areas constitutes "intervention."

Fire Department Ambulance

Four fire department ambulances that will go into service tomorrow were inspected by Fire Commissioner Michael J. Corrigan and Ald. Gillespie [20th] yesterday at the La Salle st. entrance to the city hall. The ambulances were turned over to the city by the office of civilian defense.

They will be stationed at engine company 78, Waveland av. near Clark st.; engine company 12, Paulina and Lake sts.; engine company 93, 330 W. 104th st., and engine company 1, 214 Loomis st.

The ambulances will be manned by first aid experts and will answer only emergency accident calls. The city council recently appropriated funds to hire 35 additional firemen for the ambulance crews. Two old fire department ambulances will go into the department's shops for modernizing.

CHINESE REDS FIRE ON YANKS; ONE WOUNDED

Attack Jeep with Six Sightseers

BY JOSEPH HEARST
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

CHINWANGTAO, China, Nov. 6—Six sightseeing Americans who ventured into territory held by Chinese Communists were pinned down by rifle and machine gun fire for 20 minutes Sunday and one, Adolph Oko, 1140 Green st., San Francisco, Cal., was wounded.

The others were taken prisoner by the Communists and held overnight in the walled city of Shanhaikwan, where Communists are blocking the path of Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek's troops into Manchuria.

Oko, a chief petty officer on the Liberty ship George R. Solmes, which brought supplies here for the Nationalists, was left in a Shanhaikwan hospital yesterday.

Jeep Carries U. S. Flag

With Oko on the trip to see the Great Wall, 16 miles from here, were Capt. B. W. Dunton, ship's captain; Daniel Davies of Boston, purser; Lt. [j. g.] Jared D. Mayes Jr., Milton, Pa., gunnery officer; Army Capt. John G. Taylor, Lovell, Ky., and William Woo, Chinese interpreter who was born in Wisconsin.

"If I had know what was going to happen I'd never have left this pier," said Dunton, who is 64. "We all wanted to see this Great Wall and the boys fixed up some sandwiches and coffee and Willie Woo got a jeep from the Chinese army."

They placed an American flag on the jeep and Oko carried a soviet flag and a soviet red star decoration which acquaintances had given him at the Soviet club in Shanghai.

Shots Ring Out

"Everything went fine and we were getting near the city when we stopped to check with a Chinese sentry," Dunton said. "The sentry checked with some one and waved us on, but we didn't go very far before we approached a river and a rifle shot rang out."

Davies said a dozen more shots followed and the chatter of a machine gun also could be heard. The men dived under the jeep and it was there that Oko was struck. Davis said Oko jumped up and waved a white handkerchief, despite his wound. That was the wrong signal for it brought intensified fire. We learned later we should have waved a red flag as the Communists charge Nationalist troops use a white flag to lure them into the open and then fire on them."

Finally the Communists emerged from concealment on the far side of the river and approached the Americans who were standing with hands raised. The Chinese took the rifle and sidearms from the men but returned the weapons when they released them yesterday. The Communists carried Oko to the village compound across the river.

MANCHURIA REDS REFUSE TO MEET CHINESE LEADER

BY JOSEPH HEARST
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

ABOARD U. S. S. CATOCTIN EN ROUTE TO CHINWANGTAO, China, Nov. 6—Officers of the soviet Russian Red army garrison in Yingkow, Manchuria, ran out on a scheduled meeting yesterday with representatives of the Chinese Nationalist government. As a result some observers believed the Russians have no intention of aiding the Nationalist army in the occupation of Manchuria.

The Russians reputedly had guaranteed that Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek's army could land at Yingkow in safety. Vice Adm. Daniel E. Barbey, commander of the 7th amphibious force, attempted for four days to bring the two sides together.

A meeting between the Russian garrison commander and Lt. Gen. Wang Yungang, chief of staff to Lt. Gen. Tu Li-ming, supreme commander of the northeast provinces, had been arranged for Monday. But when American naval officers went ashore at Yingkow they found Chinese Communist troops patroling the docks and the Russians out of the city.

Reds Offer Various Excuses

Previously the Russians had made various excuses for not meeting the Chinese. They asserted they had not been informed of the landing guarantee and even refused to come aboard Barbey's flagship, the Catoctin, to confer on the situation. Finally when it was apparent they could no longer avoid meeting the Chinese they turned the city over to Chinese communist control and moved out. Originally the Russians were scheduled to begin evacuating southern Manchuria on Nov. 10.

Despite optimistic reports from Chungking that Russian military authorities have done their best to aid Chinese Nationalist forces trying to move into Manchuria and will help disarm any troops who do not belong to the central government, there was no indication that the Red army had helped the Kuomintang [Nationalists] in any instance. Rather it has hindered in one way or another efforts of the United States to move Chinese troops into the area in accordance with America's agreements with Generalissimo Chiang.

List Reds' Actions

Here are some instances of how Russia has not aided the central government in Manchuria:

1. Refused, on technicalities, to allow American transports to land the Chinese 13th army at Dairen.

2. Reportedly agreed that a Chinese army could be landed at Hulutao when they must have known the port was in the hands of Chinese Communists. When an American boat tried to go in there it was fired on and subsequently both Russian and Chinese Communist officers asserted the Russians never had controled the port.

3. The presence in Manchuria of many Chinese Communist soldiers who came by junk from the Shantung peninsula and reportedly landed at Dairen or Port Arthur. Many of these came to Yingkow by train, altho it is reported no one rides Manchurian trains without permission of the soviets.

4. Finally, the unexpected withdrawal from Yingkow, where Chinese Communists have been permitted to dig trenches along the river front approaches to the city despite an alleged pledge that in a specified area, including all of the city and extending several miles around it Chinese Nationalist troops could be landed without Communist opposition.

SURVEY SHOWS SAD PLIGHT OF JEWS IN EUROPE

Nazis' Fall Ushers in a Bitter Struggle

LONDON, Nov. 6 (AP)—Altho Hitler has been wiped off the scene, the tragedy of Europe's Jews is far from ended.

The comparatively few who survived the Nazis' campaign of elimination now face bitter struggles with hunger and disease.

Under nazi persecution, 5,700,000 Jews vanished from their European homes, the allied war crimes commission reported.

A survey compiled by Associated Press correspondents showed that since the end of the war there had been an almost complete removal of the anti-Jewish laws that Hitler's legions carried to invaded lands. But racial hatred has not been exterminated.

While governments announce measures to help Jews, the citizens spasmodically loose the violence they learned under years of nazi propaganda.

Situation by Countries Told

Here is how the situation stacks up, country by country:

BULGARIA — The number of Jews, 47,000, remained almost constant thru the war. Intervention by Bulgarian leaders prevented Germans from carrying out wholesale deportations and liquidations. Anti-Jewish economic laws have been removed and full economic and political rights have been restored. Jews are having comparative success in recovering any real estate or stocks that were confiscated, but restoration of personal and movable property is far more difficult.

POLAND—Before the war, there were 3,500,000 Jews in Poland. Now there are between 100,000 and 150,000. Jewish spokesmen say the Germans killed 3,200,000 and the rest fled the country. There have been several outbreaks, including the burning of a synagog in Krakow. While the government is trying to help the Jews, clandestine organizations circulate anti-semitic pamphlets.

Litjle Known of Russian Area

RUSSIA—Only the most meagre information is available on the status of Jews in Russia and Russian occupied areas.

ROMANIA — Outright persecution of the Jews stopped with the war's end, but traditional Romanian anti-semitism is as strong as ever. A small number of Jews remains in concentration camps, held as political prisoners. Prominent Jews hesitate to send their children to public school because of the tense atmosphere. The best information available is that only about 40 per cent of the property taken from the Jews has been returned. About 80,000 Jewish homes and apartments were "requisitioned" during the war, and not many have been returned. About 250,000 Romanian Jews are believed to have lost their lives during Europe's blood bath.

200,000 Left in Hungary

HUNGARY — Anti-Jewish restrictions applying to theaters, restaurants, schools, voting, and marriage have been wiped out, but there still is some anti-Semitism. Fewer than 200,000 of Hungary's pre-war Jewish population of 700,000 remain, spokesmen reported.

AUSTRIA—Information available is confined mainly to the American zone of occupation. American sources estimate there are about 3,900 displaced Jews in the American zone, including about 960 in Vienna. These people have been billeted in permanent buildings and are receiving higher rations than the average Austrian. The Jews' economic reëstablishment will be a slow process because the Nazis were thoro in their confiscation schemes. There has been a simmering of anti-Semitism based on resentment against preferential treatment given to persons formerly persecuted.

CZECHOSLOVAKIA—Only about 7 or 8 per cent of Bohemia and Moravia's pre-war population of 180,000 Jews are now in Czechoslovakia. In these provinces some progress is being made in restoring lost property.

Most Want to Leave Germany

GERMANY—Jews have the choice of claiming the nationality of the country of their origin or being declared stateless. Ninety per cent want to go to Palestine, said a spokesman for the American Joint Distribution committee, relief agency. Only about 10,000 of the 75,000 are German citizens. Most of the rest are Poles, the spokesman said. About 30,000 are in the American zone of occupation. Those who return to German civilian life receive special rations, and machinery is being set up to regain their stolen property. None remains in a concentration camp. There are only about 2,000 Jews up to the age of 16. Children and the aged died in concentration camps.

Live on Yugoslav Charity

YUGOSLAVIA—Even pre-war anti-Jewish laws and regulations have been wiped out, but most of the remaining Jews depend on charity and help from abroad. About 12,000 of 75,000 who lived there before the war are alive.

GREECE—Jews always have had full citizenship rights. During the nazi occupation, the Greeks helped a few of the Jews to escape persecution. All except 4,000 of the 75,000 Greek Jews were carted off to Poland and Germany, however. Only 3,000 of the deportees returned, starved, emaciated, beaten. Stolen property is being returned and possessions of missing Jews are being placed under trusteeship for final disposal in favor of Jewish benevolent societies. Ninety per cent of the Jews in Greece are in bad health, Most exist on charity.

ITALY—Anti-Jewish laws were removed in 1944. During the period they were in effect, 22,000 of Italy's 42,000 Jews disappeared or left the country.

FRANCE—200,000 out of France's pre-war population of 350,000 Jews were saved. Only 3,000 Jews have asked to leave the country since the war. There is an increase in anti-Semitism, which Jewish leaders attribute to the after effects of German propaganda.

HOLLAND—104,000 of 129,000 pre-war Jews were deported during the occupation and only 3,000 managed to get back. With few exceptions, those who remain are being disappointed in their attempts to regain their possessions, altho their full rights have been restored. Unmistakable signs of anti-Semitism have survived.

BELGIUM—There is no organized anti-Semitism in Belgium.

New Super Fortresses Destroyed as Surplus Material

Nearly Complete

Wichita, Kan., Nov. 6 [Special]—Workmen with torches today continued the task begun at the Boeing Aircraft plant here last week of destroying 16 nearly completed B-29 Super Fortresses, regarded by the army air forces as surplus war material.

When the destruction was started, Wichita labor unions, newspapers, and public officials sent protests to Washington. The planes were within a week of completion and were valued at 8 million dollars.

Lt. Col. R. E. Ludick, army air force representative at the pant, said any comment on army policy in destroying the planes must come from Washington.

MORE BRITISH TROOPS ARRIVE IN PALESTINE

JERUSALEM, Nov. 6 [Reuters]—Further reinforcements for the 6th British air borne division in Palestine arrived at Haifa today on board the 14,000 on troopship Ascania.

Air raid sirens may be used to give warning of terrorist outbreaks in all towns of Palestine, under a defense emergency order. When the sirens are sounded all vehicles must halt, and can move again only when the "all clear" is given.

Policemen were reported stoned today in Tel Aviv when they tried to arrest an illegal Jewish immigrant who was liberated by a crowd of several thousand.

BLAMES ALLIED RAIDS IN BELSEN FOOD SHORTAGE

LUENEBURG, Germany, Nov. 6 (AP)—Corp. Herman Mueller, called as a defense witness for Joseph Kramer, Belsen concentration camp commandant, testified today that the food supply system for the camp broke down under incessant allied aerial attacks.

Mueller also declared that Guard Irma Grese never carried a pistol or whip or beat any one at Belsen; that Charlotte Klein often made coffee for cold prisoners, and that Ilse Forster shouted at prisoners but never beat them when they took a turnip or potato from the stock pile.

The last of the 45 defendants, Antoni Aurdziej, testified that he was forced at pistol point by "French officers" to sign a confession branding him as a killer at Belsen.

GERMANS BEAT GUN; TRICKLE THRU RED LINES

4 Millions Wait Signal to Return Home

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

LUENEBERG, Germany, Nov. 6—The vanguard of 4 million Germans who are expected to pour into the American and British zones within the next few months are trickling thru the Russian lines stealthily at night and emerging like wraiths from the fog of dense woods.

They are people who left their homes in western Germany to escape the bombings and are returning to them; people who settled in Poland, the Baltic provinces, and other parts of eastern Europe in the days of Hitler's victories, and Germans from Poland and Sudetenland who must find new homes because they forfeited the trust of the Poles and Czechs by coöperating with the Nazis.

Waiting for Signal

Forerunners of the new mass migration whom I met along the Russo-British zonal border today brought word that tens of thousands are waiting behind the Russian line in hamlets and villages, or hidden in woods, ready to cross the border as soon as it opens.

Just when that will be is the subject of continuous negotiations between the British and Russians, officials on duty near the border said. The Russians proposed to unleash a flood of Germans across the border without control. But the British insist that the migration must be carefully directed to avoid congestion and that it must be controled to prevent the spreading of typhus and other diseases which are more prevalent east of the Oder river than in the British and American zones.

The British also insist that the Russians must agree to receive German, Polish, and other nationals who want to return into or thru Russian occupied Germany. The Russians, on the other hand, have been attempting to prevent displaced persons from entering their zone.

2,000,000 to British Zone

About 2,000,000 persons are to be taken into the British zone.

To ensure the orderly transfer of population, eight big transit camps will be opened in cities on the line from Lueneberg to Goettinger. These centers will in turn control a network of small reception camps established in inns and big farmhouses in closest proximity to the border. Physicians and nurses will be on duty to examine the new arrivals, delouse and disinfect them. Then they will be registered and sent to transit camps behind the line, from which they will be carried by train to their destinations.

At the moment those who have homes or relatives in the British zone are being sent on alone with travel passes. But as the number of refugees increases, they will be sorted into three groups and sent on: those heading for the Ruhr and Rhineland from which they came; those who have homes or relatives in Hamburg or Schleswig-Holstein, and the homeless group, which will be directed to areas that are not too congested, such as Oldenburg province.

How They're Fed

The German provincial government must supply the food. In the huge pots of the German army and industrial canteens, German prisoners of war cook a stew that provides the warm meal of the day. Breakfast consists of bread, margarine, and ersatz coffee. Supper is made up of bread and sausage or cheese, and ersatz coffee. In the Uelzen camp each refugee gets, besides the stew, 14 ounces of bread daily, somewhat less than an ounce of butter or margarine, the same amount of high grade sausage, and the same amount of jam. Milk is provided for the small children.

A physician in the hospital section of this same camp said all refugees who have been on the road for a long time are suffering from scabies, but that they can be cured in three days. The hospitals are well provided with medicines, but the nurses complain of lack of bandages.

Security guards are puzzled by the number of people who keep going back and forth over the border secretly. They are known as "tripsters." Some of them have been reported three times in sucession in various camps. We met today a group of well dressed women waiting for nightfall to cross back into the Russian zone. They claimed they were returning to get their bedding in homes 100 miles behind the line.

The British authorities expect the border to be opened tomorrow.

Recalling Early Days of Radio

Eddie and Fannie Cavanaugh, named radio's earliest entertainment team, with Carl J. Meyers (right), W-G-N engineering director, at radio anniversary luncheon yesterday. [TRIBUNE Photo]

Reminiscence Day

Chicago's pioneers in radio entertainment met at noon yesterday as guests of the Chicago Radio Management club at the Morrison hotel to recall the start of broadcasting—25 years ago this week. In mid-afternoon the early birds still were reminiscing about the crystal set days. Every old timer had a story or two to tell.

Gene Rouse, one of the earliest announcers, told of hearing hog callers by way of a few strands of wire wrapped around an oatmeal box 20 odd years ago; Herbie Mintz related how the banjo player was hidden under a carpet in the old days to keep him from drowning out the rest of the orchestra; Wendell Hall was cheered for reviving the earliest theme songs; Carl J. Meyers, director of engineering for W-G-N, was hailed for his early experiments in police radio; Sen Kaney dredged up from his archives a bit of radio's earliest humor, and Eddie and Fannie Cavanaugh were saluted as radio's earliest entertainment team.

Leo Rosenberg, who was the announcer on radio's "opening night" for KDKA, Pittsburgh, Pa., on Nov. 2, 1920, was among the luncheon guests.

EX-CONVICT GETS LIFE TERM FOR 'VAULT LOOTING

Patrick [Patsy] Flaherty, 43, an ex-convict, was sentenced to life imprisonment on a robbery charge carrying an habitual criminal count by Judge Julius H. Miner in Criminal court yesterday in connection with the two million dollar looting of the vault in the real estate office of E. H. Rumbold, at 624 W. 119th st., last Jan. 19. His attorney, James M. Burke, was given 60 days to file an appeal.

Flaherty was found guilty by a jury on Oct. 25. Judge Miner overruled a motion for a new trial. The charge against Flaherty was the robbery of Robert C. Rumbold, a watchman and brother of the vault owner, whose vault keys and wallet were stolen by the gang that did the looting.

Flaherty, with Willie Niemoth, originally was tried for burglary, but both were acquitted. A trial for Flaherty on the robbery charge ended in a mistrial, and the third trial resulted. Selection of jurors in another trial for Niemoth was underway yesterday before Judge Miner.

RED DIPLOMATS DECORATED BY SOVIET COUNCIL

MOSCOW, Nov. 6 (AP)—The presidium of the supreme soviet ordered numerous awards today for Russian diplomats. Foreign Commissar Molotov received the coveted order of Lenin, as did Andrei Vishinsky, foreign vice commissar. Andrei A. Gromyoko, soviet ambassador to the United States, also received the order of Lenin.

Maxim Litvinov, former foreign commissar and former ambassador to the United States, received the order of the Red Banner. The same award went to Ivan Maisky, former ambassador to Great Britain.

[In connection with the anniversary of the Red revolution today the Moscow radio last night broadcast two orders of the day congratulating the Red army and navy on their war victories. Marshal Vassilevsky, deputy commissar of defense, issued the army order, while that for the navy was issued by Adm. Kuznetsov, commissar of the navy. During the war and immediately after, orders of the day invariably were issued by Premier Stalin himself.]

TRY USIN' A LITTLE SPANISH TO CATCH (AND HOLD) YOUR MAN

A SPANISH OMELET, F'R INSTANCE!

Bud CABALLERO Bowman

'SCUSE MY CASTANETS, but one look at the Spanish Omelet cooked up in the Bowman Test Kitchens—using Bowman Eggs, o' course—and I says to myself, I says, "Now there's a dish that'll click with the menfolks!" And so it does, Senoritas and Senoras—at noonday, nightfall, or middle of the night.

OH, YOU SPANISH SAUCE . . . and Oh, you beautiful omelet! How men go for that combination! A sauce that's not too spicy, not too mild . . . and an omelet that stays high-and-mighty to the last forkful. Our Home Ec gals designed 'em . . . recipes are down below.

GOES WITHOUT SAYING that the goodness nacherally depends on the kind of eggs you use . . . as well as how you use 'em. Large, delicious Bowman Eggs whip up into man-size, elegant-tasting omelets. Gently browned in golden Bowman Butter, they're marvelous.

SAUCE FOR SPANISH OMELET—Cook 1 tbsp. chopped onions and 1 tbsp. chopped green pepper slowly in 2 tbsps. Bowman Butter about 5 minutes. Add 2 cups cooked tomatoes, ½ tsp. salt and ⅛ tsp. pepper, and simmer until sauce is thick. Use as filling or pour over omelet.

NEVER-FAIL OMELET—Preheat oven to 300° F. Separate 4 Bowman Eggs, beat yolks until thick and lemon-colored. Add ¼ cup Bowman Milk, 1 tsp. salt, and ⅛ tsp. pepper and beat thoroughly. In separate bowl, beat egg whites until stiff. Fold egg yolk mixture lightly into beaten whites.

Meanwhile, melt 1 tbsp. Bowman Butter in a 9-inch skillet, tipping skillet to butter sides and bottom evenly. Then turn heat very low and pour in omelet mixture. Cook slowly over low heat until omelet puffs and becomes lightly golden on bottom—about 5 minutes. Place skillet in oven and bake about 10 minutes more. Remove from oven and fold omelet carefully. Turn onto a hot platter.

AND WHEN the Spanish Sauce is spooned lavishly over all (there's also Bowman Butter in the sauce, I'll have you notice), you'll be mighty glad you signalled the Bowman milkman and said, "I'll have a dozen Bowman Eggs for Spanish Omelets. And Bowman Butter, too." Say the word and thev'll be delivered to your door.

REDS WILL HAVE ATOMIC ENERGY, SAYS MOLOTOV

Decries Secrecy; Asks for Voice in Jap Control

MOSCOW, Nov. 6 (AP)—Foreign Commissar Molotov, asserting the atomic bomb cannot be kept secret, promised Russians tonight that the soviet union will have "atomic energy and many other things."

A signal bell had to be rung to quiet the tumult that welled thru the hall of St. Andrew in the Kremlin when Molotov made this statement in his speech on the eve of the 28th anniversary of the Red revolution.

Molotov said the use of atomic energy must not be employed in a political play for strength.

He called for allied control of Japan, and while he described the London foreign ministers conference as a failure, he said "Only the joint efforts of the three great powers" could "secure the victories of the democratic countries over fascism."

The united nations, he asserted, must not "become the tool of any one great power."

Atom "Politics" Decried

On atomic energy, the foreign commissar said:

"We desire that our nation shall bloom, and that there will be atomic energy and many other things.

"It is not possible at the present time for a technical secret of any great size to remain the exclusive possession of some one country or some narrow circle of countries.

"This being so, the discovery of atomic energy should not encourage either a propensity to exploit the discovery in the play of forces in international policy or an attitude of complacency as regards the future of the peace loving nations."

The colossal destructive force of the atomic bomb has not yet been tried, he said, "for averting aggression or safeguarding peace." His speech did not mention the United States or other countries in connection with atomic energy.

Stalin Not Present

Generalissimo Stalin, reported to have returned this week from his Black sea vacation, was not present in the hall and there was no explanation of his absence. A long message of greeting was sent him.

[A Reuters dispatch from Moscow said it is believed Stalin will watch the great parade of the Red army, navy, air force and auxiliaries in Red square today. The parade at which traditionally Stalin and other soviet leaders take the salute from the top of Lenin's tomb, will begin in the morning and last into the afternoon.]

Molotov asked for reparations from the defeated axis nations in a spirit free from revenge, and warned his countrymen they were living in a world "where the roots of imperialism still remain."

Referring to this, he said Russia should give great attention to "strengthening the collaboration" gained in victory.

"We must then mention here the force of the atom energy which was experienced in the war with Japan. Nowadays there ought to be no secrecy about this subject."

Allied Control Over Japan

Declaring that the "soviet union considers most important the negotiation of control of all the allies over Japan"—a control which now rests in the hands of Gen. MacArthur as allied commander—Molotov said:

"In this question no satisfactory results have yet emerged, but the importance of satisfactory results is clear to all."

Molotov raised the question of an allied control commission for Japan at the recent foreign ministers' council in London.

Asks Allied Collaboration

Regarding future relations among the allies Molotov said:

"Only the joint collaboration of all the countries that bore the brunt of the war can secure the success of the new international [peace] organization. Expressions of good intentions are not enough. The soviet union was and will be a reliable bulwark in defense of peace and is ready to prove it not only by words but by deeds."

Declaring that "every effort must be made" to prevent a new aggression, Molotov said "the formation of blocs in western Europe will not create a peaceful Europe."

He accused Spain "and some other countries" of giving "half open support" to the axis.

CITES SABOTAGE ORDER BY INDIAN FOES OF BRITAIN

'Highly Secret' Paper Introduced at Trial

NEW DELHI, India, Nov. 6 [Reuters]—Lt. D. C. Nag, chief prosecution witness, produced a document marked "highly secret" when the trial of three officers of the Japanese sponsored "Indian national army," on charges of waging war against the king, murder, and abetting murder, was resumed here today.

[Two persons were killed and one injured in Madras yesterday when police opened fire on a crowd demonstrating in connection with the Indian National army trial.]

Nag, described as former deputy adjutant general of the INA, told the court that the document, alleged to have been signed by Capt. Shah Nahaz, one of the accused, dealt with the functions of Bahadur, an organization set up for sabotage and infiltration into the allied lines.

Cites Leader's Order

He read an order signed by Subhas Chandra Bose, late leader of the "Indian national government," which said:

"Having beaten the enemy once in several sectors of the front, our faith in final victory, and the destruction of the Anglo-American forces of aggression has increased tenfold."

The court adjourned until Nov. 21, to allow the defense time to examine some of 112 witnesses.

Requesting the adjournment, Bhulabhai Desai, leading defense counsel, indicated that the terms of surrender of the Indians to the Japanese at Singapore would play a material part in the case, and said it might be necessary to interview Lt. Col. Hunt, a British staff officer who was present at the surrender.

Desai said other defense witnesses included Japanese and Burmese officers.

Hails "Freedom Fighters"

BOMBAY, India, Nov. 6 [Reuters]—The men of the "Indian national army" are heroes who fought for India's freedom, Sarat Chandra Bose, brother of Subhas Chandra Bose, late leader of the "Indian national government" said here today when inaugurating an "Indian national week."

"India needs not one Shah Nawaz, one Dhillon, one Sehgal [the three men now on trial at New Delhi] but thousands of them," he said.

"Let our motto be the slogan raised by the INA—'give me liberty or give me death.'"

DEMAND FRANCE TAKE OVER ALL KEY INDUSTRIES

De Gaulle Resigns; Slated to Resume Post

PARIS, Nov. 6 (AP)—The dominant left wing bloc in France's constituent assembly today demanded sweeping nationalization of the nation's key enterprises as the newly elected body took over the government from Gen. De Gaulle and started work on a new constitution.

The demands were part of a broad program circulated at the initial session by the Communist and Socialist parties, which control a majority of the delegates.

The program called for labor sharing in industrial management, government-controlled foreign trade, progressive emancipation for natives of France's empire, an uncensored press controlling its own news agency, and closer collaboration among the major allied powers.

Beyond Britain's Program

Enterprises which would be nationalized include the bank of France and the larger credit institutions, such as deposit and insurance banks and insurance companies; gas and electric utilities; the merchant marine, coal mines and steel, the manufacture of lighter metals, liquid air, cement, explosives, sodium and most fertilizers, and the importation and transportation of liquid fuels.

The proposed steps would go beyond the nationalization program of Britain's Labor government.

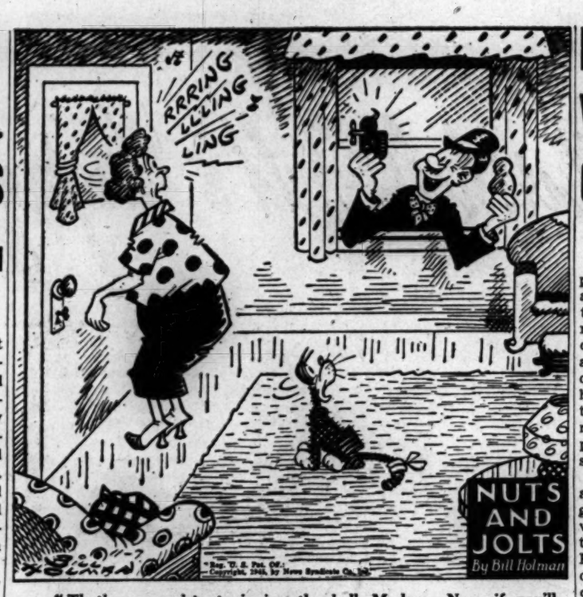
In foreign affairs, the Socialists and Communists called for elimination of "the last Fascist regimes, notably in Spain and Portugal," internationalization of the Ruhr, an agreement with the allies on German occupation, foreign monetary agreements and French renunciation of territorial expansion in favor of collective security.

Accept De Gaulle Resignation

The assembly accepted the resignation of Gen. de Gaulle as provisional president, submitted in accordance with a referendum vote, but the delegates indicated that they wanted De Gaulle's leadership continued during the seven months before the new constitution sets up a fourth republic. They probably will elect him Saturday to head the "caretaker" government.

Applause greeted De Gaulle as he walked into the chamber of deputies in civilian clothes, his first formal appearance without the uniform in which he had dressed for five years.

Paul Cuttoli, 81, temporary chairman of the assembly, called for "an economic and daringly social democracy," and told the 540 delegates that "now the nation has spoken—it has shown it is to the left." He also asserted the French army and diplomatic corps "are not animated by the new spirit" of France.



"That's my assistant ringing the bell, Madam. Now, if you'll watch closely, I'll demonstrate the little marvel potato peeler."

KARACHI, India, Nov. 6 [Reuters]—A daily air service between Washington, D. C., and Bombay will be opened soon by Transworld Airways, it was learned here today. The route has been sanctioned by the United States civil aeronautics board and an early survey flight is expected. Karachi airport will be used by the service, which, by virtue of a contract with the United States war department, would be reserved for the time being for flights of a military nature.

ELECTIONS GIVE HUNGARY'S REDS SECOND PLACE

BUDAPEST, Hungary, Nov. 6 (AP)—Nearly complete returns from Hungary's national elections on Sunday gave the Small Holders party today 59 per cent of the popular vote, with the Communist party gaining to edge out the Social Democrats [Laborites] for second place strength in the new parliament.

With 95 per cent of more than 4,000,000 ballots counted, the Communists had 17 per cent of the popular vote and the Social Democrats 18 per cent. By a system of counting mandates for parliamentary seats the Communists would receive 54 and the Social Democrats 52 of the 315 seats. The moderately conservative Small Holders party appeared assured of 191 seats, or 61 per cent.

Party leaders continued discussions looking toward a new government under Zoltan Tildy, Small Holders leader, as premier, and an announcement may be made Friday. Parliament will convene about Nov. 15.

3 KILLED, 5 HURT ON OKINAWA BY JAP LAND MINE

Washington, D. C., Nov. 6—(AP)—Three soldiers were killed and five injured Oct. 21 when souvenir hunters exploded an old Japanese land mine near Nahaon, Okinawa, the war department reported today.

The men, members of the 8th air force, discovered an odd looking box that one of them decided was a Japanese telephone. He pulled a lever and an explosion occurred.

HALT DRAFT, GET VETS BACK HOME, G. O. P. DEMANDS

BY WILLIAM MOORE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

Washington, D. C., Nov. 6—Republicans in the senate rocked the administration today with demands that the draft be halted and the return of veterans be hastened to end the waste of the nation's man power and resources.

Sen. Reed

Charging the army surgeon general's office with incompetency, inefficiency, and neglect, Sen. Reed [R., Kas.] offered a resolution calling upon the war department to conduct a court of inquiry into the army's tardiness in sending its doctors back to care for civilians.

The Republicans, led by Sen. Revercomb [W. Va.], warned that unless government agencies act promptly, the end of draft and man power abuses will be sought by congressional action.

Enlistments Exceed Quota

Revercomb told the senate the voluntary enlistment system is furnishing more than the 50,000 men a month which selective service officials said would be necessary after V-J day.

"Inductions under selective service should be stopped at once," Revercomb said, "by an act of congress unless the administrative authorities stop it."

Sen. Moore [R., Okla.] called on congress to order the army and navy to utilize boats now idle in foreign ports to bring American veterans home.

Called National Scandal

Before introducing his resolution for an army court of inquiry into the delay in discharging doctors, Reed told reporters that "this is the nearest thing to a national scandal in the whole army personnel."

Reed announced also that he may offer a similar resolution for an investigation into the navy's tardiness in permitting doctors to go back to civilian life. Telling of the hundreds of letters which are part of his evidence, the senator said:

"If the army or navy tries to discipline any officer for revealing this situation to members of congress, hell will break loose. I'll go so far as to start impeachment proceedings against the head of a department in which such disciplining is attempted."

Reed's resolution said that the need for army doctors decreased 80 per cent with the end of the war in Europe, but that four months after V-E day and three weeks after V-J day, the army still had 45,017 doctors, as against 45,511 last Jan. 1.

TRAINING PLANS FOR PEACE TIME DRAFT OUTLINED

Fighting Forces to Offer Intensive Program

BY WILLIAM STRAND
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

Washington, D. C., Nov. 6—The army and navy program setting up compulsory peace time military training for American youth, which soon will be unfolded before congress, would provide virtually the same courses of instruction as those given the nation's fighting men during the war, it was learned today.

Starting with basic training, the services have mapped out a course that includes a grand finale at the end of 12 months under simulated battle conditions. For the first few years, at least, the young conscripts would use the same types of equipment and be schooled in the same tactics as those in use at present.

Army and navy spokesmen assert, however, that they are prepared to revise the program whenever changes are warranted by devolpment of improved weapons and new fighting techniques.

Strong Opposition

Public hearings on the proposal, against which strong opposition has been voiced in congress, are scheduled to begin Thursday before the house military affairs committee.

Appearing before both houses last month, President Truman requested adoption of the plan. His recommendation was that every boy who is 18, or has finished high school, or has not reached 20 years of age, be given a year's military training and then placed in a reserve corps for six years. The only exceptions would be those with "total physical disqualifications."

The cost of the program, involving the training of 975,000 men annually, has been estimated at 1 billion 755 million dollars a year. The army is expected to argue that this cost would be substantially lower than the cost of a large standing army.

Nine Weeks of Basic

It has been learned the army expects to take 700,000 young conscripts—its share of each year's class of eligibles—thru the entire ground forces program, beginning with physical examination, outfitting, and classification. Each youth would be assigned to the army branch for which he is deemed best fitted.

Then would follow nine weeks of basic training during which the reservists would learn the fundamentals of soldiering, including instruction in various weapons and defense against gas, mines, and booby traps. The next period, varying from nine weeks for an infantryman to 26 weeks for air force personnel, would be devoted to specialized training.

Thereafter the conscripts would apply their knowledge to assignments in small units such as squads, platoons, and companies. There would be practice in patroling for infantry units; construction work for engineers, while specialists in air and service forces would continue their advanced technical training. Then with approximately 21 weeks of their year remaining, 13 weeks would be devoted to building battalions from companies, then regiments and finally divisions.

Simulate Combat

The last eight weeks would be utilized for large scale maneuvers under conditions as close to actual combat as can be achieved.

The plans for the navy and marine corps are much the same. These services would divide approximately 275,000 conscripts annually under the proposed program supported by the President. The navy would begin with a 13 week recruit training program, followed by specialized instruction at appropriate schools completing the first half of the year.

Then the young men would receive three months of "operational" training as members of fighting units of various types of warships. Their last three months would be spent afloat or operating naval aircraft at sea.

Wear Different Uniforms

After their traditional recruit training the marines would take reservists under their auspices thru small unit training and specialized instruction to field exercises and amphibious maneuvers under battle conditions.

None of the young reservists actually would be members of the services under which they were being trained. It is planned for them to wear distinctive uniforms and remain apart from the regular establishments except for the officer personnel directing their training.

THIS DAY IN HISTORY

Nov. 7—Elijah Lovejoy's Death

On Nov. 7, 1837, at Alton, Ill., Elijah Lovejoy, intrepid foe of slavery, died a martyr to the principle of freedom of the press.

He and a group of his men were trying to prevent a mob from destroying a warehouse in which a newly arrived press for Lovejoy's newspaper, the Observer, was stored. This press had been sent to him by the Ohio Anti-Slavery society to replace the most recent of the several presses which he had lost thru mob violence.

If he could save it, he might resume the fearless anti-slavery editorials which had already cost him the friendship of the strong pro-slavery elements in Alton and, earlier, in St. Louis.

Suddenly several men from the mob rushed forward and placed a ladder against the side of the warehouse. Another, with a flaming torch in his hand, began to ascend the ladder. Three of the warehouse's defenders dashed toward the ladder to pull it down. Shots crackled and one of the three was seen to stagger.

This last was Lovejoy himself. Five bullets had entered his body. He died on the floor of the warehouse.

The press was saved from destruction by fire, but the mob later got its hands on it and rendered it useless. Eleven men who were charged with being members of the mob were tried on the charge of entering the warehouse unlawfully and destroying the press. They were all acquitted.

WEIGH METHODS TO CURE HESS OF CLOUDED MIND

NUERNBERG, Germany, Nov. 6 (AP)—Physicians outlined today three possible methods of dealing with the mental disturbance which threatens to eliminate Rudolf Hess as a war crimes defendant, but all may be ruled out because of the danger of Hess' antagonism toward medical treatment.

The one time No. 3 Nazi has told his doctors he wants a "nature cure," and has protested against use of any theory dealing with anesthesia. They say his idea is that a diet of milk "to warm my brain," and prunes "to aid my elimination," would help him remember past events essential to his defense.

"Nature is my doctor," Hess said.

The three medical methods which physicians believe could be used are artificial blood shock, hypnosis, and the use of insulin to burn away sugar reserves and increase the appetite.

CLARK TO SET UP U. S. BUREAU FOR JUVENILE CASES

Washington, D. C., Nov. 6 [Special]—Atty. Gen. Clark today said he will establish a juvenile bureau in his department with the hope of extending thruout the United States the present "Brooklyn plan" of placing juvenile federal law offenders on probation before conviction instead of afterward.

In his first new conference since assuming office, the new attorney general lauded the system used in the Brooklyn federal districts.

Report to Elders

Juvenile offenders in those districts, he explained, are taken before the United States attorney, who suggests an investigation by probation officers. Subsequently, if possible, the boys and girls are made to report to a suitable older person.

With this plan effective on a nation-wide basis, Clark said, young folks would have a chance to return to a law abiding status without the stigma of prosecution. Decrying the practice of placing juvenile offenders in institutions with adults, he said they should be sent to separate reformatories.

Proposes Youth Centers

He suggested there also might be "youth centers, something like the U. S. O., where boys and girls could kick up their heels, as we say in Texas." These centers, he said, could offer lessons in responsible citizenship, but he added this phase of his shceme is "way down the road at present."

The juvenile bureau he plans to establish will be headed by "some of the outstanding people in the country," specialists in their field, Clark said.

"I feel that the federal government should take the lead in this movement for youth," the attorney general asserted.

BARE ARMISTICE TERMS TO ITALY, SECRET 2 YEARS

Harsh Provisions Made, but Not Carried Out

Washington, D. C., Nov. 6 (AP)—Italy's 26 month old armistice terms finally were made public today, but restoration of that battered country to full international standing still appeared to be months away.

Publication of the armistice terms in Washington, London, and Rome disclosed that the British-American allies, on paper at least, had imposed on their beaten enemy a severe surrender pact. In practice, however, it became increasingly lighter.

Government officials explained that the harsh terms were drawn up when Italy was merely a defeated enemy, but the relaxing process was accelerated as that nation became a "co-belligerent" of the allies and stepped up its war effort against its former German partner.

Give Allies Full Control

The original terms signed Sept. 3, 1943, were more sweeping and detailed than those meted out to the former German satellite nations of Romania, Bulgaria, and Hungary. They gave the allies complete control over all phases of Italy's military, economic, and political life.

In addition to provisions for cessation of fighting; transfer of war ships, merchant vessels, and aircraft; return of allied prisoners; surrender of all territory required for bases, and guarantee of the use by the allies of all air field and naval ports, the armistice contained two "catch-all" clauses.

One gave Gen. Eisenhower the right to take "any measure" which he deemed necessary for the allied war effort.

The other gave the allies the right to impose "other conditions of a political, economic, and financial nature" at a later date.

Why Kept Secret?

The terms contained none of the widely rumored provisions for permanent disposal of Italian territory and property. Reporters immediately asked why the pact had been kept secret for more than two years.

Officials replied that the allied military had opposed publication during the war on grounds that the terms would be used for propaganda purposes by the Germans and Mussolini's puppet fascist regime.

They conceded, however, that the enemy had used the terms for propaganda anyway by contending that they were so severe the allies were afraid to publish them.

Publication of the terms amid official concession that a final treaty for Italy still is a considerable distance in the future pointed up the political discomfort of the nation's present position.

Still Classed as Enemy

Italy declared war on Germany Oct. 13, 1943, and contributed in increasing amounts to the allied cause from that date to V-E day. Despite this co-belligerent status, Italy still is officially classified as a defeated enemy.

As long as the armistice remains, the Italian government will have no official sovereignty, altho its actual power has increased as it has resumed domestic relations with practically all allied nations.

52% of War Workers Get New Jobs, State Reports

Fifty-two per cent of all workers laid off since the end of the war have been re-employed, Robert L. Gordon, state director of labor, said yesterday. From Aug. 14 to Oct. 27, unemployment compensation claims were filed by 320,868 workers. The peak period of unemployment occurred in the week which ended Oct. 6, when 92,055 claims were filed, Gordon said.

"O, sure, that 'Good morning, daddy,' is awfully cute—but wish you'd taught him something else!"

FAR EAST GROUP MEETS; RUSSIA STILL HOLDOUT

Washington, D. C., Nov. 6 (AP)—The far eastern advisory commission, representing all major allies of Asia and the Pacific except Russia, arranged today to receive a report on Gen. MacArthur's administration of the affairs of conquered Japan. Maj. Gen. John H. Hilldring, war department civil affairs chief, will give the report.

Foreign Commissar Molotov said in Moscow that no satisfactory method for the joint control of Japan had been arrived at by the allied powers. Russia wants an outright control council to run the country under the chairmanship of an American. The United States wants the advisory commission powers explained so that it could have certain administrative duties, probably thru a big power committee acting as a control council at Tokyo.

Representatives of 10 nations were present today and elected Maj. Gen. Frank R. McCoy, permanent chairman and former Ambassador Nelson T. Johnson, one time United States envoy to China, secretary general.

U. S. BUILDING EMPIRE FASTER THAN BRITAIN DID, M. P. ASSERTS

Cleveland, O., Nov. 6 (AP)—The United States at this moment is building up an empire more rapidly than did the British, Rhys J. Davies, Labor member of parliament for 24 years, declared today.

Here to address the Council of World Affairs, Davies said in an interview: "I have found a strange reaction in the United States. The Americans have a strong feeling of friendship for the British people and at the same time they harbor a deep hostility for the British empire.

"You are, as a matter of fact, at this moment building up an empire faster than our forefathers ever did. Your armed forces are in many, many parts of the world, which is indicative of the imperial idea.

"I don't think America actually wants this empire," Davies continued. "They are almost doing it against their will."

WILEY DEMANDS TRUMAN STOP 'PUSSYFOOTING'

Attacks Friendship with Labor 'Prodigals'

BY PHILIP DODD
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

Washington, D. C., Nov. 6—In a senate speech sharply criticizing President Truman's labor policies, Sen. Wiley [R., Wis.] today called upon the President to "disown the prodigals who have squandered the substance of this nation for more than a decade."

Sen. Wiley

Wiley's remark touched off a brief flurry of debate, which was ended when the Democrats shut off a Republican attempt to answer a challenge hurled by Sen. Lucas [D., Ill.] for administration critics to suggest a remedy for conditions of which they complain.

Charge of "Pussyfooting"

"The President," Wiley told the senate, "pussyfoots with irresponsible labor dictators who are shamelessly wrecking our reconversion program. He makes no move, issues no warning to the men who are scuttling the chances of our veterans' satisfactory return to civilian life.

"It is still my hope that Harry Truman will reverse his march down the CIO-PAC highway to ruin. America would indeed have an epic Thanksgiving if Harry Truman were soon to disown the prodigals who have squandered the substance of this nation for over a decade."

Retort by Hatch

Sen. Hatch [D., N. M.] leaped to his feet when Wiley finished and declared that the "undue criticism" leveled at the President by the Wisconsin senator would be judged "in the American way."

"The judgment of the American people will be exercised in the 1948 election," commented Sen. Reed [R., Kas.].

Joining the debate, Lucas said: "It is one thing to offer constructive criticism and another to tear down. Let those who criticize come forward with something better."

Democrats Balk Brewster

Sen. Brewster [R., Me.] immediately was on his feet attempting to answer Lucas, but Sen. Thomas [D., Okla.], who held the floor at the time preparatory to making a speech on another subject, declined to yield. Thomas did yield, however, to Sen. Morse [R., Ore.], who defended the President's action in labor matters.

Wiley's remarks were occasioned, he said, by a letter from Mr. Truman in reply to a suggestion from Wiley that a commission be appointed to study the problem of national defense, particularly the subject of peace time conscription.

Calls President Inconsistent

The President told Wiley that congress should be the responsible commission and should assume the responsibility, but Wiley told the senate Mr. Truman was inconsistent because he had called the current labor-management conference before congress had a chance to enact labor legislation.

"If such a conference is necessary, as it is indeed," said Wiley, "why is not a similar conference necessary and even more so in the case of conscription?"

NAVY DISCHARGE TOTAL EXCEEDS HALF A MILLION

Washington, D. C., Nov. 6—(AP)—Navy demobilization passed the half million mark last week-end.

As of Sunday, discharges totaled 505,000, it was announced today. Present schedules call for the release of approximately 1,200,000 by the end of the year, or more than one of every three persons eligible. The halfway mark is expected to be reached before the end of January.

"Of those in the Pacific eligible for release," officials told reporters, "the bulk if not all will be home by Christmas."

A QUESTION OF GOOD FAITH

Two somewhat conflicting items of news regarding the financial and trading relations of the United States and the British empire were published on Tuesday.

From Washington it was reported that the British and American negotiators had reached substantial agreement on the terms of a 50 year loan of from 3½ to 5 billion dollars. The interest rate is to be 2 per cent. The principal is to be repaid in annual instalments within 50 years, with the first payment to be made five years after the loan is opened. Payments will not be required, however, in any year that the British empire fails to accumulate enough exchange to discharge its obligation.

In return for these favors the British negotiators, Keynes and Halifax, have agreed in principle to put an end to various British restraints on trade, particularly to the empire preference scheme, but they stress the fact that some time will be required to bring this about. They ask a reduction in our tariffs and our negotiators seem to have agreed to work in that direction.

The other item comes from Wellington, New Zealand, and tells a different story. The New Zealand government has just announced its 1946 schedule of import licenses which virtually eliminate American goods from the dominion's market. British manufactures get the inside track. In spite of the Atlantic Charter, which pledged equal access to markets, and in spite of the lend-lease agreements which contained similar provisions, New Zealand is giving trading advantages to Britain, which fell down on her obligation to protect the dominion from the Japanese and is discriminating against the United States, which saved the New Zealanders.

Perhaps the New Zealanders haven't been kept informed of the progress of the negotiations in Washington. Perhaps the British government actually encouraged the dominions and the other members of the sterling bloc to get tough with the United States in the belief that this would add weight to the arguments advanced by Keynes and Halifax. At any rate, the incident will serve as a reminder to the state department and especially to congress to make certain that, before any loan is opened, the terms are understood and accepted by the empire, the dominions, and all the other constituents of the sterling bloc. It would be the height of absurdity to lend money to those who are resolved to hamper our foreign trade with arbitrary restrictions.

The proposed loan to Britain resembles an income debenture in that the scheduled payments will be made only if earned. That is the Keynesian touch. The borrower is left to go his own sweet way. There is no pressure on him to work harder, modernize his plant, or cut his prices and profits to acquire additional exchange with which to meet his obligations. He can continue to enjoy the long week-end at the expense of the American taxpayer and feel no shame in so doing. His credit will remain good.

Americans will wish to study the terms of the proposed loan with the greatest care. We have had enough unfortunate experience with deals of this sort to know that our negotiators are, as a rule, easy pickings for the British noblemen who come over here to get the money. Our state department and treasury boys aim to please. They look forward to the moment when they will be invited to English country houses, to hobnob with the peerage. What's a few billion dollars of the American taxpayers' money when so much social preferment is to be had for it?

THE CONQUEROR

Dr. Paul Schmidt, who served Hitler as interpreter, kept a diary, from which the Journal of Geneva has been publishing extracts. Dr. Schmidt says that in the fall of 1938 Hitler told his generals:

"I am now 50. In case the war does not start soon I shall be too old to assume the supervision of German reconstruction after victory."

A year later the war began.

The mental processes of the men who have set out to conquer the modern world by force of arms are curious. Knowing that their predecessors in the game have failed, these singular men, nevertheless, go right ahead as if all this experience were without meaning.

Part of the explanation lies in the temperament of the conqueror. He is likely to be a man with a mission, as the little quotation from Hitler's speech suggests. More than that, he is persuaded that the hand of Providence guides him. His early victories confirm him in this belief. They are to him a pledge of heaven's favor in any new ventures that he may undertake. All doubts disappear. Soon he has discarded any advisers who had warned him to go slow, and they are succeeded by yes-men.

The conqueror generally starts with a military innovation. Napoleon, in addition to his mastery of military maneuver, had a novel theory regarding the concentration of artillery, and his opponents had not yet found an answer to the new infantry tactics of France's revolutionary armies. Hitler started with the advantages of superior weapons and the technique of blitz warfare, in addition to the Prussian general staff. In each case, the conqueror had all that he needed to win his first great victories.

The question is, why don't they stop when the stopping is good. Part of the answer lies in the familiar fact that men enjoy the thing they do well, whether it be painting pictures, making war, or anything else. And ambition feeds upon itself. It is not difficult to persuade a Hitler who has won a profitable war to fight another which may be even more profitable.

The fact remains, however, that nobody likes to be conquered. The farther the zone of conquest expands the more probable it becomes that the unconquered will unite for defense, no matter how little use they have had for each other before. From the conqueror's viewpoint, each new campaign must be fought farther from home than the last, a very serious handicap. His military innovations, meanwhile, have lost their novelty; methods of defense have been found and he must expect to see his own techniques turned against him.

Your conqueror, as often as not, starts out with the notion that he will unite his world for its own good. In union there will be not only strength, but co-prosperity, as the Japanese called it. He quickly finds, however, that war is an expensive business, and that it has impoverished his own people. To keep them contented he must levy heavy tribute on the conquered, thereby adding pain to humiliation, and destroying all possibility of reconciliation. The consequence is that as he marches to his new battlefields he advances thru unfriendly territory, filled with spies, guerrillas, and saboteurs. The more he seeks to repress these people by force the more hatred he arouses.

Nevertheless, the logic of his situation forces him to his new adventures. By this time his enemies are thoroly aroused and he fears, with reason, that they will get him if he doesn't get them first. For lack of an alternative, he plunges ahead.

No modern conqueror has ever succeeded in dominating his world. A few men in the ancient and medieval records reached the goal that eluded Charles XII., Louis XIV., Napoleon, Hitler, and their like, but the world empires generally fell apart rather promptly. Evidently the nations of the world don't like to be bossed by people speaking a foreign language. It is to be hoped that Mr. Stalin has not deluded himself with the notion that plain people everywhere, yearning, as he may think they are, for the fellowship of the communist international, will welcome his Red armies.

NAVAL OFFICERS OF THE FUTURE

The navy has come out with a new plan for procuring and educating its officers. If congress approves, only half of the officers will come from the Annapolis academy. The remainder would be drawn from 52 naval R. O. T. C. units in civilian colleges and universities, from non-R. O. T. C. graduates of accredited colleges, who would be given orientation courses somewhat similar to the short order jobs the navy did during the war in training its reserve officers, and from flight schools whose graduates eventually would complete their training at Annapolis.

Fundamentally, this doesn't alter the "Annapolis club" system, which so irritated reserve officers during the war. Young men cognizant of the difficulties which reservists and "mustangs" [officers commissioned from the ranks] encounter in getting recognition or promotion will still be reluctant to enter the naval service by any channel other than Annapolis.

Far more than any other service, the navy has operated on the theory that an officer is not of the same flesh, bone, or brain cells as the men who fight under him. One critic has said that the navy considered it harder to make a gentleman than to make an officer, so it restricted its war time commissions to gentlemen and tried to make officers of them. It might be added that the naval conception of a gentleman is not the American conception, but one based on the British caste system of family, wealth, and, for want of a better criterion in this country, college education.

It may seem strange that a service which has built and operated the most powerful navy in the history of the world should be subject to such criticism. The answer is that the navy got the best personnel in the world during the war, not only in its commissioned but likewise in its enlisted ranks. Its enlisted men put up with the naval caste system so long as we were at war. They detested it, nevertheless, and their detestation has become widespread and outspoken now that the fighting has stopped and the gap in privileges between officers and men has become more apparent.

The navy is by far the hardest service in which to rise from enlisted to commissioned rank. In spite of its tremendous expansion during the war, only 22 per cent of its officers had ever served as enlisted men. The proportions were 78 per cent in the army and more than 60 per cent in the marines. It is impossible to run a modern navy with the seamen of Nelson's day, recruited in taverns or kidnaped by press gangs, and kept in subordination by flogging and marine guards. It is equally impossible to run an efficient navy with an enlisted personnel constantly conscious that they live in a caste system, and willing to submit to it. You can't find enough brains among men willing to put up with that to operate the complex machinery of modern warfare.

Naval officers should be chosen from the enlisted ranks of the navy. How they are to be trained for their duties is of less moment, whether at Annapolis or in civilian college R. O. T. C.s, or by the other methods outlined in the navy's plan.

If this country is to have an efficient navy in the future it must get rid of the Annapolis club and the caste system that goes with it and operate a naval service in which every man is assured that he can rise as high as his abilities justify.

Select the answers which you consider best. The last problem counts five points. Then look for the correct answers below.

1. In which one of these games are the moves determined by a throw of dice
   Chess Caroms Pinochle Backgammon
2. If a farmer were talking about whey, he would be referring to Tobacco Cotton Molasses Milk
3. The "seeing eye" should make one think of which sound?
   Bow-wow Meow Hoot Moo
4. If a husband gave his wife $20 per month for pin money, she would be expected to spend it for Clothes Groceries Entertainment Furniture
5. A pinafore should be associated with which one of these numbers? 5 18 32 68
6. Here is a problem in commercial arithmetic. Suppose you are shopping for Christmas gifts and see an interesting toy or game that is listed on the counter at $4. It is customary for manufacturers to sell such merchandise to retail stores at a discount of 40 per cent and 5 per cent, and to jobbers or wholesale firms for 50 per cent and 5 per cent off. An additional discount of 2 per cent for cash in 10 days is often granted. If this $4 game was first sold to a jobber, who took his 2 per cent 10 day discount, and then was sold by him to the retailer, who didn't pay for 30 days, what did the retail merchant pay for the game? How much did the jobber pay for it? What was the gross profit on the game to the retailer in dollars and cents? You deserve two points credit for each correct answer to the first two questions and the fifth point for a right answer to the third question.

Score yourself as follows: 0-2, poor; 3-6, average; 7-8, superior; 9-10, very superior. [Note—The last question counts five points.]

[Reg. U. S. Pat. Off.: Copyright: By The Chicago Tribune]

ANSWERS

1. Backgammon. 2. Milk. 3. Bow-wow [blind man's dog]. 4. Entertainment. 5. Five years. 6. Retailer paid $2.28. The jobber paid $1.86. The retailer's gross profit was $1.72.

ORIGINAL GUY

As a given name, Guy is not particularly prevalent at this country's baptismal fonts, and yet as a bit of slang it is our commonest designation of ordinary, anonymous, insignificant persons of the male sex between the ages of 8 and 80. One may note with interest, therefore, that it descends from a sinister figure in English history whose arrest 340 years ago is celebrated by English children, every Nov. 5, with prankish ceremonies. Over there, Guy Fawkes day is a sort of postscript to Halloween.

* * *

Fawkes was the trigger man and ordnance officer in a plot to blow up the house of parliament while it was in session with King James in attendance. Numerous barrels of powder, prepared for detonation with military skill, were discovered in the cellar of the building, and Fawkes was found there, too, waiting until the time was ripe. The method by which the powder had been placed in its strategic position was apparent: a tunnel into that cellar had been dug from an adjoining house.

* * *

If you want to know more about this sensational affair, consult the encyclopedias under Fawkes, Guy, Gunpowder Plot, Tresham, Francis, and Catesby, Robert. Eight men of good family, including Fawkes, were executed because of it; two others were killed in flight; another, who disclosed the secret by warning his brother-in-law to stay away from parliament, died in prison.

* * *

In celebrating Guy Fawkes day, English urchins carry an effigy, called a "guy," around in the streets and finally burn it. Amused adults will be invited to contribute to the expenses of their festivity: "A penny for the guy." In slang, "guy" first meant any fantastic or ridiculous person, and, of course, as a verb it still means "to ridicule."

* * *

Guy Fawkes himself was a unique villain, but his first name, worn smooth by usage, now means any and every creature in pantaloons in the United States.

LET WELL ENOUGH ALONE

Adam was first of a long line of guys
Who got what they wanted—and what a surprise!
The world was so beautiful in the beginning,
So harmless and fair, with no work and no sinning.
But Adam grew weary of living in state
And asked (little knowing the cost) for a mate.
You all know the story; no need to repeat,
For ever since then life has been far from sweet.
With woe and disaster their progeny grapples,
'Cause Adam was lonely, and Eve fancied apples.
The moral is simple; the wise will obey:
When life's satisfactory, leave it that way.

Sales Conference in Kitchen

"Felix," said the maitre d'hôtel, "you must cook something to increase sales in the breakfast rooms."

"Like ham and eggs?" suggested the chef.

"No," replied the maitre. "No one ever orders a second dish, and it would interfere with our other ham sales. We are doing so well since we advertised free pickle with the ham that we can charge for the toothpicks."

"Waffles?" Felix stated. "Hearty persons often eat eight or 10 at home. Mine will tempt them."

"No; waffles take sugar. That's out."

"Not my gold crust waffles," argued Felix. "People go for something free, especially pickles, even when they are as sleepy as they are at breakfast. We will serve free piccalilli on the waffles. Two helpings every third waffle. It won't turn out like your plan to save sugar in the cranberry pie by mixing the berries with marmalade."

"The pie recipe would have been all right; it would have saved sugar. It just happened that our marmalade was army surplus and never had been sweetened. Go ahead with your free piccalilli."

TO A BELATED FLY

Flee, fly, flee!
No longer pester me;
I do not wish to rise and swat you.
An antic mood seems to have got you;
You buzz around as dizzily
As an intoxicated bee.
Perhaps you're too young to remember
This is the month we call November.
Come back in May and bother me—
For your life, now flee, fly, flee!

A bulletin on the Meanest Man comes from Frank B. Marshall of a southern suburb. He reports that the Meanest Man prepared for Halloween by slapping a scarlet fever quarantine sign on his front door.

When Haroun-al-Rashid, caliph of Bagdad, found a poem that pleased him, he gave the poet 5,000 pieces of gold, 10 Greek slave girls, and a fine horse. The poet of 1945 feels equally rewarded if he "makes" the Linebook.

Friend of the Yanks

[The Friend of the Yanks will answer questions of service men, veterans, and their dependents by mail if a stamped envelope is sent to 435 N. Michigan av. The Tribune's veterans' bureau, 1 S. Dearborn st., Superior 0200, gives personal interviews.]

H. V. writes: "My husband is in the navy and stationed at Pearl Harbor. The sailors there have heard the navy will reduce the discharge point score to 39 Dec. 1. Is this true?"

Could be. The navy reduced the critical score for discharge of enlisted men from 44 in October to 41 Nov. 1 and has announced the score will be reduced monthly.

O. C. F. asks: "Would you advise a discharged veteran of 38 who took out a national service life insurance policy in 1944 to continue this type of policy as long as possible or to convert it to a smaller policy now?"

Several factors must be taken into consideration in determining whether to convert a national service life insurance policy immediately upon discharge or to wait for a few years. The first factor is the financial status of the policy holder. Premium rates for either of the three other types of government life insurance are higher, particularly the 20-pay life contract which appears to be best for a person past 35. If income is sufficient and assured, then either the 20-pay or 30-pay contract would appear to be preferable, but national service life insurance may be retained for eight years from date of the original contract at the low term rates. By continuing this type of policy it is possible for a veteran to have the full $10,000 protection, without restrictions, where he otherwise might have to take a smaller amount of insurance under another plan at the same premium cost.

SILICOSIS AND INDUSTRIAL HYGIENE

It has been said that only newborn infants have perfect lungs for, by the time adulthood is reached, the breathing apparatus has picked up and stored considerable débris. There are exceptions to every rule and these may be found among individuals who have always lived where the air is clean and pure.

The word "pneumoconiosis" is used to indicate lung reaction to the inhalation of various industrial dusts. The respiratory passages have the ability to render most types innocuous, but certain elements, notably asbestos and silicon dioxide, are capable of inducing irritation.

In silicosis the damage leads ultimately to scar formation which is usually scattered thruout the lung field in the form of nodules. On an X-ray plate the masses resemble a snowstorm. Gradually sizable amounts of normal tissue are replaced by these fibrotic changes.

It is now generally agreed that the lungs can be involved without producing any serious effect on the body at this stage. The person may appear hale and hearty and could pass any life insurance examination were a roentgen film of his chest not required. After 10 or more years of exposure, symptoms may be exhibited. Should excessive quantities, or an extraordinarily high percentage be inhaled, untoward manifestations may occur sooner.

In many, the only clew is shortness of breath on exertion, more marked during the first few hours of the day. This may be associated with cough and the expectoration of small quantities of sputum. Later, there is increasing failure of health and strength. Bronchial asthma occasionally complicates the picture, and infection, especially with tuberculosis, may supervene.

Since prolonged contact with silica fragments from quartz, flint, stones, etc., is necessary, only those employed in these occupations are likely to be afflicted. Getting caught in a sandstorm or traveling on a dirty road will not cause it. The group who grind, crush, mill, drill, or blast rock are highly susceptible. Sand blasters or others using finely divided rock powders may also become victims. Minute showers of coal, wood, iron, cement, brick, etc., are not to be placed in the same category. Should these substances be combined with silicon, however, such as is seen now and then in hard coal mines, trouble can follow.

Once the material has settled in the lungs nothing can be done to remove it. The breathing in of aluminum dust is said to neutralize that of quartz and, in some instances, when employed for treatment purposes, may avert further injury.

Prevention of additional exposure is of greater concern. The employé who is affected moderately need not retire nor should he necessarily discontinue work. In most cases it is better to remove the dust than the man. This is an engineering problem and demands adequate ventilation and masks. Thru the mutual coöperation of management and labor many of these hazards have been eliminated.

BONE TUBERCULOSIS

A. writes: Is there any known medical cure for tuberculosis of the bone without the aid of surgery?

REPLY

Some cases respond to rest; the application of a cast prevents the slightest movement. The new drug, streptomycin, may help, but since it is still in the experimental stage, no definite conclusions can be drawn at the present time.

CONSTANT IRRITATION

A. F. writes: Can anything dangerous, such as cancer, develop from biting the inside of the cheek constantly?

REPLY

Persistent irritation may lead to cancer. Common sense suggests that the habit be discontinued.

LOWER

J. H. writes: Are the heart and respiratory rates the same waking and sleeping?

REPLY

As a rule, the pulse rate and respiration are decreased during rest and increased by activity.

DOUBLETALK

W. T. writes: What can be done for a cardiac heart?

REPLY

It all depends on what is wrong. This expression is similar to saying "snowy snow" or "watery river." Both words refer to the pumping apparatus.

Ode to a Tree in Autumn

O barren tree.
Weep not;
Tho flown your leaves
Your stalwart beauty never dies.

The earth gives up its season's life
To rest
And birds are taking wing
To distant warmer skies.
Tho desolate you stand,
The time is here
To rest your weary arms.
Within you, keep your peace.

Unfair to Elegant Steeds

A gentleman who seems to know a lot about horses called up the other day with the saddest story that has come this way in a long time. Something is happening in the post-war horse world that he never thought would come to pass. Down at the horse show at the Coliseum they are being unfair to five gaited horses.

The gentleman was terribly upset. He doesn't understand it at all. [Frankly, neither does this distinguished veterinarian.] For years, he said, he and his daughters have shown horses, and when showing a five gaited horse they always wore the customary formal black riding habit with a high silk hat. To show a three gaited horse they wore the same outfit with a stiff black hat or derby. At the current horse show here this has been reversed. The high silk hat is being worn with the three gaited horse and the five gaited horse has been relegated to the ignominious derby.

Now this, the gentleman said, is all wrong. The five gaited horse is a much more highly schooled animal than the three gaited and so should have the honor of the high hat. He was so distraught that he called an outfit here in town that handles riding clothes.

"They couldn't give me any information at all. Moreover," and his tone was extremely hurt, "they seemed to think the five gaited horse inferior to the three gaited. Do you know what a five gaited horse is?"

An affirmative response did not deter him. "All horses can walk, trot, and canter," he continued, "but, in addition, a five gaited horse can singlefoot and rack.

"Why," he continued without a break of breath, "you probably don't know the correct way to carry a riding crop. This matter was brought up once when I was judging at Detroit. They finally appealed to me to make a decision. I came home and did a great deal of research on it. The correct way is to carry it across the horse's neck in the right hand with the fingers about four inches from the top. Down at the Coliseum they are even carrying some of the riding crops wrong.

"Know why a riding crop is made the way it is?"

This time he triumphed. The answer was negative.

"Well, the usual thing always was with a stag horn at one end and a loop at the other. The stag horn on the crop is used to open and close fences, using the horn as a hook on a rail fence to lift up the bar and to replace it in position after going thru. If the fence had a latch fastening you slip the loop over the latch to swing it open and drop it back on with the loop."

This was quite discouraging to Constant Veterinarian here, who had heretofore thought horses dealt with fences by jumping them, but the upset caller kept right on. "You probably don't even know who is supposed to carry a riding whip," he ventured. [He was right.] "Only the trainer!"

Not only the five gaited horses were being treated unfairly at the horse show, he went on, but the dressage horse [It walks, it dances, it prances!] as well. Why, he saw the man riding it use his spurs once—and his hands, too! That was a serious breach of equestrian etiquet, but it didn't bother him half as much as the derby on the five gaited horse. He went right home from that show and cornered his wife. "When our daughters were showing five gaited horses, what did they wear?" he demanded. "Don't be silly," she replied. "You know what they wore. Naturally they wore high silk hats."

SAILORS AGAINST CONSCRIPTION

San Francisco, Cal., Oct. 25—The morning paper distributed on this ship, the U. S. S. Dawson, contained President Truman's recommendation to congress for a year's military training for every young man between the ages of 17 and 20.

This discussion regarding military training has been going on since the first peace draft. The argument now advanced by the pros seems to have dwindled down to one basic reason, namely, "I went thru it, let them go thru it. It will do them good"—not how much will the nation benefit by the training received by these young men or how great is the necessity for a reserve army and navy.

In every war in which the United States has participated, the army and navy have, in a short period of time, trained enough, adequately, to insure a victory for us, so why take every able bodied youngster away from his home and family for a year to teach him how to become cannon fodder in the true army and navy style?

DEATH MESSAGES OVERSEAS

Flossmoor, Ill., Oct. 25—On Sept. 9 I phoned the Red Cross, asking them to help me contact my brother, who is a merchant seaman with a San Francisco P. O. address, in regard to the death of our father that day. They said they could not help me, as he was not military personnel. I then phoned Western Union, sent a telegram, which they accepted, telling me it would be wired to San Francisco, then mailed. I have received a letter from my brother from Leyte dated Oct. 5 in which he said he had received letters from me dated Sept. 12 and 15, but had not received a telegram.

Today I called Western Union in Harvey, asking why the telegram wasn't traced. They informed me that they assume no responsibility of wires sent to military personnel in this country or out. It seems a shame that a message of death of a boy's father can't be sent when a congratulatory one can instead.

TWO CLEWLESS MURDERS JOIN UNSOLVED LIST

Investigators Balked in Slaying Inquiries

Two more clewless Chicago murders yesterday headed toward oblivion along the classic trail blazed by scores of similar cases before them. Even the murders themselves adhered to well worn patterns.

In one, James Townsend, a newspaper truck driver, was walking along a sidewalk near his home. A small dark coupe pulled up beside him, a man got out, fired two bullets into Townsend's head, got back in the coupe and disappeared.

In the other, Alex Bromberg, 73, an inoffensive neighborhood shopkeeper, credited by gossip with secreting sizable sums of money in his store, was found dead, his hands bound with wire, his body charred, on a bed in a room behind his store.

A coroner's jury viewed Townsend's body and continued the inquest until Nov. 27 to give police more time to investigate. Another coroner's jury, or maybe the same one, will view Bromberg's body at 11 a. m. today in the morgue.

ROBBERY BELIEVED MOTIVE

Trixie, a black and white Spitz dog, appeared disconsolately yesterday at the rear door of the small magazine and candy shop at 457 W. 31st st., where its master, Alex Bromberg, 73, was found dead in a rear room yesterday, his hands bound with wire, his body burned almost beyond recognition.

The dog was taken in charge by Mrs. Dorothy Vann, 29, of 431 W. 31st st., a neighbor, who said that until a year ago Bromberg owned a fierce police dog, Garbo, which accompanied him everywhere. After Garbo died, she said, Bromberg got Trixie, and, altho Trixie appeared friendly and harmless, Bromberg always kept her in a shed in the rear of his shop, for fear she might bite some one.

Missing Over Night

Trixie was missing when the body was discovered Monday night and did not return to the shop until yesterday.

Police sought vainly for clews to Bromberg's slayer or slayers. Their investigation convinced them that if the killers sought money Bromberg was believed to have hidden in his shop, they were disappointed. Bromberg's war bonds, they learned, were in a safe deposit box belonging to a son, George, of 6853 Cornell av., research director for an advertising agency.

Inquiry at the United Savings and Loan association at 1012 W. 31st st. disclosed that Bromberg was known there, altho officials declined to say whether he had an account. Neighborhood gossip was that Bromberg distrusted banks, and for that reason, kept his money hidden in the store. Police view this as the most likely motive for his death.

No Bullet Wound

Henry Eckhardt, assistant corporation counsel in charge of fire investigations, said he was unable to learn whether Bromberg carried any insurance on his store. The deed to the property, he said, was turned over to Bromberg's son a year and a half ago.

Investigation by a coroner's physician disclosed that Bromberg had not been shot, as was at first supposed because of a wound in his head. Death was ascribed to asphyxiation. No finger prints were found in the small rear bedroom other than those of Bromberg.

Bromberg had been married three times. His first two wives are dead. His third wife, divorced, is employed as a waitress. Police said she has twin sons by a prior marriage.

QUESTION TWO IN SLAYING

Altho police yesterday held two persons for questioning in the sidewalk slaying Monday night of James Townsend, 38, of 3316 Wallace st., newspaper truck driver, who was shot to death in front of a tavern at 3301 Wallace st., they were unable to uncover any motive for the killing.

Frank Panatera, 19, of 2956 Wallace st., a porter, one of those held, voluntarily submitted to a lie detector test, with negative results. The other, Charles [Specks] Di Caro, 33, of 604 W. 25th st., refused to submit to a lie test, police said.

Both were questioned in the state's attorney's office, where they insisted they had been attending the horse show at the time of the shooting, and produced ticket stubs.

Widow at Inquest

Di Caro is a brother of Joseph and Sam Di Caro, who were held as accessories in the murder of Charles Vinci, Townsend's brother-in-law, who was slain in the Point Inn tavern, 2501 S. Halsted st., in 1942. Witnesses to the shooting were unable to identify either Panatera or Di Caro as occupants of the death car.

Chief Justice Harold G. Ward in Criminal court dismissed an application for a writ of habeas corpus presented in behalf of Panatera and Di Caro by Attorney Harold Levy after instructing police to book the two men or release them by 10 o'clock last night. Police filed disorderly conduct charges before that hour.

At the inquest, at which Coroner Brodie presided, Townsend's widow, Marie, a blonde dressed in a green coat and modish black hat, testified between fits of weeping that she had no idea why any one should want to kill her husband.

She said he worked every day, always brought his pay home, never ran around, and had no evil companions.

Samuel Lavin, of 4508 Monroe st., a circulation division superintendent for the Chicago Times, for which Townsend worked, testified that Townsend was a reliable employe who handled considerable sums of money.

AGREE ON ROUTE FOR HIGHWAY TO DOUGLAS PORT

City, County, and State to Share Costs

A tentative route for the northwest super-highway of 16.3 miles connecting the Douglas airport with the north side, the loop, and the Congress st. super-highway was agreed upon yesterday by city and county officials who met in the office of President Clayton F. Smith of the Cook county board. An agreement also was reached that the financing of the 58 million dollar project should be divided among the city, county, and state.

The tentative route, providing an eight lane depressed high speed super-highway along a northwest diagonal route, will include outlets into Ontario st. for near north side traffic, into Wacker dr. for loop traffic, and connect with the Congress st. super-highway for south and southwest bound traffic.

Route Subject to Change

The route agreed upon, but subject to change, starts at Congress st. near Halsted st. and runs north to a point between Milwaukee and Elston avs., thence northwest diagonally to Foster av. Dividing there, the airport route will run west in Foster av. to Narragansett av., then north to Higgins rd. and northwest in Higgins rd. to the airport.

The other branch will connect at Foster and Cicero avs., with Edens pkwy., another super-highway planned to run northward in Cicero av., and Skokie blvd., into Lake county and Wisconsin.

Capable of Handling Traffic

Under earlier plans Edens pkwy. was to have been extended down Clybourn av. to Division st. on the east side of the north branch of the Chicago river. Whether this will be carried out in addition to the airport highway and other northwest routes was not determined, but the super-highway bridge planned for the airport route in Ontario st. will be capable of handling the heavy north side traffic to and from the airport.

The airport highway will include eight lanes of traffic from Congress st. to the point where it divides at Foster av.

Other Meetings Planned

Representing the county at the meeting, the first of a number of preliminary conferences on the airport highway project, were President Smith, Dan Ryan, chairman of the county board's finance and roads and bridges committees, and Maj. George Quinlan, superintendent of the county highway department.

Representing the city were Virgil Gunlock, commissioner of subways and super-highways; Ald. Bowler [25th], chairman of the city council finance committee, and Ald. Kells [28th], chairman of the council's traffic committee.

REPORT MISSING GIRL WAS SEEN IN LONG BEACH

San Jose, Cal., Nov. 6 (AP)—A mysterious telegram from Long Beach stated that Thora Chamberlain, 15, who disappeared from here last Friday, had been seen in Long Beach today.

Her father, Frank Chamberlain, said if the girl actually is in Long Beach, "She is there because she's being held." The family has no relatives or friends there, he declared.

The telegram was filed in Long Beach at 12:2½ p. m. and was addressed to the San Jose News. It was signed "a friend, Campbell High school class of 1944." Miss Chamberlain attended Campbell school and was last seen near there as she stepped into an automobile driven by a man.

Deputy Sheriff Phil Cuffaro said earlier that he feared harm had befallen the girl. Kidnaping for ransom was out of the question, he declared.

SLAIN WOMAN'S ARMY HUSBAND ARRIVES HOME

Pontiac, Mich., Nov. 6 [Special]—Capt. Franklin Young of the army air force, husband of the slain Alberta Rose Young, 34, whose body was found Wednesday in the Clinton river near here, arrived here today after a flight from France. He told Sheriff E. K. Thomas he was in Paris Saturday when he read of his wife's death in Stars and Stripes.

[Associated Press Wirephoto]
Capt. Franklin Young leaving jail in Pontiac.

Capt. Young said he last saw his wife in July, 1943, before he went overseas, and since that time has sent her $5,500. He said he knew nothing about financial transactions which caused her bank account to drop from $3,000 to a few cents and led her to charge Larry Theis, 29, formerly a co-worker in a war plant, with swindling her out of $4,500.

Sheriff Thomas said he is holding Edward Bellm, 47, a former Detroit police lieutenant, for questioning in connection with the slaying. Bellm has an automobile he says he bought from Mrs. Young for $960. The sheriff said that Theis, held in New York at the request of Michigan authorities, has agreed to return here.

COURT IS UPSET BY DIPLOMAT IN MORALS CASE

Ulrich R. Beusch, 50, of 850 Lake Shore dr., acting Swiss consul in Chicago, caused considerable confusion in Judge Jay A. Schiller's South State Street court when he appeared to face a morals charge yesterday.

Ulrich Beusch

Beusch, who was charged with "lewd, wanton, and mischievous conduct" by Detective Edward Hoffman of the police commissioner's office, produced cards signed by Police Commissioner Allman, Gov. Green, and the United States state department stating that he had diplomatic immunity to arrest except for a felony.

Municipal court experts conferred. Bailiffs scurried to consult lawyers in the hall. Judge Schiller suggested dropping the charge. Police held the immunity was for traffic violations only. City Prosecutor Burton Jaman called his boss, Corporation Counsel Hodes, for help, but Hodes was out.

The case finally was continued until today. Detective Hoffman said the consul made improper advances to him at Clark st. and Delaware pl.

THE OLDEST CORDIAL HOUSE IN AMERICA

GREEN OPPOSES KELLY ON SLUM HOUSING ISSUE

Backs Private Enterprise to Build Homes

BY GEORGE TAGGE

Gov. Green took issue with Mayor Kelly yesterday on city plans to use all slum clearance funds for three public housing projects. The governor said that tax exempt charity housing is no answer to the vast housing shortage.

The city council is expected tomorrow to give control of a 5 million dollar city bond issue to the Chicago housing authority, New Deal sponsored agency that favors public housing. Kelly also wants to give the CHA about $4,300,000 in state slum clearance funds.

Green Backs Private Enterprise

Green supported the stand last week of Temple McFayden, chairman of the state housing board, who said that Chicago's share of 10 million dollars in state slum clearance funds must be used to aid private enterprise do the job unless it refuses to do so. The governor addressed the Englewood Kiwanis club at 6547 S. Union av.

The governor envisioned wide distribution of the benefits of state slum clearance funds in Chicago, rather than concentration in a few sectors. If a portion of a city block is modernized, the entire block perks up, he asserted. When the executive mansion in Springfield was painted, near-by buildings were not slow to follow suit, he recalled.

Community Action Advocated

Only community action can restore the vast blighted areas around the downtown district, he said. What is true of Chicago also applies to virtually every city in Illinois, he asserted.

"Public action, using the power of eminent domain, is necessary to buy and clear these properties," he said, "but private enterprise must do the major part of the job of restoring them to usefulness.

"The money from the state is not for construction. It was the intention of the administration, and of the general assembly, that the land so acquired should be made available for resale to private individuals or corporations at prices that would permit construction of homes for the workers of the community.

"Of course, where private enterprise cannot do the job, the community may elect to proceed with public housing projects if the necessary funds can be obtained locally or from the federal government.

"Cardinal principles of our state program are opportunity for private enterprise and home rule. . . Rather than concentrating all available housing on one or two large projects, we should consider using the state housing fund to acquire and clear small areas in many residential sections of the city, such as Englewood."

Makes Plea for Veterans

Gov. Green said that war veterans should be given priority in rental or purchase of the housing thus provided. There are 32,000 veterans asking now where they can buy or rent shelter, he said, and aldermen believe the number will reach 110,000 by next year.

"The state housing fund could provide the foundation for immediate and constructive action that would produce within a few months thousands of homes for Chicago veterans," he said.

Mayor Kelly brushed aside the governor's suggestion about using slum clearance funds for veterans' housing. Legal complications would prevent use of the money for so long a time that it is useless to consider it, he said. He added that veterans wouldn't care to live in slum areas.

It became a certainty yesterday that 200 pre-fabricated homes will be built for war veteran-students and their families on University of Chicago property south of the Midway between Cottage Grove and Maryland avs.

Building Trades Change Stand

Patrick F. Sullivan, president of the Chicago Building Trades council, gave his permission for this construction after conferring with Ald. Moss [5th] and Ald. Lindell [9th], council housing committee chairman. Sullivan previously had opposed the move as one that would create new slums.

"We have to work together in this emergency," Sullivan said.

Conditions attached to his approval are: the city council must not amend the building code to permit pre-fabricated housing, but must issue a temporary permit; the emergency shelters for veterans must be removed within two years.

1,000 SANTAS SEEK TO CHEER WOUNDED VETS

Tribune Plan to Aid Men in Hospitals

BY HARRY McCLAIN

Whole hearted response to THE TRIBUNE'S campaign for Christmas gifts for soldiers and sailors in hospitals was evidenced yesterday by the receipt of more than 1,000 letters seeking the names of such service men. Many of the letters ask for from two to six names of service men, to whom the writers intend to send giftfs.

More than 40,000 wounded and sick fighters are in 21 army or navy hospitals in 10 central and middle western states.

Gifts May Be Sent Directly

Tribune readers who desire to supply a bit of cheer to these men at Christmas may do so easily by clipping the coupon in an adjoining column and mailing it with an addressed, stamped envelope to the Friend of the Yanks. To those who want to send a Christmas gift to a sick or wounded service man, the Friend of the Yanks will supply a name or names during the first week in December. Personal gifts then may be sent directly to the hospitals.

Many of the military hospitals also have a considerable number of women patients—WACs, WAVES, and marines. Their names also will be collected and distributed among Tribune readers.

Participate for Third Time

Among the thousands of requests for names received thus far are letters from readers who are taking part in the Friend of the Yanks Christmas gift program for the third time.

"This is the third time our family has taken part in the campaign," a Chicago Heights reader wrote. "Last year we were limited to one name, but the previous year we received 10. We believe that your campaigns have done much to let the sick and wounded know that they have not been forgotten. Congratulations are due for your fine effort." The letter also contained a request for three names.

Mother Wants to Help

"Wonder why I have missed this opportunity before?" another reader wrote. "I certainly want to help this year."

"Please help me find a bit of cheer this year in pretense," wrote a widowed mother. "My son was killed on Okinawa last April, so if I can get the names of two service men I can pretend they are mine."

THEY READ and WERE HEALED

WHILE FULL PROVISION is made in Christian Science for specific treatment for the sick, many people have been healed, not a few of them when their condition had seemed hopeless, simply through the thoughtful reading of the Christian Science textbook,

SCIENCE and HEALTH with Key to the Scriptures by Mary Baker Eddy

The last hundred pages of the book are given over to testimonies of such healing.

These remarkable experiences illustrate the influence of thought on the condition of the body — an influence fully explained in Christian Science. They show how thought is improved as it takes in the message of this book, and how the body naturally responds to the improvement.

The complete authoritative statement of Christian Science and its method of overcoming disease and other evils, including fear, lack, strife, and grief, is given in "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures."

GIRL, 18, ADMITS PERSUADING TRIO TO AID IN HOLDUP

Before a showup audience in the detective bureau last night, an 18 year old girl admitted that she, with another girl, inspired a strong arm robbery. She is Miss Nancy Ahlberg, 1015 Dakin st.

In custody with her are Mrs. Marge Polaski 19, of 915 Dakin st., who said her soldier husband was killed in battle; Paul Bodenshak, 21, of 4120 Kenmore av., and Bob Mutter, 17, of 849 Wolfram st. Police charged that the four overpowered Samuel Di Fina, 4040 Clarendon av., a chef, near his home early yesterday and robbed him of $99.

Miss Ahlberg, questioned by Deputy Detective Chief John Warren, said she and Mrs. Polaski conceived the idea of robbing Di Fina after she had seen him flash money. The young men, she said, tackled De Fina and she and the other girl searched him. Mrs. Polaski denied the holdup. Police said that the young men, who have never been in trouble before, admitted their role, but said they were drunk.

JURY ASSAILED FOR ACQUITTAL IN DRAFT CASE

'Miscarriage of Justice' Scored by Judge

Altho a co-defendant in a draft evasion case had pleaded guilty, a jury of eight women and four men in federal District court yesterday returned a verdict of not guilty for George Nick Alex, 38, of 9355 Spaulding av., Evergreen Park. Judge John P. Barnes, who heard the case, said it was the "second worst miscarriage of justice" he had ever seen. It was learned Judge Barnes ordered the background of each juror investigated.

"Ladies and gentlemen," Judge Barnes told the jury, which returned the verdict after one hour and 10 minutes of deliberation, "I have sat here for 15 years. This is the second worst miscarriage of justice I have seen. You and each of you is discharged from any further jury duty in this building."

Others Were Convicted

The government had charged—in a pattern set in two previous draft evasion cases linked to this one—that Alex gave Frank Cerone, 32, of 5048 Marine dr., $1,000 to obtain Alex' deferment. Cerone, convicted on two previous charges and already under sentences totalling 10 years in federal prison and $20,000 in fines, pleaded guilty to this charge last Monday. He will be sentenced today.

Federal witnesses included FBI agents, Chief Petty Officer Albert Stevenson, now serving time in Great Lakes naval training center brig for his part in the conspiracy, and Chief Specialist John Curran, who aided the agents in trapping the conspirators.

Under questioning by Assistant United States Attorneys George G. Kelly and Bernard Sokol, the navy men testified that Stevenson received the money from Cerone to obtain Alex' deferment. Alex is a truck driver employed by the city.

Denies the Charges

Alex, questioned by his attorney, Harold L. Levy, testified that he didn't know Cerone, didn't have $1,000, would have turned in the conspirators if he had known of any scheme, and was willing to serve in the navy when he reported for induction.

Judge Barnes later explained that the "worst" case, in his opinion, was a not guilty verdict returned by a jury June 24, 1942, in a personal injury suit against an interstate trucking firm. In that case, records revealed, Mrs. Martha Moleski of Grand Rapids, Mich., was killed, her husband, two sons, and a brother-in-law were injured in an auto and truck collision near Michigan City, Ind.

Masqueraded as Conspirator

In the two previous cases in which Frank Cerone was convicted, his brother, James, 25, was sentenced to five years in prison, and William [Smokes] Aloisio, 37, and his brother George Sam, 23, were each given five years.

The government charged that Frank Cerone met Stevenson in a loop bar, persuaded him to falsify navy papers at the induction center, and paid him money to do it. Curran, approached by Stevenson, told his superior officers and then masqueraded as a conspirator until FBI agents trapped the evaders.

Jury Members Listed

Foreman: John L. O'Donnell, 1034 W. 104 pl.; W. D. Johnson, 1508 Larrabee st.; Joseph T. Johnson, Negro, 465 W. Division st.; James J. Kennedy, 6731 N. Maplewood av.; Rosemary Fetter, 5410 Quincy st.; Rosa Felsher, 939 Cullom av.; Kathleen V. Falvey, 1110 E. Marquette rd.; Leone Levendis, 1153 Hollywood av.; Mabel I. Davis, 218 E. 44th st.; Helen S. Davidson, 7424 Bennett av.; Mrs. Ardelle Jones, 5457 Thomas st.; and Anna M. Haier, 5047 N. Kolmar av.

Several members of the jury said last night that four ballots were taken before the final vote for acquittal. The first vote was 6 to 6, then 9 to 3, and 10 to 2 for not guilty until the fourth and final ballot.

Refuses to Comment

Foreman O'Donnell refused to comment on the deliberations. Joseph T. Johnson, Negro undertaker, explained that he thought the government failed to present enough evidence to prove conclusively that Alex paid money for the rejection. "I held out longer than anybody else for conviction," he said. "But there were a bunch of sob-sisters on the jury and you know how they are."

Kathleen Falvey declared that she, too, held out until the last for conviction.

"I am still not in favor of the decision, but I guess that the majority rules and that's why at the last vote I changed," she said.

Seven slot machines seized Sept. 18 in the clubroom of the Southtown post, Veterans of Foreign Wars, 7121 S. Halsted st., were trundled into Judge Jay A. Schiller's South State st. court yesterday and opened by Earl Carey, a post member.

A yield of more than $100 in coins was turned over to the post by the court because the raid in which the machines were seized was made without a warrant.

Capt. Patrick Collins of Englewood police, who said he'd have come to court without the subpena issued when he failed to appear on Monday, explained that he'd been too busy. Police were permitted to keep the machines to be destroyed.

VETERANS CAUSE CRIME! BALONEY, SAYS FBI AGENT

The often repeated statement that returning soldiers and sailors are potential killers and will spark a crime wave was called "baloney" yesterday by Inspector John J. McGuire of the Washington, D. C., office of the federal bureau of investigation. He spoke at the National Armored Car association convention in the La Salle hotel.

He said crime figures rose each month of the war and that the first nine months of 1945 reveal a 10 per cent increase in crime over the same months last year. McGuire predicted that crime would continue to increase and said juvenile delinquency would be largely to blame for it.

ROBNETT LIBEL TRIAL HITS HOT PACE AT OUTSET

Each Side Accuses Other of Fabrication

Six men and six women jurors began hearing yesterday the $100,000 libel suit in which George Washington Robnett, executive secretary of the Church League of America, is seeking damages from E. P. Dutton, Inc., publishers of the book "Under Cover," written by John Roy Carlson.

Attorneys for the publishers and Robnett clashed in their opening statements, each accusing the other side of fabrication.

Atty. Harry S. Ditchburne, representing Robnett, said he would prove that statements on the cover and in the book were "untrue, false, and defamatory," and "the sneakiest kind of stool pigeoning and espionage ever done." He termed Robnett a literary genius.

Defense Assails Robnett

Lloyd D. Heth, attorney for Carlson and the publisher, said he would prove the church league that Robnett heads and an allied organization, the National Laymen's council, are "pure fiction" and a front for Robnett.

Carlson, Heth said, is an Armenian born in Greece, who came here when he was 12. He was a $50 a week investigator for Friends of Democracy, Heth said, and the book was based on material gathered in his work.

The material that Robnett asserts defamed him is contained in five pages that purport to describe a meeting between Carlson and Robnett. At this, Robnett is alleged to have assailed the Jewish people. Heth said the real issue is whether Carlson printed what Robnett told him.

Woman Sues Author for Million

A million dollar libel suit was filed against Carlson under his real name of Arthur Derounian in federal District court yesterday by Mrs. Grace Keefe, 6209 S. Laflin st., and Carlson was served with a summons during a recess of the Robnett case.

Mrs. Keefe, former secretary of We, the Mothers, Mobilize for America, Inc., charged that Carlson ruined her reputation by quoting only part of a letter signed by her in an article written by him and published in the November, 1944, issue of the Woman, a magazine.

SUGGEST LAWS TO HALT THEFT OF UNION FUNDS

White Plains, N. Y., Nov. 6 [Special] — Legislation to protect the public and labor unions against "faithless union officials" was recommended today in a report by members of the Westchester county grand jury, which spent six months investigating the financial affairs of local 60, AFL International Hod Carriers,' Building, and Common Laborers' union.

James Bove, secretary-treasurer of the local and vice president of the International, is serving 10 to 20 years in Sing Sing prison for looting the local's treasury.

Murray M. Lent, foreman of the jury and a White Plains insurance broker, said that before their discharge last July the jurors agreed to the following recommendations released today:

All unions should be required to file copies of their constitutions, by-laws, and amendments; they should be required to file an annual financial report; officers having the custody of funds should be required to furnish indemnity bonds; and an annual audit of the books should be made under public supervision.

Warner W. Faris, 9639 Forest av., a machinist mate 2d class who was discharged from the navy recently, went to the Red Cross office at 529 S. Wabash av. yesterday to repay a debt, only to be told that he couldn't pay.

The Red Cross paid the expenses for the funeral of Faris' father William W. Faris, who died Oct. 31, and because the former sailor's wife is ill and he is jobless Red Cross officials refused to consider his offer to arrange repayment. Faris served 20 months in the Pacific.

With Faris was his brother-in-law, Corp. Fred W. Johnson of Cable, Wis., who spent 21 months in a nazi prison camp. En route home after receiving his discharge, Johnson said Red Cross parcels had kept him and other prisoners of war alive in spite of poor rations in prison.

Make Yourself A
HIGHBALL

Know how to make a correct highball? Lots of people don't, so we're giving you the recipe below! We call it a $2,000,000 "dream of a drink"—because that's what Fleischmann invested in grains, skill and research before we released one golden bottle of this rich, luxurious, straight bourbon whiskey. We make it in limited amounts. We have to—it's so good!

FIRST, GET FLEISCHMANN'S BOND
THEN DO THIS!

1 Place the ice cubes in an empty 6 or 8-oz. glass. Connoisseurs say the ice must go in first!

2 Then, add 1½ ounces of delicious Fleischmann's Bond. A good highball needs Fleischmann's smooth creaminess!

3 Fill with club soda or ginger ale. For a perfectly mixed drink, place ingredients in glass in the order given!

CHICAGO ENVOYS TO LONDON WILL HOP OFF NOV. 14

Chicago's four man delegation to persuade the allied nations preparatory committee to select this city for the organization's permanent headquarters will leave for London Nov. 14 by plane to present their case, Mayor Kelly said yesterday.

He has named three members: Corporation Counsel Hodes, William L. McFetridge, labor leader, and Leverett Lyon, executive director of the Chicago Association of Commerce. Curtis MacDougall, professor of journalism at Northwestern university, has expressed willingness to serve, but must obtain permission from the university, the mayor said.

President Franklyn Bliss Snyder of Northwestern, Chancellor Robert M. Hutchins of the University of Chicago, and Henry T. Heald, president of the Illinois Institute of Technology, refused because they were unable to spare the time.

The mayor plans to go to Washington, D. C., Friday to attend a dinner for Postmaster Gen. Hannegan. He will later travel to New York to see the London delegation off.

MAYOR OPPOSES PLEA OF MOPS VOLPE FOR PRESIDENTIAL PARDON

Anthony [Mops] Volpe's appeal to President Truman for a pardon to avoid deportation to Italy met with an unenthusiastic reception yesterday from Mayor Kelly, who said of the former Al Capone hoodlum:

"The sooner we get rid of him and his ilk the better off Chicago will be. People like Volpe dragged Chicago's name down for years, and now that its lustre has been restored we don't want any part of them. They'll drag it down again if they have the chance."

The mayor said that because Volpe's appeal is a federal matter he would not take any official action. However, he said, he wanted to be on record as opposed to giving him a pardon.

After his arrest in June, 1943, police quoted Watt as having admitted setting fire to five barns in the Barrington area. He is now employed in a furniture factory at Rockford.

Smart Parents Do Not Accent Nonessentials

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS

[Copyright: 1945: By News Syndicate Co., Inc.]

Some parents seem to think that to raise their children properly they must watch every small act or naughtiness like hawks and correct it, and that does the trick. But it doesn't.

What I mean to say is that if you everlastingly keep at the children about little misbehaviors, the fundamentals of character building will not take care of themselves.

Or, to put it another way, if you constantly make an issue of small things, you are apt to lose sight of the big ones. You get so you use yourself up, and the children, too, on little things, and the important things go "by the board."

Do you know what I mean? For instance, do you make a great point of manners, in the family and before strangers? Do you make a terrific fuss about muddy feet and clothes, toys left about the house, and noisiness?

Naturally I admit that we must achieve a degree of mannerliness, orderliness, and cleanliness. But do you constantly stir up the home atmosphere over these things? Something big will get lost in the cloud of dust if you do.

You only have just so much time and energy. If you will use it on these big things and let the others remain side issues I am sure you will find, in the long run, that those little things will take care of themselves.

If your child is all right fundamentally, don't worry too much about the nonessentials. A sense of perspective helps a lot, and making an issue of small things obscures important aims.

Glittering Hat Tops Off Suit in Dramatic Way

BY REA SEEGER

A hat still completes a costume; it still takes the crowning glory of something vividly dramatic on the headline to redeem an otherwise ordinary suit or coat or dress. Newest arrivals, glittering theater and dinner hats or millinery designed for dress parade affairs, are something to tempt any lady miser to spend her hoarded cash.

The shine and glitter alone is worth the price. Sequins, beads, tiny bits of mirror, long and short bugle beads, and twinkling rhinestones and other simulated jewels are used for the very effective creations. All this is the most decorative and fine handwork, handwork that can be managed only with the most skilled artistry.

John Frederics presents precious one of-a-kind hats or turbans made of fine brocade in lush pastel colors. Sometimes there is only enough of the brocade to make only the single hat. The brocades are exquisitely swathed and draped in picturesque tall and wide turbans, blazing with the extra adornment of jeweled motifs. Bulk and height are achieved with deft draping. Other sensational turbans of brilliant colors—blue, gold, green, and scarlet—are of rich sheened satin, some with as much as two or two and a half yards of satin meticulously tucked and folded, then draped and molded to the headlines.

Daché borrows lotus-like head dresses from China, trims them lavishly with birds, antennae, feathers, and jeweled flowers to make gala occasion hats for occidental sophisticates. For contrast, see the demure little black felt Victoria hat. The entire brim is outlined with dancing passementerie balls. But it is just one among the many new and original dressup hats for midseason.

The bidding

South	West	North	East
1 club	Pass	1 spade	Pass
3 spades	Pass	4 hearts	Pass
5 diamonds	Pass	5 hearts	Pass
6 hearts	Pass	7 spades	Pass
Pass	Pass

There is ample sway for the graphic arts in contract bidding. Methods involving point counts and tabulation of the number of aces held are surely less charming, and frequently less effective, than the drawing of clearly defined pictures.

Where a void suit is held, the bidding of slams is greatly facilitated by the discovery not of the number of aces partner holds, but specifically which ones.

Today's hand was submitted to me by a Chicago correspondent who advised that among a group of experienced pairs who held this lovely thing, none was able to reach the maximum contract. While they all sensed the strong likelihood that a grand slam was there and were tempted to take the bull by the horns, they were aware of no method to arrive at a seven bid with assurance.

I submitted the cards to a number of my favorite partners and, by coincidence [or perhaps not], each of them made bid for bid the calls appearing in the diagram above.

The opening bid of one club, the response of one spade and the rebid of three spades call for no comment. North, holding a very high grade bid himself, never intended to settle for less than six spades, but if partner held certain specific cards, namely the ace of hearts and the ace of diamonds, the grand slam would be a moral cinch. He therefore bid four hearts. Normally after a violent support of a major suit the naming of another suit would indicate possession of the ace, but North had no option but to probe in this manner. South dutifully showed the diamond control and North made another descriptive bid of five hearts, showing an enormous two suiter and apparently giving the opener a further opportunity to tell something.

South now realized how important the ace of hearts must be to partner and bid six hearts at this point. This did not express a desire to play at that suit, since spades had been agreed upon, but was merely a showing of the ace. It now became easy for North to contract for a grand slam in spades. Note that South for his previous bidding might have had a hand containing the ace and king of clubs and be lacking the ace of hearts. The number of aces held was not the prime question. It was which ones?

Inquiring Camera Girl

By Maryon Zylstra

[The Tribune will pay $5 for each interesting question submitted by a reader and used by The Tribune. Today's question was submitted by Frank Demeter, West Hall 204, Bloomington, Ind.]

THE QUESTION

Do you think girls should be included in the proposed compulsory military training law?

WHERE ASKED

Orrington av. and Davis st., Evanston.

THE ANSWERS

Robert F. Lisch, typesetter, Green Bay, Wis.—Girls don't need military training. It might be well to give them an extra year of education to teach them how to cook and keep house, but there's certainly no need for training along military lines. It would be too big a drain for a useless purpose.

Mrs. Edythe Beattie, receptionist-secretary, 827 Forest av., Evanston—If there was another war and women were needed, they could be trained much more easily than men for auxiliary jobs. So few of them would ever have any use for the military training that it certainly would be a gross waste of money.

Mrs. Fred J. Mackie, secretary, 622 Hinman av., Evanston—I think the result would not justify the money that it would cost. Too large a percentage would marry and would never be available to the government. Training may be beneficial, but taxpayers certainly would suffer injustice.

Henry Knippenberg, aircraft engineer, San Diego, Cal.—I think it's a poor idea because of the increase in taxes that would result. Women can learn the auxiliary jobs that are necessary in times of war in very short order, if it is necessary. If they could be taught something that would make them better wives, I'd favor it.

Jene Winters, cashier, 4867 Magnolia av.—In addition to high school a training of this kind would give every girl an opportunity to meet all kinds of people and would give her an invaluable education. However, because that is not the purpose of military training, it would be impractical.

Harold W. Nelson, hotel manager, 1570 Oak av., Evanston—In view of the fact that enlistments were about sufficient to fulfill requirements of the auxiliary services in World War II., I would not be in favor of compulsory military training for women. It might do some good, but would be a waste of money.

Lands to South Prove Alluring to Chicagoans

BY JUDITH CASS

THE lure of the "south of the border" lands is proving irresistible to a number of Chicagoans who are finding the sunshine of Mexico an excellent antidote for long months of army and navy service.

The Daggett Harveys left yesterday to fly to Mexico City for a month's holiday there and in Acapulco. When Mr. Harvey arrived three weeks ago from Tokyo his wife met him in New York. Since then he has received his discharge from the naval reserve, in which he served as a lieutenant commander. The Harveys will be house hunting on the north shore when they return from Mexico. Mrs. Harvey's mother, Mrs. Frank E. Wilhelm, returned yesterday from Denver, Colo., where she had a week's visit with her son, David.

Mrs. Alden B. Swift, her two daughters, and their husbands all will be Mexico bound this winter. Tomorrow the Paul Rowans [Lydia Swift] will leave for a holiday in their house in Taxco, following a reunion with their friends here. Mr. Rowan returned last month from Okinawa and last week received his discharge from the naval reserve, in which he served as a lieutenant.

At present Mrs. Rowan's sister, Mrs. Clinton B. King, and her artist husband are in New York, where some of Mr. King's paintings are on view with a three week exhibition of Mexican painting and opened Monday in the Knoedler galleries. Before going back to their home in Taxco they will return to Chicago, probably to be here for the Christmas holidays. The Kings' Astor st. house, which belongs to the James R. Offields, now has reverted to its original owners, as the Kings in turn have subleased it furnished to the Offields' son and daughter-in-law, the Wrigley Offields. The young Offields are being welcomed back to Chicago from Santa Barbara, Cal., where they had been living since 1942.

Engagement News

Guests at Mrs. Robert Guy Bear's cocktail party in Evanston yesterday who had thought they were being invited to drink toasts to welcome Mrs. Bear's son-in-law and daughter, the L. Gifford Gardners, back to Chicago found another reason for raising their glasses—the engagement of another daughter of the family, Miss Letitia Anne Bear, to Lt. Gilbert H. Gendall Jr. of the naval reserve. Miss Bear and Lt. Gendall met shortly after he was assigned to navy duty in Chicago following service in the New Hebrides. Their marriage will take place in the spring after his release from active duty.

Miss Bear attended Connecticut college and received her degree from Northwestern university. Lt. Gendall, son of Mr. and Mrs. Gendall of Chalfont, Pa., was graduated from Cornell university.

Now that young Mr. Gardner is out of the navy following duty in Grosse Ile, Mich., he and his wife have rented the junior Robert L. Scotts' home in Starr rd., Winnetka, for six months. The Scotts are celebrating Mr. Scott's release from the army by a six month holiday in Nassau, leaving Chicago around the end of this month.

The Bears' family reunion yesterday was not quite complete, for Lt. Robert Bear still is in France awaiting transportation home. Another sister, Mrs. William Pope, is busy this week welcoming one of her Wellesley classmates, Mrs. Gordon Connor of Wakefield, Mich. Mrs. Connor will speak on "Forestry Futures and Conservation Misconcepts" at a meeting of the Winnetka Garden guild at 1 p. m. today in the Winnetka home of Mrs. Robert Landess Lasater. On

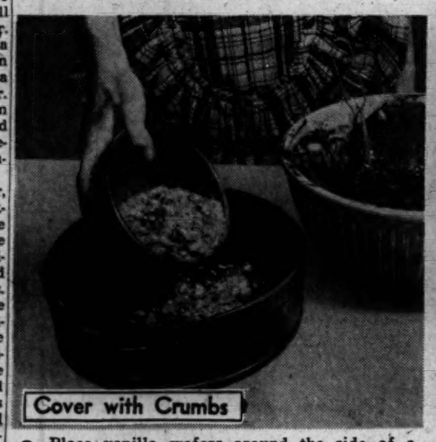
Here's How to Make Chocolate Refrigerator Cake

1. Combine 3 squares sweet chocolate, ¼ cup boiling water, and 6 tablespoons sugar in top of double boiler, stirring occasionally. When smooth, add 8 well beaten egg yolks.

2. Cook two minutes longer, then add 1 teaspoon vanilla and ¼ teaspoon salt. Slowly pour cooked ingredients into 8 stiffly beaten egg whites and fold in carefully.



3. Place vanilla wafers around the side of a spring form pan and fill with half of chocolate mixture. Crush about 1 dozen vanilla wafers and sprinkle over chocolate layer.

4. Pour the remaining chocolate mixture over crushed wafers and chill overnight. When ready to serve, top with a thin layer of whipped cream and shaved chocolate.

Rust Proof Shelves of Plastic Featured in New Refrigerator

BY EDITH WEIGLE
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

Evansville, Ind., Nov. 6—Seen from the air, the factory visited in this city sprawls over 66 acres. Not far away the Ohio river flows lazily by, the city on one side, protected by a levee, and broad, rich farm lands on the other.

Not long ago this plant was turning out deadly land mines, 37 mm. cartridge cases, wings for P-47 Thunderbolt fighters, air cooled aircraft engine cylinder heads, and other products useful in killing. Now there is still plenty of noise, heat, and clatter, but it's made by men, women, and machines busy manufacturing refrigerators. And these refrigerators are not run by electricity, but by gas.

Heat is used to produce cold! A little flame turns the trick, and it can be a kerosene gas flame or it can be bottled gas as well as the kind that comes out of pipes. That means, of course, that this ultra-modern refrigerator can be used practically anywhere. A kerosene model kept blood plasma at the right temperature in North Burma during the war, and others were used by the military forces in similar far outposts.

Because there are no moving, wearing parts in its freezing system, this refrigerator has an unusually high degree of efficiency and silence of operation. Its makers claim it "simply can't make a noise." The refrigerant is circulated within the unit by natual forces instead of by machinery.

The engineering department of this Evansville plant has been evolving a new type of sliding shelf which we saw being manufactured and which we're sure every woman will like because it is white, like the interior of the chest itself. The moisture in any refrigerator tends to rust metal shelves, but this new shelf is dipped in a solution of two plastics which give it a gleaming, spotless, white finish. It won't chip, scale, or crack, nor will fruit or food acids affect it.

In any dipping process, a small blob of the solution gathers at the corner or lowest point of the object. Because the makers want this shelf to be perfect, even this little bump must be eliminated. So an elaborate system, called the Bansburg electrostatic de-tearing process, has been installed. In a sterile, glass enclosed room the dripping wet shelves are conveyed by moving belts, hanging in mid-air over powerful electric currents which attract the "tears" or drops like magnets and pull them off. The shelves come out smooth from one end to the other. This work is done automatically and no one enters the glass room.

In the factory's laboratories we saw three testing rooms. In one the temperature is kept at 100 degrees and the humidity so great that it's almost raining. [Reminded us of Trinidad]. Here six refrigerators were operating day and night. And all were freezing ice cubes neatly and with dispatch!

One of the new features of this post-war gas refrigerator is a series of sliding shelves which are finished in white plastic and will not rust.

In another room a similar test is carried on under conditions of continual cold. And in a third the refrigerator works in a sound-proofed space, so it can be tested for silence of operation.

The company maintains a model kitchen where a home economist tests recipes for the special recipe booklet that is given with each refrigerator and where other ordinary in the home tests are made.

The new refrigerators are coming off the assembly lines daily and are being sent to distribution centers all over the country. Sizes now being made are the 4, 6, and 8 cubic feet.

There is plenty of room in the freezing unit compartment for frozen foods without removing too many ice cube trays. In the center section, by taking out one double and one single tray, about six pounds of frozen foods can be stored. This storing process is not to be confused with the quick freezing of fresh vegetables or fruits. No provision is made for such work in this refrigerator.

Petri Opens Piano Series with Masterly Recital Crowned by Magnificent Chopin

Even the stage of Orchestra hall was crowded last night when Egon Petri launched the Musical Arts Piano series with a masterly recital crowned by magnificent Chopin. Perhaps this was the first time in Chicago that Mr. Petri's acclaim matched his attainments. At least I can remember no rival demonstration in his honor except possibly that which followed his performance of the colossal Busoni Concerto six years ago, with Frederick Stock and the Chicago Symphony orchestra.

One of Mr. Petri's troubles with the average audience is that he is slightly larger than life size. The man is not only a formidable technician, but an intellectual who probably knows as much as any living person about the literature of the piano. It simply doesn't occur to him to make up a program of pretty tunes. At previous recitals on this series he has played both Beethoven's Hammerklavier and the Diabelli Variations, and last night his journey into the unusual was the rarely played "Fantasia contrappuntistica." Busoni's chorale prelude and quadruple fugue on Bach's unfinished fugue from the "Art of the Fugue."

Many a musician has been tantalized by the sudden breaking off of Bach's glorious last work. He feels that a door of untold importance has closed in his face. Busoni did not go beyond that door, for what lay back of it was Bach's untold secret, but he speculated on the mystery with the clear headed logic of a keen mind concentrated on the monumental. I for one am deeply grateful to Mr. Petri for his brilliant exposition of a work that in its way is a talented kite hitched on to genius.

But fortunately for the Dutch pianist, he neither began nor ended there. The first part of the concert was devoted to his own transcriptions, the third part to Rachmaninoff and the Chopin etudes of opus 10. Particularly effective in the first group were his chaste and gentle setting of Buxtehude's chorale prelude, "Now We Pray to the Holy Ghost," and a cleanly flowing version of Bach's Menuett. Somehow, "Sleep May Safely Graze" seemed to fit Mr. Petri's mind better than his hands—it was rather as if papa tried to sing the lullaby because mamma was busy.

But the Rachmaninoff Variations of a Theme of Corelli clung movingly to the twilight of the gods of romanticism until at the end it lapsed into a clinical study, and then came the revelation of the evening. Chopin that all by itself could brush off the mawkish aura of Hollywood popularization. It was superbly played in the grand style and when Mr. Petri reached the "Revolutionary Etude" the piano tone had that arching crest of splendor you hear about once in a half dozen seasons if you are lucky. The encores, which I was unable to hear, were the Polonaise in A flat and Liszt's arrangement of the Spinning Song from "The Flying Dutchman."

Notes

Happy birthday to the "Ice Follies," which began its spectacular career 10 years ago today in the Hotel Sherman, where the Shipstads and Johnson will celebrate with a dinner and broadcast this evening from 4 until 7 o'clock. . . . "The Student Prince" ends its Studebaker engagement with matinée and evening performances Sunday, Nov. 18. . . . Elisabeth Bergner and Schuyler Watts are reported in controversy over the ownership of Jean Giradoux's play, "Undine." . . . Jerome Moross, who wrote "Frankie and Johnny's" music, is adapting Lully's score for Bobby Clark's "The Would-Be Gentleman." . . . With Maurice Evans in "Hamlet" will be Frances Reid as Ophelia, Lili Darvas as the queen, and Thomas Chalmers as Polonius. . . . Music Notables Guests at Party of Opera Guild

BY HARRIETT PRIBBLE

A fire in the restaurant below the smart little Arts club on the second floor of the Wrigley building added to the minor traffic jam that piled up before the entrance to the club at 3 p. m. yesterday, when the Illinois Opera guild entertained at an afternoon musical. "This is a regular maze," remarked one of the feminine guests, contemplating the labyrinth of satins, feathers, and furs thru which one had to thread his way to the gold chairs placed in the lounge for the hour-long program.

Two of the special guests, Bruno Walter and Fausto Cleva, had to slip out to return to their duties at the Civic Opera house just after the concert. However, the four artists, Bidu Sayao, Rosalind Nadell, Kurt Baum, and Nicola Moscona, stayed on to mingle with the guests at tea, along with the wives of the latter two and Miss Sayao's mother, Mme. Maria Jose Oliver Sayao.

Attractive Mrs. Baum, whose blondeness was offset by a black satin gown and peaked black hat with red roses above its wide brim, replied when asked whether she shared her husband's talent, "Goodness, no—one singer in the family is enough!"

John Brooks McCormack and Louis Sudler, who made their operatic debuts this season with the Chicago company, also dropped in during the tea hour. Mrs. Abner Stilwell, wife of the Chicago Opera company's president, qualified three times over on the price of admission [one new number for the guild] by bringing Mrs. Hugo Vogel, Mrs. Waldo Logan, and Mrs. Robert H. Morse Jr. Mrs. Logan, with a froth of flesh-colored tulle piled atop her bonnet, and Mr. Logan were accompanied by Capt. René Dussaq of the army.

A few of the others gathered about the black enameled tables were the William D. Saltiels, Mrs. William E. Ragland, Mrs. William Spurgeon, Mrs. Vernon Loucks and her daughter, Mrs. Richard W. Whitten; Mrs. Russell Hobbs, Miss Mary Jane Brummel, in bronze crepe trimmed in twinkling bronze beads and a corsage of exotic gloriosa lilies; Mrs. Ashley Brand, and Mrs. Walker P. Eastman.

White Collar GIRL

BY RUTH MAC KAY

Re-Application

My companions I choose with the greatest of care,
My temper I curb—and I brush my long hair,
I always am proper—in fact quite discreet,
My work habits good — my letters are neat.

Altho not "dismissed," for reasons I quit,
But you didn't seem too sad about it!
And yet you did say I could come back again—
O, gosh, tell me, boss, what job — where and when?

DOTTIE

Vice Presidential Campaign

Who but Bill Gloer could be the white collar girls' candidate for the vice presidency of the United States? How about it — shall we make Bill our grass roots choice for vice president? He'll win on the platform "A man for every WCG." How can he lose?

D. M. S.

Bill Accepts

Well, in the first place I do not choose to run. On second thought I guess I will—if I'm drafted for the vice presidency. Come to think of it, I believe I'm well qualified for the office.

Now, girls [WCG darlings all of you], if we win we shall all sit on top of the piano and make whoopie. If anything goes wrong, we'll blame it on the American people. And you, Ruth, will have to be my campaign manager and you may quote me till you're blue in the face.

BILL GLOER

What to Do!

I should like to appeal to the readers of your column for a solution to a problem confronting me.

It's this: One of the dictators in our office insists on writing a highly informal letter to the accounts in general yet invariably winds up with "Very cordially yours." And another thing—he will write to a firm such as "Soggy Pastries, Breadline, Neb., Dear Mr. Baker." I was taught to write "Gentlemen" when addressing a firm even tho the letter might be called to the attention of Mr. Baker. If "Dear Mr. Baker" is what is intended, or just plain "Dear Bill," then shouldn't the letter be addressed to "Mr. William Baker, care of Soggy Pastries"? What to do! what to do!

White Collar Quote

"I believe in the job I'm doing, in the firm I'm working for, and in my ability to get results. I believe that honest goods can be passed out by honest people by honest methods . . . that we get what we go after . . . that one deed today is worth two deeds tomorrow, and that no one is down and out until he has lost faith himself.

"I believe in today and the work I am doing, in tomorrow, and the work I hope to do, and in the sure reward which the future holds. I believe in courtesy, kindness, generosity, good cheer, in friendship and honest competition. I believe there is a more important job ahead for every one ready to do it. I believe in preparing for that job—right now."

Thru the Looking Glass

You know how good a real stretch makes you feel? You get it from the tip of your fingers right down to the toes and delight in the wonderful sense of relaxation that follows. There's nothing like it to take the kinks out of the body, and it's a fine practice to cultivate if you're naturally tense.

When you step out of bed in the morning, give a hearty stretch, raising the arms high, as if you were reaching for the ceiling, and pull the backbone up until each vertebra seems separate. Feel the pull of it in your legs, stretching the muscles out long and letting the toes spread apart. Make it a cat-like stretch, long and luxurious. There's nothing to equal it to banish grogginess and bring you a fully awake, alert, and alive feeling.

Follow that morning stretch with other well timed ones during the day. If you work at a desk or pound a typewriter all day, stretch whenever you feel yourself getting all tied in knots and achy across the back of the neck and thru the shoulders. You don't even have to get up from your chair to do it. Just raise the arms, wave the fingers high in the air, and throw the head back in a counter-pull. Push your legs out in front of you, extending them as far as possible. Let yourself relax in a real slump after stretching, and when you pull upright again you'll feel renewed energy and be able to work at full speed once more.

Stretching is an excellent passive kind of exercise to help you keep flexible and lithe. Don't overdo it so that you feel any strain, but get that comfortably elastic sensation as if you were actually pulling yourself tall and taller. Of course you'll have to mind your manners and not stretch when you have an audience, but do sneak a few in whenever you have a lone minute.

WHOSE HIPS DOES YOUR CORSET FIT?

When your professional Charis Corsetiere takes your complete figure measurements, you'll probably find that your present foundation really does not fit your hips! It's because you bought your corset by bust size alone...and two women wearing the same size, rarely have the same proportions. Your Charis Corsetiere, after analysis of your figure, prescribes your corset from as many as 77 models in a single size. No wonder Charis cradles every curve...gives your figure new beauty!

IT MUST GIVE THE RIGHT SUPPORT OR YOUR GRADUATE CHARIS CORSETIERE WON'T LET YOU WEAR IT!

"With Bated Breath"

By Alice Campbell

(Copyright: 1945: By Mrs. Alice Ormond Campbell)

SYNOPSIS: Avis Marriott accepts a job as a companion-housekeeper to Maud and Erica Bolles, wealthy spinsters, until she can return to her Red Cross work. Maud, a local autocrat, known for her charities, has grown strangely penurious in her home. Erica, childish, a semi-invalid, is dominated by Maud. A couple of guests and an evacuee family live with them at Turrets. Dr. Bruce advises Avis against accepting the position, but drives her over. Turrets is an isolated English manor with an abandoned underground passage. Avis' predecessor, Agatha Trimble, left under a cloud, suspected of theft. Robin Grier, Maud's godson, has been in valided out of the army. Mrs. Marks, a widow and family connection, seems too sophisticated for her surroundings. Avis arrives during a violent domestic scene with the departing cook calling Maud a cheeseparing sinner.

INSTALMENT III.

IN THE TURRET

"Your room," Miss Marriott," Miss Bolles said. "You will want to change, I sincerely trust," she continued, "it will not be necessary to summon a constable. Possibly my godson—O, there you are, Robin!" She wheeled in relief.

"My sacred aunt!" came from the doorway. The young man glimpsed in the lane listened intelligently to the terse instructions given him, and said: "Right, I'll throw her out."

"Come, Miss Marriott," Miss Bolles jerked, and led the way forth from the basement.

Up and up. Past a line of bedroom doors on the second floor, to more stairs finishing at the topmost limit of the house. The last flight, unlike the other, which was carpeted, was covered with linoleum highly waxed. Similar linoleums rendered perilous the three additional steps almost directly facing the summit and leading to yet another closed door.

"My sister's apartments," Miss Bolles brusquely motioned. "She has a bathroom which you will share. It is unwise for my sister to be alone up here. The arrangement is her choice, not mine."

Proceeding along the balustrade toward the front of the house she turned a doorknob and switched on a dismal bedside lamp.

"It is extremely regrettable, Miss Marriott, that you should be entering upon your duties at so awkward a moment. I appreciate your willingness to step into the breach. You will find me below."

A bump shook the door.

"Come in?"

It was young Mr. Grier, with her suitcases. He burst in grinning.

"You oughtn't to race upstairs like that," she admonished. "It can't be good for your heart."

He had got his wind and to her bewilderment was raising a conspiratorial hand. She listened. Sure enough the strange scratchy voice of Miss Erica Bolles had taken up once more its gaily gruesome refrain.

"O-o, the Mistletoe Bough——"

"Hist!" said Robin Grier solemnly. "Did you ever hear a cockroach sing?"

Avis giggled guiltily, but she was stuck for a reply. Perhaps Robin realized he shouldn't have made a crack like this to her, a complete stranger, for with another impish grin he was gone.

Eerily a second face appeared by her own in the damp-clouded mirror. A young-old face, unearthly, with strange protuberant eyes between bobbing ringlets of faded hair. She whirled round on the inner door so furtively cracked open. A small, skinny creature in a juvenile print dress came mincing in.

"How do you do?" Miss Erica Bolles asked politely. "Won't you sit down?"

"It's icy in here," Avis managed. "You won't get a chill?"

"Cold?" The younger Miss Bolles seemed astonished. "Why it's quite summery. I took my tea on the roof. I'm hunting Benjamin—my rabbit, you know. Has he scampered in here?"

Avis declared she hadn't seen him, but humored what must be a delusion by prodding vigorously under the bed. It was Robin's dog, Miss Erica confided, that made her so anxious. Always trying to sneak upstairs. Maud hated dogs, wouldn't allow this horrid dog in the house. Unfortunately Maud hated rabbits as well.

"Only," — with a child's cunning — "she can't deprive me of my Benjamin. Because, you see, she simply doesn't dare."

A hand stole shyly toward her. A friendly hand. Avis took it, and gave it a quick squeeze.

"Now," Miss Erica announced determinedly, "I shall have my dinner downstairs."

A dark shape sped wickedly into the unlit passage. "Benjy!" Miss Erica darted in pursuit.

"O, do be careful," Avis cried, her heart missing a beat as she thought of the slippery linoleum. The rabbit was caught, however, and being cuddled against its owner's cheek.

"In you go, you rogue!"

Erica was opening the door obliquely facing the long flight and led up to by the three sagging steps.

As she popped her pet inside Avis got a bird's-eye glimpse of a round table littered with pictorial magazines, of shabby armchairs, and of a decayed rabbit hutch propped at the far end of a gimcrack old upright piano. This room, she was proudly informed, was once the schoolroom. Now it was Miss Erica's own personal retreat.

"Not at all tidy, as you see. Benjamin will eat his straw."

Nodding brightly, Miss Erica vanished, and alone on the top landing Avis viewed the dim vista stretching past a ladderlike iron stairway toward the extreme rear of the floor. It seemed incredible and dismaying that in a house of this size and inconvenience there appeared to be only two maids kept.

As Avis entered the kitchen, Mrs. Marks strolled in. The white coat still dangled negligently from her shoulders, but she'd done things to her face.

"Rotten for you," Olive Marks sympathized. "Want any help?"

Avis insisted she could manage, and after one or two totally ineffective efforts at assistance Mrs. Marks yawned on her way. Whatever could have induced a woman of this type to stagnate in the abysmal countryside at the mercy of two old maids was a real mystery.

At moments a truculent male grumble penetrated from the room beyond the wall. Mrs. Bandy's husband, it appeared, had joined his family for short leave. Footsteps kept creaking toward the kitchen to retreat in high dudgeon, and finally the woman herself burst in, sausages in her hand, demanding how much longer her man was to be kept waiting for his tea. In front of her thrust Pvt. Bandy, hair black and spiky, eyes malevolent in a red, pitted face.

"We've a right to the stove, see?" he declared nastily. "My missus 'as a deal to put up with best of times, stuck down 'ere underground and all them empty rooms up top. When it comes to standing round arf the blinking night—"

"We're dishing up now," Avis placated. "There! The place is yours."

The dining room was an icebox, its leather seated chairs sent rigors down the spine, while even the button-chrysanthemums in their chaste silver vases seemed nipped by frost. No sign of Erica. Since Miss Trimble's departure, so Hilda said, she had been having all her meals upstairs. Seemingly she had changed her mind about coming down, but no, just as the others were seated in she pranced and pushed a chair close to Avis' side.

Here and There

At 4:30 p. m. today in the British embassy in Washington, D. C., Wells Farnham will see his son, Wells Farnham Jr. of the American field service, receive the British empire medal. The medal, which will be presented by British Ambassador Halifax, is being given young Mr. Farnham "for untiring energy and bravery in the face of danger" while serving in a unit with the British 8th army and particularly for an incident on the Cassino front. When, while on his way thru Cassino, he learned that three seriously wounded Indian soldiers were lying under a bridge, he stopped, "personally dressed two of the cases, and evacuated all three safely during continuous shelling, and with complete disregard for personal safety," the citation reads in part.

An impressive engraved invitation in gold leaf lettering and coat of arms on heavy white paper from his imperial majesty's ambassador and the countess of Halifax requesting Mr. Farnham Sr.'s presence this afternoon will be one of his prized remembrances of the occasion. Young Mr. Farnham, who served in the middle east, Italy, and South Austria for two years, will enter business in St. Paul, Minn.

Looking at Hollywood

By Hedda Hopper

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., Nov. 6—Paul Henreid's next picture at Warners will be a scarem, "The Beats with Five Fingers," with Andrea King—no reference to her hand, of course. It's a mystery yarn by William F. Harvey and has Bob Florey for director. . . . Looks as if "Forever Amber" had its keel on the way at 20th Century. Vincent Price is being tested for Almsbury—a high comedy relief role, one of those blue-blooded wags he plays so superbly. . . . With Eddie Foy Jr. about to sign a long term contract at Metro, it's a case of the family history repeating itself. Jr.'s success comes at 38; his father was never a big Broadway figure until he hit 40. . . . "Life with Father" has been more than lucky for the indestructible Sam Goldwyn. He not only picked up Teresa Wright from it, but now he's got Cathy O'Donnell. Both girls go into "Glory for One." Could that "one" mean Sam?

A Party That Was a Party

Mike Romanoff gave a costume party that will be pretty hard to top in our town. It's strange that a place where we earn our living dressing and undressing will, at the drop of a hat, run itself ragged getting costumed for a "come-as-your-ancestor" party. However, there were very few remnants of ancestry to be found. Most of the girls thought they were descended from queens, and got themselves up accordingly. . . . I think the quartet composed of Lili Damita, Ethel Barrymore's son, Sammy Colt, Marian Barbee, and a young naval lieutenant, had the best time. They were dressed in sheets with holes cut in for eyes and mouth to represent ghouls. They were the last to unmask. Plenty of people came in their ordinary clothes—among them Errol Flynn, a new blonde beauty, Helen Morgan, and her brother, Henry Ginsberg, and the Mort Blums. Mrs. Jules Stein got the prize for having the most beautiful costume. Why not, since Irene designed it for "Dubarry Was a Lady." Mrs. Stein never sat down in it until after she'd won her award which was bestowed by the captain and headwaiter. Bill Powell, who came as the dustman, padded from head to toe, and with the word "Dust" on his chest, won the second prize. Then Mike's own crew bestowed a prize on him and started singing "For He's a Jolly Good Fellow." He sure is.

Black-Out of a Romance

Since Mike's party I don't believe you'll be seeing much of Rory Calhoun and Lana Turner. From now on, unless I'm mistaken, it'll be Lana and Bob Hutton. I wonder if those boys realize how much publicity they get out of our glamor girls. . . . Errol Flynn tells me the prettiest sight he ever gazed upon was his new boat sliding down the ways from a dry-dock between a battleship and a merchant marine tanker just five minutes before the dockworkers went on strike. . . O, O! Ruth Pidgeon told it on husband Walter. Every time he has to make a personal appearance outdoors he guards against pneumonia by wearing long woolies. The ounce of prevention should be worth a pound of disillusioned fans. . . . Everybody's been told so many times that Bubbles Schinasi is an heiress, I think we might just as well get it straight. She was born Leonora Solomon and adopted Schinasi when her mother married him. Her half brother has the money.

That Finishing Touch

Van Johnson has just finished attending his third opera here. Said he never was able to afford such things before. When I asked him what he thought of it, he said: "Well, I love music and I suppose it's culture." . . . You hear so many stories about how our boys are being treated. Well, here's one I think just about tops 'em all. It concerns young John Agar, the bridegroom of Shirley Temple. When Shirley drove to Salt Lake City, Utah, to spend a first week-end leave with John, she phoned him on arrival. He took the call in a booth. It was hot so he unconsciously removed his cap. He told Shirley he had the afternoon off and would be with her in half an hour. He left the booth and was just putting on his cap when he was spotted by a young man apparently doing his duty. Young Agar was sent back to camp and not allowed to go out that afternoon, 'cause he had his cap off. . . . Humphrey Bogart keeps in character even when he sells bonds. In a short the other night, he was up there on the screen asking the audience to buy another bond while he gave a hitch to his trousers. I ducked—I thought he was reaching for a gun. . . . And have you seen Lauren Bacall play an English girl in "Confidential Agent" with a midwest accent you could cut with a knife?

SOUTHWORTH QUITS CARDS TO PILOT BRAVES

In the WAKE of the NEWS

BY ARCH WARD

ROUNDY COUGHLIN, the sage of Madison, predicts that thousands of fans will flock to Soldiers' field to see Elroy Hirsch when he joins the Chicago team of the All-America conference. . . .

Coughlin rates Hirsch the best back Wisconsin has produced in recent years. . . . Hirsch will not be the only former Big Ten star in the Chicago team's back field. . . . John L. Keeshin has signed Billy Hillenbrand and Charles Jacoby of Indiana, George Franck of Minnesota, and Don Griffin of Illinois, as well as Hirsch. . . . Cleveland's Municipal stadium is a better spot than Soldiers' field to watch a football game, but Chicago does a much more efficient traffic job. . . . A taxicab that loads at the Cleveland stadium can't get back for another haul. . . . Lighthorse Harry Cooper, professional at Oahu golf course, Hawaii, will make the winter tournaments along the Pacific coast. . . . Notre Dame has the football coaching situation in the San Francisco Bay district well in hand. . . . Buck Shaw is at California, Clipper Smith at the University of San Francisco, Moon Mullins at Santa Clara, Jimmy Phelan at St. Mary's and Marchmont Schwartz at Stanford. . . . Comdr. Swede Hagberg, football coach at the Naval academy, isn't disturbed over the shooting from fans who think the Midshipmen ought to have a better record. . . . He became accustomed to shooting of another type around Rabaul. . . . Army and Notre Dame have had more than 315,000 requests for tickets to Saturday's game in Yankee stadium. . . . Bob Margarita of the Bears is one of the most underrated half backs in professional football. . . . He is one of the best ball carriers this department has seen this season. . . . The Green Bay Packers will support our estimate.

The post-war sports boom is going full blast. . . . It started with 135,000 applications for the 1945 All-Star football game, the first big event after the collapse of Japan. . . . The world series broke all records for attendance. . . . College football is enjoying one of its most successful seasons. . . . Attendance at the Blackhawk's early hockey game indicates a new high. . . . Patronage at the week of charity racing in progress at Sportsman's Park promises to set a new mark for the enterprise. . . . Professional football is packing 'em in. . . . The United States had a golden era of sports in the 10 year period after World War I., but it will be dwarfed by the boom just getting under way. . . . Joe Louis, who is said to be in love again, contemplates backing a new dance band in Los Angeles.

Cycles of Life

A bit of warming sunshine,
And then bone-chilling rain,
A blustering, wintry wind, and then
The calm of spring again.
Our lives, much like the seasons,

Lighthearted, carefree, gay,
Then a bit of sorrow,
Bitter tears that fall,
A cold and raging temper,
Then the peace that comes to all.

Where We Might Find Him

We search for God in the mountain's glow
And we hope to find him there,
While lowly hearts in the vale below
Can always find Him in prayer.

We search for Him in the stars above
And the depths of the ocean wild,
While He bends down to tell his love
To the trusting heart of a child.

To find Him out and define His chart,
Our chances are somewhat slim;
The only way direct to His heart
Is to open your heart to Him.

CHARITY MEET BETTING TOTAL HITS $1,471,884

Honor Board Today at Sportsman's

BY MAURICE SHEVLIN

The Chicago Tribune Charities, Inc., and the management of Sportsman's Park today will pay tribute to members of the Illinois racing board as the six day charity meeting at the Cicero track goes into its third afternoon.

The pari mutuel handle yesterday was $712,899, which brought the total for the first two charity days to $1,471,884. The attendance was 8,219, compared with Monday's turnout of 7,319.

Tomorrow's sixth race, a $2,500 handicap, has been named in honor of Maj. Ednyfed H. Williams, chairman of the racing board, who is serving his fifth year in that capacity, a racing year which has eclipsed all others in attendance and pari-mutuel wagering.

Record Is Good

Followers of thorobred racing thruout the nation are high in their praise of the way the sport has been supervised and conducted in Illinois during that period. The board has given its fullest coöperation in war time drives for relief and charitable institutions, and Illinois ranks with the leaders in contributions.

Today's supporting feature, a $2,000 allowance sprint, will honor William E. Fay, while the seventh event on the nine race program has been named for the third member of the board, Frank E. Mandel, chairman of the rules committee.

26th Winner for Nichols

Lightfoot Lady, a 3 year old daughter of Yellow Tulip-Puritan Lady, accounted for yesterday's feature with a sturdy stretch run under Billy Nichols' guidance. The M. H. VanBerg speedster scored by a neck over F. E. Keller's Lucky Colonel and returned $7.80. Good Ground was third in a six horse field.

The seven furlong race, the Sweet Hightower purse, gave Nichols his 26th trip to the winner's circle during the fall racing at Sportman's. It also gave the Omaha, Neb., owner, who trains his own horses, his ninth victory.

A short priced daily double, $23.80, resulted from victories by Baychamp in the first race and Liberator in the second. J. W. Martin and Rafael Sanabria were the winning jockeys.

Saturday's nine race card will get under way at 12:45, President John L. Keeshin said. Post time for the first race today is 1 o'clock.

City Curtails Post-Season Prep Games

All post-season games scheduled by Chicago Public High school football elevens, except the City league play-off contests and the Kelly bowl championship meeting between the public school and Catholic league champion, were canceled yesterday by Dr. William H. Johnson, superintendent of city schools.

Dr. Johnson said he had conferred with August H. Pritzlaff, physical education director of the board of education, and Pritzlaff had agreed to notify school principals and coaches that their teams should not play extra games now that the regular league season is concluded.

Dr. Johnson said his action was occasioned by the unsportsmanlike behavior of a minority of students at high school athletic contests, and said his decision was a warning that students guilty of such conduct should correct their behavior.

The announcement started rumors that the Austin-Harrison west section play-off scheduled for Saturday, the semi-final play-offs Nov. 17, the City league championship Nov. 24, and the charity game sponsored by Mayor Kelly Dec. 1, had been canceled. These rumors were unfounded. All games will be played.

HOGAN, SHUTE TIE IN NORTH, SOUTH GOLF 1ST ROUND

Pinehurst, N. C., Nov. 6 (AP)—Ben Hogan and Denny Shute came within a stroke of the competitive course record today with 6 under par 66s to tie for the first round lead in the $5,000 North and South Open Golf tournament. In third place in the record field of 164 starters was Henry Ramson, Houston, Tex., with 69. Eleven players bettered par.

Lt. Cary Middlecoff of Memphis, Tenn., topped the amateurs with a 70 and was tied for fourth in the open division with Herman Kaiser. Bobby Cruickshank, veteran bidding for his fourth North and South victory, was bracketed with Toney Penna, Gene Sarazen, Vic Ghezzi, Ed Furgol, and Felix Serafin, at 71.

Bob Hamilton, winner here last year and just discharged from the army, scored a par 72 to join Sam Snead of Hot Springs, Va., and nine others.

$3,060 DOUBLE AT BAY MEADOWS; 6 HOLD TICKETS

San Mateo, Cal., Nov. 6 (AP)—Six persons won $3,060.70 apiece in a record daily double at Bay Meadows race track today.

The track did not reveal the holders of the lucky combination for the first and second races.

GOOD WEATHER—GOOD RACING—GOOD CAUSE

Taking advantage of the favorable late season weather, these race fans flock to Sportsman's Park for second day of charity meeting sponsored by the Chicago Tribune Charities, Inc. Yesterday's attendance was 8,219. The charity programs will continue thru Saturday.

POOLE, STAR END, REJOINS CADETS; TO OPPOSE IRISH

West Point, N. Y., Nov. 6 [Special]—While the Irish of Notre Dame licked numerous battle wounds out in South Bend, Army took the practice field today a bigger and better football team than ever. After staying on the sidelines with an injured knee—George [Barney] Poole, West Point's star end, is ready to play Saturday.

Poole has been on the bench for the tougher contests, but against Villanova the knee successfully passed its test, so he will be among those present Saturday.

McGURK WINS PROMOTION

Notre Dame, Ind., Nov. 6 [Special]—Jim McGurk, senior naval trainee, has been moved up from fourth string full back to second string in an effort to bolster the injury riddled Notre Dame squad as the Irish prepare for their clash with Army Saturday in New York.

McGurk, who played in his first collegiate ball game against Iowa two weeks ago, turned in a good performance for 30 minutes in the Navy game and probably will see plenty of action Saturday. Frank Ruggerio, who has 13 stitches in his chin and lip as a result of injuries suffered against Navy, probably will start against Army with a special mask, but Irish coaches are attempting to find replacements to bolster the department. John Panelli, second string full back, is out for the season with a shoulder separation.

OFFER DEMPSEY $250,000 A YEAR IN TELEVISION

New York, Nov. 6 (AP)—Max Waxman, manager of Jack Dempsey, said tonight that the former heavyweight champion has been offered the directorship of an organization to be formed for the promotion and televising of boxing shows at a salary of $250,000 a year.

The offer came from an advertising company, Waxman added, but he declined to reveal either the company's name or its location. He said the contract, calling for the formation of a subsidiary organization to the advertising company, has been drawn up and awaits the return of Dempsey, who is a commander in the coast guard and is now on a Victory bond tour.

Dempsey was in Birmingham tonight and was to leave for New Orleans.

If the deal goes thru, Waxman added, Dempsey would start working with the organization in 1946. Dempsey is expected to return to New York about Nov. 28 unless the bond tour is extended. He expects to receive his discharge from the coast guard next year.

Shorthanded Wildcats Fear Letdown in Wisconsin Game

BY WILFRID SMITH

The football axiom that a team cannot play its best two games in succession was disproved last Saturday when Northwestern lost to Ohio State, 16 to 14, in the last two minutes after upsetting Purdue the preceding week. The exception still proves the rule but the Wildcats now may be called on to pay a deferred penalty when they meet Wisconsin Saturday in the Badgers' homecoming contest.

Bob Piros

Northwestern's undermanned eleven, which now has lost three players who starred at Ohio State, scarcely can reach that peak of performance which saw the Wildcats riddle the Buckeyes' defenses for two touchdowns in 10 minutes. Bruce Bairstow, who started at left half, is out for the remainder of the season. Don Laser, who took over, also is injured, while Ray Miller, center, finished competition and now has been transferred to the V-12 school at Harvard university.

Lynn Keeps Juggling

Laser's shift from quarter back, where he supported Jim Farrar, to half back, is typical of the improvising Coach Lynn Waldorf has had to do since the opening of the season. Miller, for instance, was a reconverted end and Don Whan, who scored Northwestern's second touchdown last Saturday, normally is a half back. Whan lacks weight, but he has fitted well into the full back position.

Northwestern is using the T formation, a system dictated by the material available, for the first time, which makes the Wildcats' accomplishments all the more remarkable. Waldorf's handicaps not only include an inexperienced squad—only two Northwestern letter men were in the starting lineup at Ohio State—but the squad lacks reserves to meet many of its opponents on equal terms for 60 minutes.

Staff Undermanned, Too

Waldorf's coaching staff also is shorthanded since there has been no replacement for Burt Ingwersen, who was line coach until he entered the navy. Ingwersen now is line coach at Illinois and no doubt the position will be filled at Northwestern for 1946. In the meantime, Waldorf has served as his own line coach.

Waldorf is rebuilding his back field for the Badgers. Bob McKinley, who was injured in the victory over Purdue, will be at left half back in place of Bairstow. McKinley apparently has recovered from his sprained ankle. John Barron and Dick Reilly are being given opportunity to work at quarter back but, unless Farrar is injured, there probably will be no substitution. Dick Conners, right half, and Whan complete the back field.

Bob Piros, freshman, and Duane Peterson, a sophomore, are candidates to succeed Miller at center.

The Northwestern squad was strengthened numerically yesterday when several V-12 students, recently transferred to Evanston, reported.

BADGERS HONOR KINDT

Madison, Wis., Nov. 6 [Special]—Don Kindt, brilliant Wisconsin right half back, who joined the squad four weeks ago after returning from the war in Europe, will be acting captain of the Badgers when they face Northwestern here Saturday in their homecoming game before 47,000, Coach Harry Stuhldreher said today. Kindt scored twice for the Badgers as they whipped Iowa last Saturday.

WIDDOES KEEPS NEWSMEN AT BAY ON SARRINGHAUS

Columbus, O., Nov. 6 (AP)—Coach Carroll Widdoes today clamped a news censorship around the Ohio State football squad as a result of the much publicized reports that Paul Sarringhaus, star half back, quit the squad and then rejoined.

Reporters were banned from the training and locker rooms, and Widdoes said he had instructed players not to talk to newsmen.

Widdoes explained his actions as an effort to stop "any instances of just what went on." He added that he would be the source of all information about the team.

No efforts were made to keep reporters from watching the practice session for the game at Pittsburgh Saturday. Sarringhaus was in uniform.

First Cub Group Will Leave for Catalina Feb. 17

The Chicago Cubs' first contingent of players will leave Sunday, Feb. 17, for the National league champions' training camp on Catalina Island, it was announced yesterday. This group will include pitchers and catchers. A week later other members of the squad will depart for California.

The Cubs are returning to their old conditioning base after having trained in 1943, 1944 and 1945 at French Lick, Ind.

12-1 SHOT TAKES MELBOURNE CUP; BET MARK FALLS

MELBOURNE, Nov. 6 (AP)—All Australian betting records were shattered at the Melbourne cup meeting today as Rainbird, a 12 to 1 outsider, won the Melbourne cup.

Total wagers for day aggregated 232,000 pounds [$928,000] with 68,000 pounds [$272,000] bet on the cup race alone.

Byron Nelson Plans to Accept South Africa Bid

Texarkana, Tex., Nov. 6 (AP)—Byron Nelson, all-time top money winner of golf, said today he probably will accept an offer of $10,000 and expenses for a trip to Capetown to play a series of matches against Bobby Locke, leading South African golfer.

PICK ALL-STARS IN OUT OF TOWN TENPIN CENTERS

BY CHARLES BARTLETT

With Chicago's own qualifying rounds completed, other 1945 trial centers thruout the country are beginning to nominate their representatives for the fifth annual All-Star match game bowling tournament, to be conducted by Chicago Tribune Charities, Inc. and the Bowling Proprietors' Association of America in the Auditorium Service Men's Center from Dec. 1 to 9.

One of the first repeaters from the 1944 tourney is Fred Beshore. Will Caruthers, sports editor of the Memphis Press-Scimitar, reports that Fred scored an encore triumph in the Tennessee paper's event, and is ready to fire at the service men's center pins once more. This guarantees Tennessee two men in the main event, since Raymond Johnson, sports editor of the Nashville Tennessean, also is conducting tests to determine a Nashville candidate in the big show.

Charley Treat Comes Thru

Charley Treat, a perennial contender in the Kalamazoo Gazette rounds regularly run by Jerry Hagan, finally made the grade in the Michigan celery capital, and right convincingly. Charles, runner-up to Eddie Scott for the last two years, averaged a fancy 218 for the final six-game block in the Gazette examinations. He captured the 33-game eliminations with a Peterson point system total of 155.02. Captain of the Kalamazoo Laundry quintet, Treat started out his final assignment with games of 224, 223, and 205 for 652, then wound up with a 656, off of a trio of 252, 181, and 223.

Leo Myryne was runner-up at Kalamazoo with a Petersen point aggregate of 145.20, followed by Vern Downs with a 145.19.

Muscatine Seeks Champion

The determination of Ollie Bently, proprietor of the Muscatine Pla-Mor, and Walter Van Zyle, sports editor of the Muscatine Journal, to put Iowa on the world bowling map is being evidenced by the enthusiam of the trials which will reach their conclusion in the Pla-Mor round-robin next Sunday.

Four Iowa cities will fight it out in the Muscatine match play round-robin. Their representatives in the order in which they completed total-pin rolling over the last weekend are: Roy Bauer, Dubuque, 1,713; Ray Langham, Cedar Rapids, 1,618; Emery Hedgecock, Muscatine, 1,601; Jim Ballenger, Muscatine, 1,540; Red Pfeffer, Cedar Rapids, 1,526, and Heinie Erwin, Davenport, 1,515.

Joe Gasparovic, averaging 207 plus for 28 games, led the three Hammond, [Ind.] qualifiers in the tests operated by Jay Batchelor's Bowl Era in conjunction with Sports Editor John Whitaker of the Hammond Times. Joe finished with a Petersen point total of 140.43. Joe De Michele was second with 123.25 and Henry Kopman third with 122.12.

Wife Seeks Divorce from Morton Cooper

St. Louis, Mo., Nov. 6 (AP)—Mrs. Bernadine Cooper today filed suit for divorce against Morton Cooper, star pitcher for the Boston Braves baseball team. Mrs. Cooper alleged that the baseball star had so changed that he showed no love and little concern for the welfare of her and their 8 year old son, that he refused to make any provision for the future or accept employment during the off season, drank to excess, and became abusive when she remonstrated.

SALARY ABOVE $25,000; HAIL DEAL IN BOSTON

Report Dyer to Get St. Louis Job

Billy's Happy

CLEVELAND, O., Nov. 6 (AP)—Billy Southworth, en route to Boston, said tonight he is happy to return as manager of the Braves, a team for which he played in 1921-'22-'23.

"I am sure the Braves' ownership will be coöperative," he said, "and it was fine of Sam Breadon to release me from my Cardinal contract."

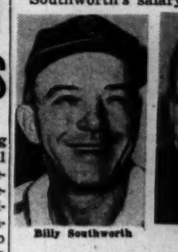
Southworth said he is confident Pitcher Mort Cooper will make a strong comeback in 1946. He was traded to the Braves early last season, but was forced out by arm trouble. Southworth said the contract was for more than one year, but declined to reveal his salary.

Boston, Mass., Nov. 6 (AP)—The Boston Braves tonight announced that Billy Southworth, who led the St. Louis Cardinals to three consecutive pennants, will manage Boston in 1946.

Southworth, a prime favorite in Boston, where he played the outfield for the Braves for three seasons, will succeed Del Bissonette, who took over in midseason of 1945 after the resignation of Bob Coleman.

Elated over the deal, General Manager John Quinn said to newsmen: "With such a topflight manager we feel we'll go places."

Southworth's salary was reported



Billy Southworth

Eddie Dyer

unofficially to exceed $25,000. The deal was completed by telephone by Lou Perini, president of the Braves.

"Mr. Perini made such an attractive offer to Southworth that Sam Breadon [Cardinals' president] felt he couldn't stand in his manager's way," said Quinn.

Starts Career in 1912

Southworth, who has had his ups and downs in baseball as a manager, began his baseball career in 1912 with Portsmouth of the Ohio State league, was with Cleveland for the next three seasons, and played with Birmingham of the Southern association in 1917 and 1918.

Pittsburgh brought him back in 1918 and he came to Boston in 1921 in a deal which sent Rabbit Maranville to the Pirates. From the Braves he went to the Giants.

After bouncing around in various leagues for years, Southworth started the 1929 season as Cardinal manager but didn't last the season.

Southworth managed various farm clubs in the St. Louis system for a number of years before returning to the parent club and driving the Cards to National league flags in 1942-'43-'44. His team finished second to the Cubs this year.

Today's deal was the second big transaction between the Braves and the Cards. Early in the 1944 season, the Braves purchased Pitcher Mort Cooper for cash and Pitcher Charlie [Red] Barrett.

Business Manager Quinn expressed the opinion that the Braves are getting the best manager in the National league.

Arrives in Boston Today

Explaining that the Braves would allow Southworth to select his own coaches, Quinn added that both Bissonette and Coleman were remaining in the Brave organization.

Southworth, whose clubs have won 620 games and lost 346 for an average of .642, will arrive in Boston tomorrow to meet Braves' officials and newspapermen.

In St. Louis, Breadon issued this statement:

"Shortly after the world series Southworth called me by long distance and wanted to know if he could be released as he had a great opportunity in Boston and would like to accept it. I told him I would not stand in his way if he thought he was bettering himself."

Reports in St. Louis said that Eddie Dyer, former minor league executive for the Cardinals, was in line to succeed Southworth. Breadon had no comment.

DYER WON'T TALK

Houston, Tex., Nov. 6 (AP)—Eddie Dyer, former manager of the St. Louis Cardinal farm clubs, tonight declined comment on a report that he was to be named manager of the Cardinals succeeding Billy Southworth.

Dyer formerly was manager of the Houston Buffs of the Texas league, then became head of the Cardinal chain of minor league teams. He gave up this job last year to enter the oil business but has represented the Cardinals at meetings of the Texas league.

CUNEO ENTRIES PILE UP HONORS AT HORSE SHOW

Win Nine Blue Ribbons in Coliseum Event

BY JAMES SEGRETI

The Cuneo family proudly exhibits a team of six Clydesdale horses nightly in the second annual Chicago horse show in the Coliseum. These work horses go thru fancy didoes and please the audiences. However, the Cuneos are stowing away a large amount of ribbons in the competitive events, and rivals are wondering if the giant Clydesdales were brought along to haul the trophies to the Hawthorn farms in Libertyville.

Picking up ribbons from the ringmaster is a habit with the Cuneo family—John Sr., John Jr., and Consuela. Last year the Hawthorn Farms finished second to the Dodge Stables of Rochester, Mich., in the race for the largest number of victories.

Stable Scores Again

Last night, John Sr., drove his entry to another triumph in the Park Four in Hand event before 6,000, the Dodge stables finishing second. The Hawthorn Farms now have captured nine first places, three seconds, six thirds, and seven fourth place ribbons.

Winners of other feature events during the seventh performance were Captain Bird, owned by Mrs. Curt G. Joa, Sheboygan Falls, Wis., Valley View Farm's Edith Fable, which triumphed in the $1,000 stake for three-gaited saddle horses and Colonel Sport from the Hickory Creek Farm, West McHenry, Ill., which won the $2,000 stake for five-gaited stallions.

Youngsters Have Own Entrants

John Sr. and his veteran trainer, Willie Pinch, have accounted for the majority of the ribbons for the Hawthorn farms, since son John Jr., 14 years old, and daughter Consuelo, 12 years old, have their own representatives from the Jonsuelo stables in the show.

HARNESS HORSE, SINGLE (LADY DRIVER)—Won by Killearn Beauty, owned and driven by Mrs. S. J. Campbell, Mount Carroll, Ill.; Royal Mistress, owned and driven by Mrs. A. C. Thompson, Chicago, second; Adulation, owned and driven by Mrs. Loula Long Combs, Lee's Summit, Mo., third; Perfection, owned by Argyll stables, Mount Carroll, driven by Mrs. Maury K. Holt, fourth.

BEARS READY TO OPPOSE ANOTHER LEAGUE LEADER

They Upset Packers, Hope to Do Same to Lions

BY EDWARD PRELL

The Detroit Lions have been noiseless contenders in the wild National Football league race this year. While the Green Bay Packers, 1944 champions, and the suddenly potent Cleveland Rams have had a showy season, the Lions have only drawn polite applause for their efforts.

But there are those Lions—up there with the Rams at the top of the western division. The Lions, coached by Gus Dorais, come to Wrigley field Sunday, where they have failed to whip the Bears since 1939.

Lose, Then Win 4 Straight

Early in the season the Lions were routed by the Packers in Green Bay, 57 to 21, in the now famous game which saw the champions score 41 points in the second quarter after a scoreless first period.

They have rallied handsomely after the horrible Milwaukee experience, scoring four straight victories. They started on the road back by dealing the Philadelphia Eagles their first defeat of the year, 28 to 24. Then followed triumphs over the Cardinals, 26 to 0, the Bears, 16 to 10, and the Boston Yanks, 10 to 9.

Bears Can Help Rams

Now the Lions encounter the Bears, who seem set for a whirlwind finish after having lost their first five. The 28 to 24 victory over the Packers last week was no gridiron freak, because the Bears had come close to victory on other occasions.

The Bears are in the same delightful spot they occupied last week, matched with a top flight team. They knocked the Packers out of a triple tie into third place in the west. Sunday they can help Cleveland take a clear claim to first place by beating the Lions if the Rams can beat the Packers in Cleveland on the same afternoon.

FOUR CARDINALS WILL ENTERTAIN AT GREAT LAKES

Four members of the Chicago Cardinals football squad will appear on a sports reconditioning program for patients at McIntyre-Lawrence hospital, Great Lakes this afternoon. The four will be Paul Christman, Al Drulis, Mario [Motts] Tonelli and Joe Kuharich. All are ex-service men. The program was made possible thru the coöperation of Arch Wolfe, business manager of the Cardinals; the Chicago Red Cross, and THE TRIBUNE.

Satterfield Matched to Box Bob Garner Nov. 14

Robert Satterfield, 1941 city Golden Gloves welterweight champion, who has scored five straight knockouts as a light heavyweight, has been matched to meet Bob Garner of Louisville in an eight round bout in Ashland auditorium next Wednesday, it was announced by Promoter Mique Malloy yesterday. Garner is the strongest foe Satterfield has been asked to face.

Hint Michigan Aerial Attack in Navy Game

Ann Arbor, Mich., Nov. 6 [Special]—Michigan, profiting from statistics of last week's Navy-Notre Dame game, today brushed up on its passing attack in preparation for the contest with the Middies in Baltimore Saturday.

Coach Fritz Crisler, noting that the Irish gained 165 yards by passing altho completing only four of 14 tosses, indicated that the Wolverines' effective throwing game may come in for considerable action Saturday.

The Wolverines will go into Saturday's contest in excellent condition with the exceptions of Tackle Bob Callahan still nursing an ankle injury suffered at Champaign and Don Robinson who was lost for the season when hurt in Saturday's game with Minnesota. Howard Yerges, substitute quarter back, who took over when the veteran Joe Ponsetto was lost for the year two Saturdays ago, will be fit and ready Saturday according to Trainer Ray Roberts.

A scrimmage session today and another tomorrow are on the Wolverines practice card. Michigan will have a loosening up drill in Baltimore Friday afternoon.

NAVY AT FULL STRENGTH

Annapolis, Md., Nov. 6 [Special]—For the first time in more than a month, the United States naval academy football squad, will be able to muster its full regular strength for the game with Michigan in Baltimore stadium Saturday.

Comdr. Oscar E. [Swede] Hagberg, head coach, made the announcement today as he discussed prospects of the impending struggle. First of all, Hagberg appeared happy when he said that Bob Jenkins, star full back, and powerful ball carrier and defensive player, is again in the best of condition.

With Jenkins in the game, the middies will have three Bobs in their starting back field, but two of them are called by their nicknames to avoid confusion. The others are Bob Hoernschmeyer, quarter back star at Indiana university last year, and Bob Kelly, right half, Notre Dame ace last season. Fourth man in the quartet is Clyde Scott, leading ball carrier this season.

Paterson Stops Reynolds in 3d Round at London

LONDON, Nov. 6 [Reuters]—Jackie Paterson of Glasgow scored a technical knockout over Sammy Reynolds of Wolverhampton at the Queensberry club tonight. The referee stopped the bout halfway thru the third round to save further punishment of Reynolds who at that point was hanging helplessly on the ropes and being severely pounded.

Minnesota's Judd Ringer Wins Medals

BY EDWARD PRELL

JUDD RINGER left for the Pacific in July of last year on the same carrier which carried Maj. Joe Foss' famed squadron VMF back into combat with the Japs. Judd had entered the marine corps as a fighter pilot on July 1, 1943. He had played end on the Gophers' championship elevens of 1940 and 1941.

He was piloting one of the 48 Corsairs which carried 1,000 pound bombs as Japanese presents to be delivered on Koror Island. This was a key stronghold, comparable to Truk Island.

Judd Ringer

Judd and his associates had been told, he says, that the enemy defenses weren't too tough. As the first plane nosed over to drop its burden, the air became black with anti-aircraft fire. American flyers dived right down into the gun barrels.

"It seemed like I was flying right into a solid mass of gunfire," Ringer recalls. "I dropped my bomb and pulled out of the dive at about 200 feet. I could see Japs flying in all directions, but we were catching it, too. Of our 48 planes, 25 were hit. This was the hottest reception the squadron ever received."

Ringer's plane was the last one out of this inferno. "My biggest thrill?" he repeated the question, then answered: "It was learning, much to my surprise, that somehow I hadn't been hit at all!"

Judd won the distinguished flying cross and several other awards.

Lt. Meyer, Basket Coach, to Return to Techawk Post

Illinois Tech's last peace time basketball coach, Robert E. [Remie] Meyer, will resume his duties as the Techawks' first post-war coach by the end of November, Athletic Director John J. Schommer said yesterday.

4 Casualties Resume Drill at Illinois

Champaign, Ill., Nov. 6 [Special]—Coach Ray Eliot today sent the Illinois football squad thru a two hour scrimmage in preparation for Saturday's game with Iowa. Four injured regulars reported back for practice.

The fourth regular to report was Right End Stan Sprague, who has not played since Oct. 6 when he was hurt in the Indiana game. Ray Ciszek, Hobart, Ind., has taken over Sprague's position and it will be a hot contest between these two for starting honors.

Other former casualties back in practice were Les Bingaman, guard; Lou Agase, tackle, and Eddie Bray, half back. Eliot said that Bingaman and Sprague would be in shape to play this week, but expressed doubt that Agase or Bray would see action.

IOWA GETS NEW PLAYS

Iowa City, Ia., Nov. 6 (AP)—Iowa's pass-minded Hawkeyes got some new plays today to use against Illinois, the team with the best aerial defense in the conference, in Champaign Saturday.

Coach Clem Crowe took the regulars into a secluded corner of the practice field to outline the new tactics. He said he is hoping the Hawkeyes will be able to shake more receivers loose for the passes of Jerry Niles, quarter back.

BIERMAN EXHORTS GOPHERS

Minneapolis, Minn., Nov. 6 [Special]—Coach Bernie Bierman exhorted the Minnesota football squad today to do its utmost to beat Indiana Saturday and told the Gophers that they could gain victory provided they "resolved to make every possible effort to win."

Iowa and Wisconsin follow the Hoosiers on Minnesota's schedule.

Bierman used Dale Pulver and Jim Burt at guard in today's workout in the hope of strengthening this section of the Gopher line.

INDIANA BUILDS DEFENSE

Bloomington, Ind., Nov. 6 [Special]—Coach Bo McMillin put the Indiana football squad thru its second consecutive drill today on defenses to be used against Minnesota's ground and air attacks Saturday in Minneapolis.

Russell Deal, 60-minute left tackle for the Hoosiers this season, will have some relief for the first time in four weeks this Saturday with the return to condition of John Kokos, junior tackle.

Head, Dodger Pitcher, Gains Army Release

Brooklyn, N. Y., Nov. 6 (AP)—Ed Head, right handed pitcher, has been released from the army and will rejoin the Brooklyn Dodgers next year.

Hawks to Bid Tomorrow for Hockey Lead

BY EDWARD BURNS

The robust, rapid, and rollicking Blackhawks will leave for New York today to collaborate tomorrow night with the Rangers in the latter's 20th home opener in Madison Square Garden.

The Hawks will leave town in possession of a first place tie with the Montreal Canadiens, who do not play until Saturday night, thus giving the Hawks a chance to take unshared possession of first place with a tie or a victory, regardless of what Boston and Toronto do in a battle in Toronto tonight.

The Hawks have scored 21 goals in four games, one more than Montreal has accrued and nine more than the third place Detroit Red Wings have been able to accumulate. New York, in fifth place, has made only six goals in three games, which includes a 4 to 1 victory over Toronto last Saturday night.

Manager Johnny Gottselig will head a physically sound and mentally eager crew to New York, except that Wingy Johnston will not accompany the outfit. The hard skating winger, back after three years in war service, has shown scoring alertness beyond immediate expectations but club physicians ordered him left at home to nurse a pulled leg ligament.

Seagram's Ancient Bottle distilled dry Gin

Time-Honored "Ancient" Bottle
Temporary "Victory" Bottle

DRY, DRY-ER, DRY-EST

A dry Martini is the proof of the character of a gin. Seagram's Ancient Bottle is a noble gin—so smooth, so lacking in any permeating trace of juniper flavor that with it you can truly make "The Dry-est Martini in the World." No covering flavors are needed, yet no ginny taste comes through.

The naturally golden color of Ancient Bottle Gin is a result of Seagram's leisurely time-honored way of producing it. It brings you a gin so sippingly smooth that you will even enjoy it straight.

Distilled from 100 per cent American grain. 90 Proof.

WSA PAID TWICE VALUE OF SHIPS, CONTROLER SAYS

Files Report of Deal on Three Vessels

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

Washington, D. C., Nov. 6—Charges that the war shipping administration paid more than twice the fair price for three vessels purchased from private interests during the war were made today by Controler General Lindsay Warren in a report to the house.

Warren said the WSA paid $854,500 for the merchant ships, or $544,270 more than the $310,230 that the controler's investigation showed as the maximum allowable figure.

The purchase by the WSA, headed by Vice Adm. Land, was made in March, 1942, from the Colonial Navigation company, New York City.

Bought for $269,801

Warren's report, filed with the house committee on expenditures, disclosed that Colonial Navigation purchased the ships—the Arrow, Comet, and Meteor—in 1936 and 1938 for a total of $269,801. After expenditures for improvements and allowances for depreciation the three ships had a "net book value" in March, 1942, of only $68,232, or only 8 per cent of the price paid by the WSA, Warren reported.

The controler said the market values for the ships justified a price higher than the book value, but not a sum as large as was approved.

Warren described the amount actually paid as "an excessive expenditure of public funds." He said he has asked the WSA to block payment of $619,500 that has not yet been released to the navigation concern. This request was complied with, the controler general reported.

Uses Insured Value

The report showed that the WSA based its purchase price partly on the insured value of the vessels, which approximated the $854,500 paid. Warren said, however, that the ships were insured for amounts apparently in excess of their actual value.

The WSA also contended that the ship owners originally asked 2¼ million dollars for the three ships, and that lengthy negotiations were required to get an agreement at the actual sale price.

SELECT BUYER, PULLMAN, INC., TOLD BY COURT

30 Rails Press Bid for Sleeper Unit

BY CHARLES GOTTHART
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

Philadelphia, Pa., Nov. 6—Disposition of the Pullman company's sleeping car business was postponed at least until Dec. 10 when a special three-judge federal court today ordered further hearings in the matter.

Fred G. Gurley

Pullman, Inc., the parent company, was instructed to recommend one of the four competing groups bidding for the property and notify the court of its choice by Dec. 3. David A. Crawford of Chicago, company president, said he hoped a choice could be made at a directors meeting on Nov. 21.

If the court agrees with the directors that the prospective purchaser will carry out terms of the dissolution decree, the Dec. 10 hearings may be completed speedily and the sleeping car operations turned over to a new management.

Court Asks Briefs on Authority

If not, the merits and demerits of all four proposals will be threshed out by the battery of attorneys for the groups, and protracted hearings will result. The lawyers were instructed to prepare briefs on what the court termed the "moot question" of its authority to select a purchaser, possibly over Pullman's objections.

Pullman counsel, including Ralph Shaw of Chicago, denied the court's authority extended to this point, as did attorneys for the group of railroads — now increased to 30 — that entered a bid for the property. In accepting the court's monopoly decree, Pullman elected to dispose of the sleeping car business and retain Pullman-Standard Car Manufacturing company.

The court, made up of Judges Albert B. Maris, John Biggs Jr., and Herbert F. Goodrich, also instructed Holmes Baldridge, special assistant to the United States attorney general, to prepare opinions on the legal aspects of the competing bids. Baldridge entered a petition today opposing sale to the rail group, contending this "would merely substitute a new monopoly for the one condemned by the court."

Three Executives on Stand

Three railroad executives—Fred G. Gurley of Chicago, president of the Santa Fe, Gustav Metzman, president of the New York Central, and Walter S. Franklin, vice president of the Pennsylvania—gave detailed testimony on the industry's vast expenditures for new equipment and its efforts to maintain a modern plant.

Their testimony was in answer to previous criticism that rail management was not alert in providing fast and comfortable transportation. The charge was made especially by the Otis & Co., Robert E. Young, and Cyrus S. Eaton interests of Cleveland, one of the bidders.

Gurley disclosed that the question of coast-to-coast operations without the necessity of changing trains at Chicago and other midwest points was receiving renewed consideration by the railroads. He and others discussed this in response to repeated questions by the court about "the mysterious Chicago interim."

Urges Rails' Right to Choose

He denied a court suggestion that the delay was motivated by a desire to avoid offending lines that would not be included in the joint operation, but said it was "a question of choosing partners first, then working out schedules and other problems."

Gurley and the other executives took the position that the railroads in equity must be allowed to choose the agent that will operate sleepers over their lines. He attacked the Young group for the prospective favoritism in routing sleeper business over the Chesapeake and Ohio and other roads under its control.

Crawford disclosed that all except two of the lines that operate lightweight sleepers had elected to purchase the cars at the expiration of current operating contracts on Dec. 31, and said he expected the affirmative decisions of the other two soon.

Railroad purchase of these 608 modern sleepers will reduce the value of the property to be acquired by the new owner by 35 million dollars.

Corporations' Working Fund Total at Peak

Net working capital of American corporations reached a new high during the second quarter of this year, totaling 48 billion dollars as of June 30, the securities and exchange commission reported yesterday. The three months' gain was 1 billion 200 million, not quite as high a rate of increase as in the preceding quarter.

"This increase in working capital was more than explained by the level of retained profits," the SEC said. "As in previous quarters, the record level of working capital was in extremely liquid form, with both cash and United States government securities accounting for a very substantial portion. Total current liabilities showed a sizable decrease during the quarter whereas total current assets were practically unchanged."

Tax Credits Accumulate

The SEC said United States government securities holdings increased 2.4 billions to a record total of 22 billion 200 millions, attributable in part to the seventh war loan drive. This was partly offset by a 1 billion decrease in cash and bank deposits to 23 billion 800 millions.

In addition to increases in working capital, corporations continued to accumulate post-war credits in refundable taxes, raising the total to 2 billion 500 millions, an increase of 200 million over the preceding quarter.

Tax Change to Boost Total

"As a result of the recent enactment of the tax adjustment act of 1945, a large part of tax refunds payable to corporations will be reflected in their net working capital position in the third quarter of 1945, with the rise in current assets and decline in current liabilities amounting to about 4 billion 500 million," the SEC said.

"In the third quarter net working capital will be increased and noncurrent assets reduced by the 2 billion 500 million of excess profits tax refunds and close to 2 billion of tax credits arising from final amortization of war plants. Net working capital will be further increased by possibly several hundred million dollars as a result of tax refunds ascribable to carry-back of losses and unused excess-profits credits."

CHARGES UTILITY LAW LEADS TO SOCIALIZATION

Washington, D. C., Nov. 6 (AP)—The government is using the holding company act of 1935 to "bring about the socialization of the utility industry," J. W. McAffee, president of Union Electric Company of Missouri, told a house interstate commerce subcommittee today. The committee is considering revision of the act, requiring dissolution of subsidiaries.

Referring to the Tennessee valley authority in relation to interest on government money invested and taxation, McAffee asked:

"What kind of yardstick is it that has 36 inches for one fellow and about a fourth as much for the other fellow? The people are going to have to decide whether they want government operation of all the power business, and what effect this would have on the socialization of other business."

The "death sentence" clause in the holding company act, McAffee said, is being applied in such a manner that companies are forced to dispose of properties on such an unattractive basis that "there remains only one prospective customer—some subdivision of government."

ENDING OF PRICE RULE LIFTS HOUSING COSTS, REP. PATMAN ALLEGES

Washington, D.C., Nov. 6—(AP)—Removal of price controls over new homes has resulted in a sharp rise in housing costs, Rep. Patman [D., Tex.] said today.

Asserting that a "real estate lobby" in Washington is misleading the public and minimizing the housing shortage, Patman charged that its purpose is to avoid control and increase profits.

"If they are successful," he said in a house speech, "they will be in a position to use up supplies of scarce building materials for high priced, high profit homes, rather than to build low cost homes for veterans."

Patman told of the case of a Washington builder who constructed houses to be sold at a controled price of $7,250. On Oct. 17, after controls were lifted, the builder raised his prices to $9,000, then reduced them to $8,990 after a meeting of real estate men had discussed dangers involved in high profits, Patman added.

Senator Urges Use for Plants Built for War

Washington, D. C., Nov. 6 (AP)—Sen. O'Mahoney [D., Wyo.] today predicted "disaster that will overwhelm us all" unless the government and industry get together in aiding peace time production.

He spoke as chairman of a senate military subcommittee considering the problem of further operation of such plants built for war as the steel plant at Geneva, Utah.

Urges Generous Policy

O'Mahoney told the subcommittee hearing that the government position toward industry during the war was "not an ungenerous attitude," and that "if the free enterprise system is to be preserved the government should follow an equally generous policy to make certain these plants are used in peace."

"If we don't have production we are going to have inflation," he warned. "We are confronting disaster that will overwhelm us all if we don't get our heads together on production. We must utilize these plants without delay."

O'Mahoney said the Reconstruction Finance corporation should "entertain every offer" for government built plants.

Five Year Lease Offered

E. Perry Holder, president of the Colorado Fuel and Iron corporation, has offered to lease the Geneva plant for five years. He asked that first, however, the government spend an estimated 40 million dollars to put it in shape for the company's needs.

William Hauck, steel adviser in the RFC, testified that if the government cannot sell Geneva as it is, it must enter into a lease. But he said five years is too short.

MATURE WHISKY EXPECTED TO BE SHORT UNTIL '49

Shortages of mature whisky will not be ended until 1949 or thereafter, and the immediate outlook depends mainly on present stocks, J. B. Deacon, vice president of Schenley Distributors corporation, New York, said yesterday. He spoke at the annual meeting of the National Alcoholic Beverage Control association in the Edgewater Beach hotel.

Deacon said about half the inventory accumulated during the preceding eight years has disappeared in the last three years. No whisky was produced during 31 of the 37 months since October, 1942, and in most of the six months in which distilling was permitted production was meager because of grain restrictions.

Approximately 235 million gallons of mature whisky is all that will be available in the next four years, or only 52½ million gallons each year, appreciably less than normal withdrawals.

PAY CANNOT RISE UNLESS PRICES DO, SAYS WEIR

Pittsburgh, Pa., Nov. 6 (AP)—E. T. Weir, chairman of the National Steel corporation, said today the steel industry cannot increase wages unless the full cost is covered by higher prices for steel products.

It was Weir who in 1941 set the pace for steel wage increases by surprising the rest of the industry with a 10 per cent raise while representatives of major steel companies and union officials were in the midst of contract negotiations.

Weir said in an interview that any wage increases without price advances would put the entire industry in the red and force elimination of dividends to stockholders.

CITIES SERVICE

I am interested in Cities Service company as an oil business. What is the status of its divestment of utility interests?—A. M.

Approximately 69 per cent of Cities Service consolidated gross revenues in 1944 was derived from oil operations, 14 per cent from natural and manufactured gas, 15 per cent from electric utilities, and the remainder from real estate and other activities. Under securities and exchange commission orders, the company has until May 5, 1946, to divest itself of its utility interests, but is permitted to retain its extensive oil and wholesale natural gas properties and other nonutility interests.

The system's remaining utility properties are controled by a subsidiary, Cities Service Power and Light company, which has sold many of its subsidiaries. If, as permitted by the SEC, Cities Service P. and L. retains its Ohio system, the parent Cities Service will be obliged to dispose of its interest in that intermediate holding company.

Thru utilizing earnings for purchase of system securities, the consolidated funded debt, notes payable, and preferred stocks were reduced $262,235,000 in the 14 years ended with 1944. Unpaid dividend accumulations on the parent company's preferred stocks range up to $77 a share on the 560,620 $6 preferred and $80 on the preference B. Without taking these arrears into account, consolidated earnings on the common since 1940 have ranged from $3.40 to $3.88 a share. In 1939 the share profit was only 68 cents, and still smaller in preceding years.

U. S. AND BRITISH RUBBER PARLEY TO OPEN NOV. 20

Washington, D. C., Nov. 6 (AP)—Another Anglo-American conference on rubber problems will open in London Nov. 20, the state department announced today. Several American rubber industry executives will attend as advisers.

British and American officials and rubber experts have conferred previously in Washington on consumption prospects for the vast world production capacity of synthetic and natural rubber.

Donald D. Kennedy, chief of the international resources division of the state department, will represent the United States. His advisers will include P. W. Litchfield, chairman of Goodyear Tire and Rubber company; John L. Collyer, president, B. F. Goodrich company, and Harvey S. Firestone Jr., president Firestone Tire and Rubber company.

Daily nonstop flights between Chicago and Rochester, Minn., will be started Saturday, Northwest Airlines announced yesterday. The flight will leave Chicago at 3 p. m., arrive in Rochester at 5:05, start back at 5:30, and reach Chicago at 7:30 p. m.

Better Parts Ad Tie-in with Garage Urged

Better methods of identifying the independent garage operator as a user of nationally advertised replacement parts are urgently needed, Walter T. Mills, president of the Motor and Equipment Wholesalers association, said yesterday. He also advised a better understanding between wholesalers and manufacturers who distribute their products thru major oil and rubber companies.

In a speech at the association's regional reconversion conference in the Stevens hotel, Mills said effective identification material tying in the independent garage with nationally advertised merchandise is of the "greatest importance in helping the independent operator retain the good will and business of the car owner."

Will Aid Wholesaler, Dealer

"This identification is important from two basic points," Mills said. "First it will keep the wholesaler in better position to compete with car, truck, and tractor manufacturer outlets for the business of the independent garage. Second it will place the independent garage man in better position to compete for the business of car owners."

Mills said wholesalers who wish to maintain their relative position in competition should aim to increase post-war business volume at least 50 per cent over 1940 volume. He said this was not impossible because it was accomplished in 1944. Volume in that year was 50.2 per cent above 1940 despite any general price increase, curtailed man power, and shortages of many volume items, he said.

Needed to Provide Jobs

Such an increase is necessary if the service and distribution trades are to provide at least one-third of all the jobs needed to sustain employment at a high level, he said. He explained that this proportion, agreed upon generally by economists, means that these occupations will have to absorb aproximately 7 million more persons than in 1940.

People and Events

William F. Hosford, vice president and director of the Western Electric company, today will complete 45 years' service with the company. He started as a production line worker in the old Clinton st. shops in Chicago and for 26 years was identified with the company's Chicago activities. In 1926 he was made engineer of manufacture with headquarters in New York.

William F. Hosford

Wesley Nunn, advertising manager, Standard Oil company [Ind.], will discuss economic value of advertising before the Chicago Federated Advertising club tomorrow noon in the Continental hotel.

Butler Brothers announced that G. F. Noz, division manager at the company's Chicago buying headquarters, will head the New York fashion buying offices effective Dec. 15. He will succeed Charles S. Caton who will go to Los Angeles.

GRAINS EXTEND 10 WEEK CLIMB; RYE RISES LIMIT

European Demand Pushes Buying

Markets closed yesterday because of elections will reopen today.

All grain futures soared to new peak prices yesterday on the Chicago Board of Trade with wheat and rye at 20 year highs. The rush of general buying was started by a report by the combined food board, representing the United States, Britain, and Canada, that European countries would not be able to raise sufficient food to provide a proper diet for two years.

December and May rye rose 5 cents a bushel, the limit for one day's trading, on a department of agriculture summary indicating that rye production again would be short of demand in 1946. The advance in the July and September futures was checked at $1.44½, the ceiling on the new crop deliveries. Except for September, prices closed at the top.

Prices Resist Profit Taking

Despite extremely heavy profit taking on the advance which carried May wheat up 1⅝ cents to $1.80⅝, within ⅛ cent of the ceiling, wheat futures held gains of 1¼ to 2⅛ cents. All deliveries of corn closed at the $1.18 ceiling, unchanged to ⅜ cent higher. Oats climbed 2⅜ to 2⅝ cents and barley ¼ to 1⅛ cents.

Inflation psychology again was a factor in the upturn, but the advance also was aided by heavy purchases of wheat futures, regarded as removal of hedges against sales of wheat to Europe. Holland, Spain, Portugal, Norway, and Brazil are now permitted to purchase wheat in this country thru the regular grain trade, and Belgium and France soon will be permitted to do so.

Large sales of oats have been made to the domestic trade in the last few days, and the removal of hedges has been an important factor in advancing futures prices, brokers said.

Advance Covers 10 Weeks

Grain prices have been rising for about 10 weeks with only minor reactions. At the top yesterday wheat futures were up 19¼ to 23⅞ cents from the low after V-J day last August. Corn has advanced 5½ to 9⅛, oats 14⅜ to 17⅞, and rye 25⅝ to 45⅛ cents a bushel.

A vast pent up general demand for cash grain is regarded by many brokers as largely responsible for the wide advance. In assessing European needs, it is recalled that in pre-war days Europe normally imported 750 million or more bushels of various grains annually. The 1945 crops, however, were estimated by the department of agriculture recently at 1,600 million bushels less than the pre-war average.

Cash rye was quoted in Minneapolis at $1.76½ to $1.81½, the latter figure 9½ cents above the basic ceiling price on No. 1 heavy dark northern spring wheat. This was said to be the first time in many years that rye was quoted above wheat.

SUPPLY OF HOGS SETS 21,000 TOP SINCE JANUARY

Pork packing volume at the Chicago stock yards yesterday was nearer a normal level than at any time since last winter as a result of recent large increases in marketing of hogs. Receipts rose to 21,000, including shipments direct to packers, the largest run since Jan. 17.

Volume, however, remained about 8 per cent less than a year ago and 63 per cent smaller than two years ago. Prices held at ceilings.

Steady prices were paid for the 7,000 cattle received, the second smallest Tuesday supply in five weeks. Twenty loads, one of heifers, brought the $18 ceiling.

Sheep and lamb receipts of 4,500 were the second smallest in six weeks, but trading was slow and prices about steady. Top lambs sold at $14.60 and best old ewes at $6.50.

Starts Making Dishwashers; Price Cut 30%

The Edison General Electric Appliance company yesterday started production of an improved electric home dishwasher which will be sold for 30 per cent less than pre-war models.

Ray W. Turnbull, president of the company, said the new price would mean taking a loss for some time, but that volume production and improved manufacturing methods later would bring costs down and provide a profit despite increased costs of labor and materials.

"We are not able to get into full production at once; therefore it is not possible to say that we will make money immediately at the new price," Turnbull said.

Sink Unit Priced Below $250

The company's "48," a dishwasher incorporated in a modern, waist-high, cabinet sink, will sell for slightly less than $250, compared with $330 in 1942. An optional installation is a garbage disposal unit which will cost about $80, compared with about $100 before the war.

The washer unit alone, including an acid-resistant enamel working top, will retail at $200, compared with $265. Another type of the single unit, without the top, will sell at $185, compared with a $250 pre-war price. This model was built to fit under existing built-in working surfaces.

The company said all models will be in retail show rooms ready for sale to the public within two or three weeks.

Uses Substitute for Soap

The Edison units wash, spray, rinse, and dry dishes without soap in 32 minutes. Ten minutes of the cycle is for washing, the other 22 minutes for drying. The machine requires no attention after it is started. A teaspoonful of water conditioner or deturgent takes the place of the soap. The washer holds 57 pieces of china, permitting the average family of four to have dishes done only once a day.

The company has produced dishwashers more than 25 years, but not until 1942 was a satisfactory model developed at a marketable price.

The washer assembly line has been set up in a factory acquired in 1942 for production of .50 caliber armor piercing bullet cores.

TERMINATIONS CUT ALLEGHENY STEEL EARNINGS

Terminated war contracts and canceled shipments reduced its net income for the quarter ended Sept. 30, the Allegheny Ludlum Steel corporation reported yesterday. Profit was $537,079, equivalent to 42½ cents a common share compared with $926,400, or 69 cents a share, in the third quarter of 1944.

Net income for the nine months ended Sept. 30 was $2,500,866, or $1.98 a share, against $2,591,574, or $1.93 a share, a year earlier.

UTILITY SUBMITS BIG REFUNDING ISSUE TO SEC

Buffalo Niagara Electric corporation yesterday registered with the securities and exchange commission $56,929,000 of first mortgage bonds due in 1975. Proceeds would be used to retire a like amount of higher interest bearing debt.

Cities Service company applied to the SEC for authority to retire $8,489,372 of debentures held by two subsidiaries.

AUTO INDUSTRY DISPUTES U. S. WAGE FINDINGS

Review Demanded to Show 'Facts'

Delay Car Pricing

Washington, D. C., Nov. 6 (AP)—The OPA today postponed announcement of price ceilings on new automobiles "for two or three days." There was a delay in getting last minute cost data "and it will take additional time to prepare the legal papers," OPA said. The long awaited price schedule was expected today.

Detroit, Mich., Nov. 6 (AP)—The Automobile Manufacturers' association today challenged a commerce department report that the motor industry could advance wages during the next two years without increasing costs and still "make high profits."

George Romney, general manager, made public a letter to Secretary Wallace asking for a "re-examination and correction of the statement on the basis of available facts." He said the request was made because the unions were using the report as "official government authorization for unreasonable wage ultimatums and because it seriously misled the public as to the facts."

R. J. Thomas, president of the CIO United Automobile Workers, last Saturday had asserted the government was withholding information showing the motor industry could grant the 30 per cent wage rate increases demanded by the union and still make high profits.

Department Theories Attacked.

"It would be wonderful," Romney wrote Wallace, "if the facts supported the department's theories." Specifically he denied these assumptions in the department statement:

1. That materials costs would show no change in 1946 and increases from 1945 of only 3 per cent in 1947 and 5 per cent in 1948.
2. That productivity of labor would increase.
3. That higher production "in and of itself" means higher profits.
4. That sales and profits of all companies in the industry would be affected alike by the arbitrary changes of wages and costs assumed by the report.

Romney said bureau of labor statistics showed productivity declined 11 per cent between 1929 and 1939 and unit costs per worker increased 21 per cent between 1935 and 1940.

"At this time the only question about reduced labor efficiency in the auto industry is its extent, whether the decline in specific plants is closer to 25 per cent than 50 per cent compared with pre-war levels," he asserted.

Could Turn to Advantage

"The possibilities this deplorable condition discloses easily could be turned to the advantage of the consumer and the worker if an end were put to union imposed restrictions on output."

Romney attacked the use in the report of the years 1936 thru 1939 as the basis for profits comparison because they were years of generally unsatisfactory earnings.

EVANSTON RAPE CONFESSION IS TOLD IN COURT

Guilt Later Recanted, Officer Testifies

Testimony that Howard Stiles Jr., 16, of 2326 Brown av., Evanston, voluntarily admitted raping an 8 year old girl Sept. 6 and attempting to rape a 10 year old girl Aug. 24 was given yesterday when Stiles' hearing was resumed before Judge Frank Bicek in Juvenile court.

Joseph M. Skeffington, a probation officer, testified the admission was made by Stiles Sept. 14, when he was placed in the Juvenile home to await court action. The hearing before Bicek is to determine whether Stiles should be adjudged a delinquent.

Boy's Confession Recounted

Skeffington told the court he asked Stiles, "Are you guilty of these two offenses?" Stiles, the officer said, replied, "Yes." A week later, however, Skeffington said, Stiles sent for him, said he wanted to change his story, and denied being guilty.

Thru Caroline Blankschein, bookkeeper of an Evanston firm, the state showed that no time card had been turned in for Stiles on Aug. 24, and that he received no pay for the day. Previously a defense witness had testified that Stiles had worked.

Prisoner Neurotic, Doctor Says

Dr. Gerald Hora, Juvenile court psychiatrist, said that, while Stiles denied the two charges, an examination convinced the doctor that the defendant would mature more rapidly if placed under supervision and removed from the community. He suggested a boarding school for the boy. Dr. Hora held that Stiles is emotionally disturbed, neurotic, and would benefit by psychiatric treatment.

An account of a lie detector test given to Stiles also was reported at the hearing. The witness, Leonarde Keeler, said Stiles took the test voluntarily. His reactions, the witness said, indicated Stiles was "not telling the truth entirely."

Conflict on Testimony

Keeler testified Stiles in the test admitted having practiced homosexuality for several years. Richard G. Finn Jr., defense attorney, objected to this testimony as irrelevant to the offenses charged.

Judge Bicek permitted the testimony to stand and permitted further questioning along the same line, explaining he would reserve his ruling until the case is completed.

Keeler said Stiles named several boys with whom he had been guilty of unnatural acts, admitted fondling one girl, and told of making advances to another girl. Stiles also admitted, Keeler said, that when he was 13 he and another boy stripped and fondled another girl.

Stiles denied both rape and attempted rape, Keeler said.

MRS. RUTH AMADEO

Mrs. Ruth Amadeo, 20, of 3930 Pine Grove av., yesterday won a divorce before Judge Frank M. Padden in Superior court from her husband, Anthony, 25, foreman of a trucking concern. Questioned by Joseph H. and Norman Becker, her attorneys, Mrs. Amadeo said that her husband was an inveterate gambler and that she had to go to work to pay his gambling debts. They quarreled over the debts, she said, and he struck her. She was awarded custody of their son, Ralph, 4, and $10 a week for his support. The couple married Jan. 3, 1940, and separated March 30, 1944.

TURN OLD PAPER INTO BONDS— IT CAN BE DONE!

A suggestion that schools, clubs, and other groups conduct special waste paper collections and invest the proceeds in war bonds during the 8th war bond drive was advanced yesterday by William L. McFetridge, of the salvage division of the Chicago War Service corps.

"Special waste paper drives now can help the nation in two ways," he said. "One is to provide money for extra bonds. The other is by providing enough waste paper to make new jobs in our reconversion program."

He said dealers now are paying good prices for waste paper because of peace time demands.

PROPOSE FIGHT ON SOCIALIZING HOSPITAL CARE

Members of the house of delegates of the American Hospital association at their annual meeting in the Drake hotel yesterday voted unanimous approval of a plan to create a multimillion dollar educational fund to extol the benefits of free enterprise and combat government control in the operation of the nation's hospitals.

Most of the money, which is to be raised in local communities and thru the coöperation of American industry, a spokesman explained, will be spent on newspaper advertising, which was judged the best medium to carry the association's message to the public.

Needed to Educate Public

The resolution to create the educational war chest was introduced by R. F. Cahalane, director of the Massachusetts hospital service, Boston, and chairman of the association's council on public relations.

Jon M. Jonkel, director of public relations for the organization, said the campaign was urgently needed to acquaint the public with the successful service record hospitals have achieved under voluntary management.

"In addition to educational advertisments sponsored by local hospital groups, the 86 blue cross plans and other health organizations," Jonkel said, "we all feel that American industry has a real stake in helping preserve our present hospital system as a demonstration of what an unfettered American can accomplish under free enterprise now being beset by multudinous government and burocratic controls."

Delegates from Hawaii

Ninety delegates attending the meeting from every state, Puerto Rico, Hawaii, and Canada, also approved entering into discussions with the government over a plan proposed by the Veterans administration to permit community hospitals to provide medical care for veterans incapacitated by service and non-service disabilities.

At the conference which ends today, the delegates representing 3,500 hospitals also endorsed a pending senate bill which calls for an expenditure of 375 million dollars over the next five years for a survey and construction of new hospitals to be partly financed by the federal government.

The organization installed Dr. Peter Ward of St. Paul, Minn., as president and chose John Haynes of New York as president elect.

SLASH IN SPECIAL ASSESSMENT LIENS ON REALTY URGED

The city council committee on special assessments yesterday recommended that the council authorize the city law department to foreclose on property heavily encumbered with special assessment liens. Ald. Duffy [19th], head of the committee, said it will be impossible to clear titles of much of the property in time to take advantage of an anticipated building boom in Chicago.

Duffy and Ald. Wagner [14th] estimated that approximately 90,000 parcels of land, representing about 200,000 building lots, are encumbered.

The city's policy has been to accept nothing less than 75 per cent of money due when approving a lien assessment, but this policy is repudiated by yesterday's action, Duffy said. He indicated the city will lend a sympathetic ear to offers of around 50 per cent.

MOTHER FREED ON PAROLE FOR LEAVING SONS

Mrs. May Lorusso, 23, of 3536 Monroe st., accused of leaving her three sons alone in her apartment last July, was placed on a year's probation by Judge Victor A. Kula in Municipal court yesterday. Two of the children, Frank, 1, and Michael, 2, have been placed in St. Vincent's orphanage, and the third, Angelo, 3, placed in a foster home.

Mrs. Mary Webb, 21, of 1916 S. Throop st., who is accused of leaving her three children alone during the night of Nov. 4, was so afraid that authorities might take them from her that she sobbed, "I don't want to live if I can't have my children," when she entered the Domestic Relations courtroom yesterday.

Judge Joseph B. Hermes set bond at $4,000, commented, "I want to give you a taste of jail life," and continued the case to Nov. 13.

FEUD RENEWED, NATHAN BORIN WINS 1ST ROUND

Nathan Borin, president of the Borin Art Products company, won at least a moral victory yesterday when an assault and battery warrant was served on David Burman, 4300 Marine dr., the brother of Borin's estranged wife, Claire.

Borin told Judge Leon Edelman, in Town Hall police court, who will hear the cast tomorrow, that Burman hit him when he tried to visit the Borins' child, Bonnie Joy, 4, altho Borin had a court order allowing him to visit the child.

The Borins have had nearly 100 court hearings on divorce and support bills in the last few years. Borin has been adjudged in contempt of court for being in arrears on support payments, but has appealed the decision to the Appellate court.

Wins Divorce

MRS. ROSE CICENAS

Joseph G. Cicenas, 33, of 5430 S. Latrobe av., has had six cars in the last five years but he never took her riding in any of them, his wife, Rose, 26, of 14 E. 107th st., complained yesterday to Judge Edwin A. Robson in Superior court.

Mrs. Cicenas, who won a divorce on her cross bill charging cruelty, said it was always some other woman who went riding with him.

Attorneys Harry X. Cole, representing Mrs. Cicenas, and William J. Russo, her husband, announced a settlement of $1,000, and $10 a week support payments for Gerald, 6.

HEART ATTACK VICTIM REVIVED

Mrs. Sadie Strauss, 59, of 950 E. 53th st., was revived by a fire department inhalator squad after suffering a heart attack in her home yesterday.

N. U. NEEDS MORE ENDOWMENTS TO GROW: SNYDER

President Franklyn Bliss Snyder of Northwestern university told the university's associates at a Chicago club luncheon yesterday that Northwestern requires "generous additions to endowment, faculty, and plant" to meet the post-war demand for education.

Classrooms are overcrowded and only one of four applicants obtains admission, Dr. Snyder said, but the university refuses to hang out the standing room only sign.

"We believe in those youngsters pressing us for admission," he explained, "and would gladly accept 1,000 more if we could in fairness."

Dr. Snyder said another of Northwestern's problems involves scientific investigations in which each solution "brings with it a new train of problems and obligations." He dwelt on the importance of graduate science instruction and investigation and said the university wishes to assume its fair share of industry's problems.

SPEED SURPLUS SALES, AIRPORT FUNDS, U.S. ASKED

Resolutions urging speed in the disposal of surplus property by federal agencies and allocation of federal funds for airport work to local government units that provide matching funds were adopted yesterday at the closing session of the 51st annual Public Works congress in Hotel Sherman. Public officials attending the congress said state, county, and municipal governments needed urgently the materials held by federal agencies, because local governments had been unable to buy such supplies for several years.

WOMAN'S ELECTRIC FANS STOLEN

Mrs. J. G. Chapline, 2816 E. 78th st., told police yesterday that burglars took three electric fans from her home.
